

The Plattsmouth Journal

PUBLISHED SEMI-WEEKLY AT PLATTSMOUTH, NEBRASKA Entered at Postoffice, Plattsmouth, Neb., as second-class mail matter

R. A. BATES, Publisher

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE

In the gloaming, oh, my darling, When the lights are dim and low,
That your face is powder-painted, How am I, sweetheart, to know?
Twice this month I've had to bundle Every coat that I possess To the cleaners—won't you darling, Love me more and powder less?

Wouldn't you rather be humbly grateful than grumbly hateful?

The peek-a-boo era seems to be giving away to a take-a-good look period.

The wool crop may be short, but there are plenty of wool gatherers.

Only way to have a swell time, at practically no expense, is to get the mumps.

Four thousand bootleggers are awaiting trial in New York. So is prohibition.

One of the saddest things about these halprice sales for suits is not having half the price.

A New Jersey man was struck bald by lightning. He must have been sitting in the front row.

About the only place where there is enough ham in a ham sandwich is at a Sunday school picnic.

One wonders at times whether men wear long hair because they are that way or get that way by wearing long hair.

Some of the doctors say that beer is not recognized as a medicine. Lare, You've got to see a thing before you can recognize it.

Government by the proletariat in Russia can't be much worse than government by the tariff tinkerer in this country.

One reason why we would like to live in Greenland is that you can gather all the ice you want right out of the front yard.

The girl who used to dream of a romantic knight mounted on a charger now sighs for a speed fiend who will take her joy riding.

"What is the shape of the earth?" asked the school teacher of one of her pupils. "It is in a hell of a shape," said little Jimmy.

It is fun for a woman to see her neighbor driving a new car without thinking how stinky she had to be in order to save up the price.

Commissioner Blair warns the public against tax experts who claim to know ways the income tax can be evaded. Mr. Blair needn't worry. The public has found out that there isn't any way.

At last here is some testimony
from a man who ought to be able to speak with authority. Ambrose J.
Rose, of Chicago, age 91 years, has just been granted a divorce from his third wife. "Women are getting worse with every generation," he
says.

"Georgia has sent to the outside world 8,500 carloads of blushing red Elberta peaches," proudly proclaims
the Atlanta Journal. Yes, and every one of those peaches is blushing over
the fact that Georgia is misrepresented
in the United States Senate by Tom Watson.

The cost of food declined three-tenths of 1 percent in June, Washington advises. But further examination of this report shows the reduction was to "the average family,"
which explains why it wasn't generally noticed, the average family being a mere fiction of the statistic
ians.

One of the leading woman suf-fragists in Nebraska says that the state and county offices should be divided fifty-fifty when we have the next election. What are we going to do with the lounge lizards and the
jelly beans who haik around the street corners, and who seemingly belong to a neutral gender?

The Governor of Illinois, against whom charges of embezzlement and corruption in office have been made, defies arrest and declares that the constitution gives him immunity from the courts. However, a session of the Illinois legislature is yet to confront him, and he is not the only Governor in this land who views an approaching legislative session with
dread.

Home rule for South Ireland means that the North of Ireland will go to war next.

Very few girls like hot weather.
When they want to look sweet they
only look sweaty.

That Indiana man who tried to get married on a hunting license was evidently dead game.

The meek may inherit the earth,
but if they do they certainly have
to pay the income tax.

A St. Louis girl is going to marry a prince from Sardinia. That's also
where the sardines come from.

A sweet young thing writes us to ask if the word "kiss" is a proper noun. No, dearie, it is a conjunction.

That drop in the price of baby carriages may mean that the industry is suffering from infantile paralysis.

As the society eddress puts it,
"the bride swept slowly down the aisle to the altar," and that's about
the last sweeping she'll ever do.

"The best way to escape heat is
to forget it," says a contemporary.
Why won't the same rule work in case of a tooth-ache or an amputated
leg?

Have you ever noticed that there is more room in your pockets now
than there is no longer any necessity for carrying around a cork-
screw.

Poland wants to buy 3 million bushels of wheat in the United States which goes to confirm reports that have been heard that Poland has been so busy with other matters lately that she hasn't put in any wheat
herself.

