KANRED WHEAT IS A SUCCESS IN STATE

New Variety of Wheat Proves Great Success as Shown by Reports of the Farm Bureau

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 5.—Every once in a while a report comes along that millers and grain buyers at certain places throughout the state are buying Kanred wheat, claiming that its milling quality is lower than the regular runs of wheat, says the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation. These reports are started either by persons who have financial reasons for attempting to discredit this new strain of wheat or who have a misunderstanding of what Kanred wheat is.

"In the first place," says the Farm Bureau, "professional seed analysts and grain inspectors at the large exchanges admit that they cannot tell the difference between Kanred wheat and the other red varieties. Therefore, a county grain buyer to even know that he was buying Kanred wheat must have a knowledge of what the particular farmer he is dealing with has planted. It must be remembered that Kanred wheat is not a hybrid wheat, but is a strain developed from the seed of a hard red winter wheat imported by the federal government from France from which the Kansas Agricultural Experiment Station developed the strain by careful selection of each individual seed and not by cross-pollination. In other words, it originally comes from the same source as the generally accepted Turkey Red wheat."

"The claim is made," the statement continues, "that Kanred wheat does not contain as high percentage of gluten as the other varieties of wheat in this section. In this connection it might be said that the Farm Bureau is just as jealous of the milling and baking qualities of Kanred wheat as they are of its improved yield and rust resisting qualities, and a test of Kanred wheat made from wheat produced in various sections and analyzed a period from 1912 to 1919 has shown that Kanred contains a slightly higher percentage of gluten than Turkey Red wheat covering the same period."

"That any lack of gluten in Kanred wheat in Nebraska this year is due to weather conditions and not the wheat itself, and that the same condition exists as in Turkey Red wheat is the conclusion of an investigation made by the Farm Bureau at the various mills and grain exchanges. Rains which occurred just at harvest time and which wheat was in process of maturing, together with the fact that the heavy whitening of the heads of the berry and causing a high percentage of starch, and the effect has been practically the same on the Turkey Red wheat as it has on Kanred. This whitened wheat is called 'yellow berry' and it is the same identical wheat when it is threshed before the rains is graded 'hard red winter' and is bringing a premium over the yellow berry of approximately one cent and a half to two cents per bushel. It seems that certain buyers either in the market or otherwise, due to the fact that most Kanred wheat was raised this year have attempted to believe that everything that is 'yellow berry' is Kanred and everything that is 'hard winter red' is Turkey Red. As a matter of fact the whole thing resolves itself into 'before and after' the rain proposition."

"That the investigation made by the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation is correct is borne out by a telegram received today by the Nebraska Farmer from L. A. Fritz, head of the Kansas State Agricultural College which says, 'Result of eight years milling and baking tests do not warrant discrimination against Kanred samples grown under adverse conditions have produced poor flour and bread. Yellow berry wheat may be produced from seed of Kanred or Turkey Red and does not usually make satisfactory flour. Climatic and soil conditions and not variety are to blame.'"

RIVER STILL CAUSING RAILROADS TROUBLE

Up to Its Old Tricks in Vicinity of Brownville—Threatening the Burlington Right-of-Way

The apparently never ceasing warfare between the Burlington railroad and the turbulent Missouri river has transferred its activities from near this city to the vicinity of Brownville, where it is now menacing the railroad property.

The river has caused much trouble at that point in the past, but none as serious as the present danger and the effects of the changing waters has indeed proven a serious problem for the railroad engineers.

The first attack of the river was on the bank not far from the railroad trestle houses in the Brownville yards and it has been kept up since that time with the result that a large amount of land has been swept into the river. Defensive work was started by the railroad as soon as the cutting tactics of the river were discovered and a river boat hurried to the scene to do what was possible to high lay mats and take other steps to check the current.

At Riole the river has narrowed very much and is quite deep and as the water fell from the rise of a few weeks ago it crumbled in a large part of the bank and the deep water makes the work of putting in trestles very difficult. The Burlington has sent some of its most expert engineers to the scene of the cutting.

HOLD FUNERAL OF MAJOR HALL TODAY

Body Arrives at 2:39 Over Missouri Pacific and Taken Direct to Cemetery For Burial

From Saturday's Daily. This afternoon the body of Major A. Hall arrived in this city from Rochester, Minnesota, where he had passed away and was laid to rest in Oak Hill cemetery in the family lot there.

Mr. Hall had been at Rochester for a consultation but it was found that it was impossible to do anything for his relief and before he could return to his home in Nebraska death came.

At the station the body was met by the officers and a large delegation of the members of Plattsmouth lodge No. 6 A. F. & A. M. who formed the funeral escort to the grave. The pall bearers were selected from among the lodge members and consisted of W. T. Adams, O. A. Davis, Murray, E. P. Lutz, C. L. White, W. A. Robertson, O. C. Doyce.

The Masonic funeral ritual was conducted at the grave by James T. Bealy, worshipful master of Plattsmouth lodge No. 6 and the beautiful and impressive service laid to the last long rest the faithful follower of our Masonic teachings. A quartet composed of E. H. Westcott, F. A. Cloud, A. V. Hunter and Dr. R. P. Westover gave two of the old and loved hymns as the body was consigned to the silent tomb.

With the re-employment of men at the Burlington shops the number of available houses in Plattsmouth is again reduced to the minimum. The time is ripe, it would seem, for a revival of building. Those who wish to do something to really advance Plattsmouth could hit upon no better plan than the erection of a number of modern rental houses. We say modern, because the time has come when renters demand the same conveniences as home owners and without are willing to pay for it. Better to build modern homes and keep them rented to a good class of tenants than the other kind and have to rent them to anyone who comes along as well as stand the extra upkeep of maintaining them for irresponsible tenants.

The Journal believes the erection of a score of good houses and perhaps another apartment house would pay dividends to inwards helping to build up Plattsmouth.

The ladies aid society of Murray will meet with Mrs. Perry Nickels and Mrs. George Parks and Mrs. William Wiley as assistant hostesses, on next Wednesday afternoon, August 10th.
