HAS PAINFUL ACCIDENT

Last Thursday, Mrs. T. R. Adams suffered a very painful and peculiar experience. Upon opening the door one of the millions of millers which have been in evidence so much the past week flew directly into her ear. It immediately began boring and entered as far as possible into her head. The continual scratching and digging was very painful and almost drove her frantic. As she was alone save for one of the little Caddy children relief could not be had until Dr. Louacre, who was attending the exercises at the school house was summoned. He killed the miller and finally got it out.—Eagle Beacon.

Kansas City, June 3.—When John H. White of Kansas City, Kas., an overseas veteran reached home from work last night, he found a coffin from the war department advising his wife that his body had arrived at New York from France and would be forwarded to her immediately.

White served as a sergeant in Company G, One Hundred and Fifty-eighth infantry during the war and official announcement was made that he had been killed in action at St. Mihiel, September 17, 1918. Subsequently, Mrs. White learned that he had only been wounded and notified the war department to that effect. She says White is a railroad switchman.

She was closely identified with the Presbyterian church and was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star and Royal Neighbors.