"College graduates should avoid useless occupations," says the head
of one of our educational institutions.
Especially should they avoid the occupation of bill collector which some of them, with their well-known optimism, always enter.

Treasury experts figure the new
tariff will bring in only 450 million dollars a year, and there seems to be some question whether that amount will pay for the white paper
the government has used in printing
the debate on the bill.

Chairman Fordney may be right
in feeling that taxes are to be cut 2 billion dollars if the government economizes. And perhaps one of the best ways to make the government
economize is for Congress to go ahead
and reduce its revenue.

At last here is some testimony
from a man who ought to be able to
speak with authority. Ambrose J.
Rose, of Chicago, age 91 years, has
just been granted a divorce from his
third wife. "Women are getting
worse with every generation," he
says.

"Georgia has sent to the outside
world 8,500 carloads of blushing red
Elberta peaches," proudly proclaims
the Atlanta Journal. Yes, and every
one of those peaches is blushing over
the fact that Georgia is misrepresented
in the United States Senate by
Tom Watson.

The cost of food declined three-
tenths of 1 percent in June, Washington advises. But further exami-
nation of this report shows the reduction was to "the average family,"
which explains why it wasn't generally noticed, the average family be-
ing a mere fiction of the statistic
ians.

One of the leading woman suf-
fragists in Nebraska says that the
state and county offices should be
divided fifty-fifty when we have the
next election. What are we going to
do with the lounge lizards and the
jelly beans who haik around the
street corners, and who seemingly
belong to a neutral gender?

The Governor of Illinois, against
whom charges of embezzlement and
corruption in office have been made,
defies arrest and declares that the
constitution gives him immunity
from the courts. However, a session
of the Illinois legislature is yet to
confront him, and he is not the only
Governor in this land who views an
approaching legislative session with
dread.

Home rule for South Ireland means
that the North of Ireland will go
to war next.

Very few girls like hot weather.
When they want to look sweet they
only look sweaty.

That Indiana man who tried to
get married on a hunting license was
evidently dead game.

The meek may inherit the earth,
but if they do they certainly have
to pay the income tax.

A St. Louis girl is going to marry
a prince from Sardinia. That's also
where the sardines come from.

A sweet young thing writes us to
ask if the word "kiss" is a proper
noun. No, dearie, it is a conjunction.

That drop in the price of baby
carriages may mean that the industry is suffering from infantile paral-
ysis.

As the society eddress puts it,
"the bride swept slowly down the
aisle to the altar," and that's about
the last sweeping she'll ever do.

"The best way to escape heat is
to forget it," says a contemporary.
Why won't the same rule work in
case of a tooth-ache or an amputated
leg?

Have you ever noticed that there
is more room in your pockets now
than there is no longer any necessity for carrying around a cork-
screw.

Poland wants to buy 3 million
bushels of wheat in the United States
which goes to confirm reports that
have been heard that Poland has
been so busy with other matters lately
that she hasn't put in any wheat
herself.

"College graduates should avoid
useless occupations," says the head
of one of our educational institutions.
Especially should they avoid the occupation of bill collector which some
of them, with their well-known optimism, always enter.

Treasury experts figure the new
tariff will bring in only 450 million
dollars a year, and there seems to
be some question whether that
amount will pay for the white paper
the government has used in printing
the debate on the bill.

Chairman Fordney may be right
in feeling that taxes are to be cut
2 billion dollars if the government
economizes. And perhaps one of the
best ways to make the government
economize is for Congress to go ahead
and reduce its revenue.

At last here is some testimony
from a man who ought to be able to
speak with authority. Ambrose J.
Rose, of Chicago, age 91 years, has
just been granted a divorce from his
third wife. "Women are getting
worse with every generation," he
says.

"Georgia has sent to the outside
world 8,500 carloads of blushing red
Elberta peaches," proudly proclaims
the Atlanta Journal. Yes, and every
one of those peaches is blushing over
the fact that Georgia is misrepresented
in the United States Senate by
Tom Watson.

The cost of food declined three-
tenths of 1 percent in June, Washington advises. But further exami-
nation of this report shows the reduction was to "the average family,"
which explains why it wasn't generally noticed, the average family being a mere fiction of the statistic
ians.

