WILLIAM S. HART

Supported by Eva Novak and a Big All-Star Cast

The Big Paramount Picture "O'MALLEY OF THE MOUNTED!"

The smashing tale of a red-coated horseman who rode for the law on Canada's wild frontier.

Rode on a lone hunt into the States—and faced a felon's death—and got his man.

Then gripping his prisoner's hand, and stealing away in the night, returned to his chief—alone. Why?

A story that races across the screen like a thousand galloping troopers. Quickens your blood like a blast from the North. Leaves you thrilled at the courage and love that can live in a human heart.

Coming, Mack Sennett's Masterpiece, "A SMALL TOWN IDOL."

W. S. HART FEATUR- ED AT THE PARMELE

Famous Star Has Role of Great Dramatic Power in "O'Malley of the Mounted."

Proving that he is versatile and talented, William S. Hart comes to the Parmele Friday and Saturday nights of this week in the role of an officer of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, known far and wide as one of the most intrepid and indefatigable organizations in the entire world. The picture is "O'Malley of the Mounted" and in the title role Mr. Hart has a part that brings him "down to the ground."

It is only in the beginning and end that he appears in the familiar uniform of the Canadian or Northwest Mounted. For in the body of the story he is disguised as a purely western plainsman, while he pursues a murderer. How he finds him and then lets him escape is the subject of a gripping tale which will hold the audience spell bound by its suspense and thrill.

Eva Novak, who appeared opposite Mr. Hart in "The Testing Block," is again leading woman and there is an able company in support of the famous star. The settings are splendid.

Sam B. Porter of Denver, a cousin of L. C. Sharp of this city was here for a few hours today enjoying a visit with his relatives. Mr. Porter was at Omaha with stock and decided to drop down to the old home for a brief visit.

SENATOR NORVAL ACTS AS GOVERNOR A WEEK

Lincoln, Neb., May 3.—Senator R. S. Norval of Seward today became acting governor of Nebraska. Governor McKelvie left this afternoon on an auto trip over the state for a rest and vacation. Senator Norval, as president pro tem, of the senate, becomes acting governor in the absence of Lieutenant Governor Barrows who is in California. Governor McKelvie expects to be gone about a week.

Rev. A. V. Hunter motored to Omaha this morning, where he visited for the day looking after some business matters of importance for a few hours.

John P. Sattler was among the visitors in Omaha today for a few hours looking after some matters of business.

MOTHERS' DAY A DAY OF LOVE AND RESPECT

NEXT SUNDAY, MAY 8, WILL BE OBSERVED ALL OVER THE UNITED STATES

On next Sunday will be observed one of the days in the annals of the nation that is given over to love and affection and it is dedicated to the always faithful friend—Mother. This day has grown in the last few years from a community observance to be a day of universal recognition from the reaches of the Atlantic coast to the sunset slopes of the Pacific and from the sunny everglades of the southland to the pine clad reaches of the northland.

It is fitting that in the busy affairs of man, at least one day, should be set aside to be dedicated to the sacrifices that motherhood has made for the human race, and which each day they render to the ones they love and cherish. Of all the people that inhabit the earth, none give more and receive less than does the mother, and while her sacrifices are perhaps overlooked in the matter of course proceedings of life, still they lie in the hearts of men and women alike a deep and lasting veneration of the mother that no one else can hold and which the crisis of the human life brings to the surface in all its wonderful beauty of a real love.

From the day that the child glimpses for the first time the light of the earth until the guttering candle of life flickers to the end there is an undying faith in the heart of the mother that reaches out to those she loves and the child that she has brought into the world carries this love with it until the end.

No matter how the world may judge, no matter how low in the social standards of life, the man or woman may sink, there is always the one loving heart tuned to its sympathy and helpfulness for the unfortunate—always ready to forgive and forget the wrong or fault and remembering only the things that are lovable in the life of the erring one, and that is the mother.

The sacrifices that mother makes comes almost every day, some great and some small but each represents the thought of love and the abiding faith that in the end the child will return to her still the joy of her heart though bruised and broken in the strife of life.

