Harry Creamer has traded his farm here to Dr. G. H. Gilmore for some land holdings of the latter in the western part of the state. Noted Speaker Coming

Newton Gaines, one of the most able platform speakers of this section of the country will talk at the Lewiston church on September 19th, at 8 o'clock. His subject will be "Community Interests." The plan is to hold the meeting on the lawn of the church, but if the weather is chilly it will be held inside. Mr. Gaines is paid by the state and there will be no charge, neither will you be asked to join anything. He has a message for the boy and girl, the man and the woman of the farm. You can't afford to miss it. People who have heard Gaines say they would go twenty miles to hear him again, so when this is brought to your door and all it costs is the effort to go, you surely can't miss the opportunity of being there.

CORN CROP MATURED RAPIDLY LAST WEEK

High Winds and Temperatures Speed Along Harvest—Plowing for Wheat About Finished.

Nebraska corn matured very rapidly last week and part of the crop can start frost without injury as early as September 1. Plowing for wheat is nearly completed in eastern sections. Marketing of potatoes has been stimulated by present high prices. The melon crop is very good and the market over-supplied in some places. This is the summary of the state and federal weekly crop report issued at Lincoln yesterday by A. E. Anderson. The complete statement follows: "High winds and temperatures have matured corn very rapidly, particularly in the south Platte territory west of Lancaster and Gage counties. Part of the corn is well dented and husks dry. There has been no improvement in the drought section and the average yield of Kearney, Harlan, Phelps and Buffalo counties will be cut 50 per cent. The crop for all states as a whole shows considerable deterioration and some permanent injury, according to the mid-month crop summary. "Much of Nebraska's winter wheat section was plowed early this summer, which is one of the most important factors in wheat production. Those who elayed plowing are meeting considerable difficulty due to hard, dry soil. Plenty of moisture now to pack the plowed land would make the soil conditions favorable for seeding that begins next month. Complete world statistics of 1921 wheat are not yet obtainable, but as far as can be determine from counties producing 50 per cent of the crop, there will be very little change over last year. "In general the reports of oats from all states are very disappointing, but so far this does not seem to have raised the price. Oats are selling extremely low in this state. "Potatoes that are mature are moving rapidly to market and this seems to be the wise move as the prices are very good, and the mid-month reports of the late potato crop show some improvement, although the total crop will yet be below the average, and prices will be as high as the economic conditions will warrant. The sweet potato crop of the southern states is promising. "Wild hay quality will be better than last year as the grass did not grow so rank. Considerable of the alfalfa was left for seed and outside of the regions of severe drought, the condition is promising. "Melons are very plentiful and at some Platte river points the market is over-supplied. One grower, north of Grand Island, is feeding his melon crop to the swine, while Lincoln consumers are paying two cents a pound for melons."

Would You Save On Coal?

We have a number of cars of coal in transit which are due to arrive in a short time, and we are making a very close price on same, especially when taken from the car. Just what the situation will be later on, we are unable to tell. With the prospect of a rail strike, the coal situation would rapidly become serious. Better save your money by buying some of this coal, and at the same time be assured of having it when you need it.