One of the leading woman suf-
fragists in Nebraska says that the
state and county offices should be
divided fifty-fifty when we have the
next election. What are we going to
do with the lounge lizards and the
jelly beans who haik around the
street corners, and who seemingly
belong to a neutral gender?

The Governor of Illinois, against
whom charges of embezzlement and
corruption in office have been made,
defies arrest and declares that the
constitution gives him immunity
from the courts. However, a session
of the Illinois legislature is yet to
confront him, and he is not the only
Governor in this land who views an
approaching legislative session with
dread.

Home rule for South Ireland means
that the North of Ireland will go
to war next.

Very few girls like hot weather.
When they want to look sweet they
only look sweaty.

That Indiana man who tried to
get married on a hunting license was
evidently dead game.

The meek may inherit the earth,
but if they do they certainly have
to pay the income tax.

A St. Louis girl is going to marry
a prince from Sardinia. That's also
where the sardines come from.

A sweet young thing writes us to
ask if the word "kiss" is a proper
noun. No, dearie, it is a conjunction.

That drop in the price of baby
carriages may mean that the industry is suffering from infantile paral-
ysis.

As the society eddress puts it,
"the bride swept slowly down the
aisle to the altar," and that's about
the last sweeping she'll ever do.

"The best way to escape heat is
to forget it," says a contemporary.
Why won't the same rule work in
case of a tooth-ache or an amputated
leg?

Have you ever noticed that there
is more room in your pockets now
than there is no longer any necessity for carrying around a cork-
screw.

Poland wants to buy 3 million
bushels of wheat in the United States
which goes to confirm reports that
have been heard that Poland has
been so busy with other matters lately
that she hasn't put in any wheat
herself.

"College graduates should avoid
useless occupations," says the head
of one of our educational institutions.
Especially should they avoid the occupation of bill collector which some
of them, with their well-known optimism, always enter.

Treasury experts figure the new
tariff will bring in only 450 million
dollars a year, and there seems to
be some question whether that
amount will pay for the white paper
the government has used in printing
the debate on the bill.

Chairman Fordney may be right
in feeling that taxes are to be cut
2 billion dollars if the government
economizes. And perhaps one of the
best ways to make the government
economize is for Congress to go ahead
and reduce its revenue.

At last here is some testimony
from a man who ought to be able to
speak with authority. Ambrose J.
Rose, of Chicago, age 91 years, has
just been granted a divorce from his
third wife. "Women are getting
worse with every generation," he
says.

"Georgia has sent to the outside
world 8,500 carloads of blushing red
Elberta peaches," proudly proclaims
the Atlanta Journal. Yes, and every
one of those peaches is blushing over
the fact that Georgia is misrepresented
in the United States Senate by
Tom Watson.

The cost of food declined three-
tenths of 1 percent in June, Washington advises. But further exami-
nation of this report shows the reduction was to "the average family,"
which explains why it wasn't generally noticed, the average family being a mere fiction of the statistic
ians.

One of the leading woman suf-
fragists in Nebraska says that the
state and county offices should be
divided fifty-fifty when we have the
next election. What are we going to
do with the lounge lizards and the
jelly beans who haik around the
street corners, and who seemingly
belong to a neutral gender?

The Governor of Illinois, against
whom charges of embezzlement and
corruption in office have been made,
defies arrest and declares that the
constitution gives him immunity
from the courts. However, a session
of the Illinois legislature is yet to
confront him, and he is not the only
Governor in this land who views an
approaching legislative session with
dread.

Home rule for South Ireland means
that the North of Ireland will go
to war next.

Very few girls like hot weather.
When they want to look sweet they
only look sweaty.

That Indiana man who tried to
get married on a hunting license was
evidently dead game.

The meek may inherit the earth,
but if they do they certainly have
to pay the income tax.

A St. Louis girl is going to marry
a prince from Sardinia. That's also
where the sardines come from.

A sweet young thing writes us to
ask if the word "kiss" is a proper
noun. No, dearie, it is a conjunction.

That drop in the price of baby
carriages may mean that the industry is suffering from infantile paral-
ysis.

As the society eddress puts it,
"the bride swept slowly down the
aisle to the altar," and that's about
the last sweeping she'll ever do.

"The best way to escape heat is
to forget it," says a contemporary.
Why won't the same rule work in
case of a tooth-ache or an amputated
leg?