It was the thought of Motherhood always on the scaffold of sacrifice that led Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia, a few years ago to put the thought into active life by originating the custom of wearing a flower in memory of mother and from this observance has grown to nation wide proportion. Not only are the flowers worn for the mothers who have gone before from the griefs of mortal eyes but the mothers living, feel on this day that their love had not been wasted but in the hearts of those she loves glows the fires of affection for the truest and kindest of friends of mortal men.

On this occasion make the day of love and affection—if the mother is within distance so that you can spend the day with her do so, and if she has passed away wear a flower in memory. For the mother who is at a distance let there go forth a message of love but let the memory of mother be unforgotten on this day.

COMEBACK BY EX-MAYOR IN THE ELECTION

CROWD CHEERS WHEN FIRST RETURNS INDICATED DAHLMAN SLATE VICTORY

James C. Dahlman, 12 years mayor of Omaha, "came back" in the voters' favor at yesterday's city election after three years' retirement and carried with him a complete ticket of six city commissioners.

The vote follows, the seven high men being elected:

Dan B. Butler	33,235
James C. Dahlman	31,614
Harry B. Zimman	31,076
Joseph B. Hummel	30,321
John Hopkins	29,944
Henry Dunn	28,869
Joseph Koutsky	27,394
W. G. Ure	23,864
Thomas Falconer	22,392
Roy N. Towl	22,333
J. Dean Ringer	21,319
Charles A. Grinnel	19,497
Abraham L. Sutton	19,760
John F. Murphy	19,435

Dahlman, while the head of the "United Seven" ticket, was distanced at the polls by City Commissioner Dan B. Butler, who ran first as he did three years ago.

Police Superintendent Ringer, the center of the fire directed by the Dahlman forces against the present city commission, ran 11th. Contrary to the expectation of many of his supporters he did not head the "Progressive Seven" ticket, being topped by Commissioners Ure, Falconer and Towl.

Former Judge Sutton, originally slated as the Ringer candidate for mayor until the candidates rebelled at the lineup, landed in thirteenth place.

Bond Propositions Carry.
The two bond propositions, one for a million dollar issue for a new free bridge across the Missouri river and the other for the same amount for extension of the municipal gas plant, both carried by big majorities.

The total vote, in the opinion of election tabulators, was closed to 60,000, by far the largest vote ever cast in Omaha.

From the first returns, the figures favored the Dahlman ticket. Early returns were from downtown wards and Dahlman strength showed itself in majorities of 2 to 1. Returns from the so-called upper wards failed to show any such proportionate strength for the "Progressive Seven," who broke even in many precincts which they would have had to carry by substantial majorities in order to overcome the Dahlman lead elsewhere. The results clearly indicated a big sweep for Dahlman not only in the lower wards but relatively in the upper wards as well.

Tickets Run Uniform.

The two tickets ran unexpectedly uniform, one precinct going by comparatively uniform majorities for all of the Dahlman slate and another turning with the same degree of uniformity to the other side. Butler's lead on the Dahlman slate was general throughout the city, as was Ure's on the side of the "Progressive Seven."

In South Omaha, the home of Commissioner-elect Koutsky, the Dahlman slate polled 2,500 majority over its opponents and there was a difference of but a couple of hundred votes between the high and the low man of the seven on the ticket.

Crowd Cheers.

Three cheers went up from the crowd which packed the outer room of Election Commissioner Moorehead's office when the first returns indicated a Dahlman slate victory.

It was the 12th precinct of the Third ward which gave the key.

Doormen passed the word quickly from the inner room, where the counting was in progress, to the surging crowd outside. Then the cheers went up.

Police officers had to clear the way for the bringing in of sealed ballot boxes, so dense was the crowd in the room—the same in which the first dynamite was touched off the night of the riot.

WILL HOLD RECEPTION FRIDAY

The annual junior-senior reception will be held on Friday evening at the Modern Woodman hall and will be the first of the social festivities that will mark the close of the school year. The class of 1922 are to be hosts of the graduating class of 1921 and will endeavor to eclipse the efforts of the present seniors when they gave the last banquet.

The ladies of the St. Mary's Guild of St. Luke's church will have charge of the menu of the banquet and this is a guarantee that it will be something that will be long very pleasantly remembered by the young people of the school.