Have you ever noticed that there
is more room in your pockets now
than there is no longer any necessity for carrying around a cork-
screw.

Poland wants to buy 3 million
bushels of wheat in the United States
which goes to confirm reports that
have been heard that Poland has
been so busy with other matters lately
that she hasn't put in any wheat
herself.

"College graduates should avoid
useless occupations," says the head
of one of our educational institutions.
Especially should they avoid the occupation of bill collector which some
of them, with their well-known optimism, always enter.

Treasury experts figure the new
tariff will bring in only 450 million
dollars a year, and there seems to
be some question whether that
amount will pay for the white paper
the government has used in printing
the debate on the bill.

Chairman Fordney may be right
in feeling that taxes are to be cut
2 billion dollars if the government
economizes. And perhaps one of the
best ways to make the government
economize is for Congress to go ahead
and reduce its revenue.

At last here is some testimony
from a man who ought to be able to
speak with authority. Ambrose J.
Rose, of Chicago, age 91 years, has
just been granted a divorce from his
third wife. "Women are getting
worse with every generation," he
says.

"Georgia has sent to the outside
world 8,500 carloads of blushing red
Elberta peaches," proudly proclaims
the Atlanta Journal. Yes, and every
one of those peaches is blushing over
the fact that Georgia is misrepresented
in the United States Senate by
Tom Watson.

The cost of food declined three-
tenths of 1 percent in June, Washington advises. But further exami-
nation of this report shows the reduction was to "the average family,"
which explains why it wasn't generally noticed, the average family being a mere fiction of the statistic
ians.

One of the leading woman suf-
fragists in Nebraska says that the
state and county offices should be
divided fifty-fifty when we have the
next election. What are we going to
do with the lounge lizards and the
jelly beans who haik around the
street corners, and who seemingly
belong to a neutral gender?

The Governor of Illinois, against
whom charges of embezzlement and
corruption in office have been made,
defies arrest and declares that the
constitution gives him immunity
from the courts. However, a session
of the Illinois legislature is yet to
confront him, and he is not the only
Governor in this land who views an
approaching legislative session with
dread.

Home rule for South Ireland means
that the North of Ireland will go
to war next.

Very few girls like hot weather.
When they want to look sweet they
only look sweaty.

That Indiana man who tried to
get married on a hunting license was
evidently dead game.

The meek may inherit the earth,
but if they do they certainly have
to pay the income tax.

A St. Louis girl is going to marry
a prince from Sardinia. That's also
where the sardines come from.

A sweet young thing writes us to
ask if the word "kiss" is a proper
noun. No, dearie, it is a conjunction.

That drop in the price of baby
carriages may mean that the industry is suffering from infantile paral-
ysis.

As the society eddress puts it,
"the bride swept slowly down the
aisle to the altar," and that's about
the last sweeping she'll ever do.

"The best way to escape heat is
to forget it," says a contemporary.
Why won't the same rule work in
case of a tooth-ache or an amputated
leg?

Have you ever noticed that there
is more room in your pockets now
than there is no longer any necessity for carrying around a cork-
screw.

Poland wants to buy 3 million
bushels of wheat in the United States
which goes to confirm reports that
have been heard that Poland has
been so busy with other matters lately
that she hasn't put in any wheat
herself.

"College graduates should avoid
useless occupations," says the head
of one of our educational institutions.
Especially should they avoid the occupation of bill collector which some
of them, with their well-known optimism, always enter.

Treasury experts figure the new
tariff will bring in only 450 million
dollars a year, and there seems to
be some question whether that
amount will pay for the white paper
the government has used in printing
the debate on the bill.

Chairman Fordney may be right
in feeling that taxes are to be cut
2 billion dollars if the government
economizes. And perhaps one of the
best ways to make the government
economize is for Congress to go ahead
and reduce its revenue.

At last here is some testimony
from a man who ought to be able to
speak with authority. Ambrose J.
Rose, of Chicago, age 91 years, has
just been granted a divorce from his
third wife. "Women are getting
worse with every generation," he
says.

"Georgia has sent to the outside
world 8,500 carloads of blushing red
Elberta peaches," proudly proclaims
the Atlanta Journal. Yes, and every
one of those peaches is blushing over
the fact that Georgia is misrepresented
in the United States Senate by
Tom Watson.

The cost of food declined three-
tenths of 1 percent in June, Washington advises. But further exami-
nation of this report shows the reduction was to "the average family,"
which explains why it wasn't generally noticed, the average family being a mere fiction of the statistic
ians.

One of the leading woman suf-
fragists in Nebraska says that the
state and county offices should be
divided fifty-fifty when we have the
next election. What are we going to
do with the lounge lizards and the
jelly beans who haik around the
street corners, and who seemingly
belong to a neutral gender?

The Governor of Illinois, against
whom charges of embezzlement and
corruption in office have been made,
defies arrest and declares that the
constitution gives him immunity
from the courts. However, a session
of the Illinois legislature is yet to
confront him, and he is not the only
Governor in this land who views an
approaching legislative session with
dread.

Home rule for South Ireland means
that the North of Ireland will go
to war next.

Very few girls like hot weather.
When they want to look sweet they
only look sweaty.

That Indiana man who tried to
get married on a hunting license was
evidently dead game.

The meek may inherit the earth,
but if they do they certainly have
to pay the income tax.

A St. Louis girl is going to marry
a prince from Sardinia. That's also
where the sardines come from.

A sweet young thing writes us to
ask if the word "kiss" is a proper
noun. No, dearie, it is a conjunction.

That drop in the price of baby
carriages may mean that the industry is suffering from infantile paral-
ysis.

As the society eddress puts it,
"the bride swept slowly down the
aisle to the altar," and that's about
the last sweeping she'll ever do.

"The best way to escape heat is
to forget it," says a contemporary.
Why won't the same rule work in
case of a tooth-ache or an amputated
leg?

Have you ever noticed that there
is more room in your pockets now
than there is no longer any necessity for carrying around a cork-
screw.

Poland wants to buy 3 million
bushels of wheat in the United States
which goes to confirm reports that
have been heard that Poland has
been so busy with other matters lately
that she hasn't put in any wheat
herself.

"College graduates should avoid
useless occupations," says the head
of one of our educational institutions.
Especially should they avoid the occupation of bill collector which some
of them, with their well-known optimism, always enter.

Treasury experts figure the new
tariff will bring in only 450 million
dollars a year, and there seems to
be some question whether that
amount will pay for the white paper
the government has used in printing
the debate on the bill.

Chairman Fordney may be right
in feeling that taxes are to be cut
2 billion dollars if the government
economizes. And perhaps one of the
best ways to make the government
economize is for Congress to go ahead
and reduce its revenue.

At last here is some testimony
from a man who ought to be able to
speak with authority. Ambrose J.
Rose, of Chicago, age 91 years, has
just been granted a divorce from his
third wife. "Women are getting
worse with every generation," he
says.

"Georgia has sent to the outside
world 8,500 carloads of blushing red
Elberta peaches," proudly proclaims
the Atlanta Journal. Yes, and every
one of those peaches is blushing over
the fact that Georgia is misrepresented
in the United States Senate by
Tom Watson.

The cost of food declined three-
tenths of 1 percent in June, Washington advises. But further exami-
nation of this report shows the reduction was to "the average family,"
which explains why it wasn't generally noticed, the average family being a mere fiction of the statistic
ians.

One of the leading woman suf-
fragists in Nebraska says that the
state and county offices should be
divided fifty-fifty when we have the
next election. What are we going to
do with the lounge lizards and the
jelly beans who haik around the
street corners, and who seemingly
belong to a neutral gender?

The Governor of Illinois, against
whom charges of embezzlement and
corruption in office have been made,
defies arrest and declares that the
constitution gives him immunity
from the courts. However, a session
of the Illinois legislature is yet to
confront him, and he is not the only
Governor in this land who views an
approaching legislative session with
dread.

Home rule for South Ireland means
that the North of Ireland will go
to war next.

Very few girls like hot weather.
When they want to look sweet they
only look sweaty.

That Indiana man who tried to
get married on a hunting license was
evidently dead game.

The meek may inherit the earth,
but if they do they certainly have
to pay the income tax.

A St. Louis girl is going to marry
a prince from Sardinia. That's also where the sardines