Christmas is hopping along quite lively.

Saccharine is the sweetest substance known.

Merchants have commenced to display holiday goods.

Sales Day, next Wednesday, will prove as popular as ever.

New York has more illiterate women than any other state.

Queen Mary's colors are geranium red with a narrow blue stripe.

Cutting the hair short used to be a punishable offense in France.

Redness in the Red sea is due to masses of certain kind of seaweed.

Marriages in the United States this year are estimated at 1,500,000.

More than 5 per cent of the inmates in English prisons are women.

New camera, making three exposures at once, is used in making maps from midair.

Cold wave, eh? Well, it was feared this autumn weather would get disarmed eventually.

Old Santa will be the most popular one in the children's minds for the next fifty days.

Almost half the world's supply of gold is now held by the United States and nobody seems to know where the other half is.

Let it be known to all who may be intensely interested on the subject that thus far nobody has sent us a Thanksgiving turkey.

The Atchison Globe crowns the oyster the most efficient creature in the world. One oyster can make a great big bowl of oyster soup.

Somebody ought to get in touch with John Barleycorn and inform him of his death. His hilarious conduct is becoming positively indecent.

The old Romans had nothing on some of the officials in Nebraska when it comes to collecting taxes by a knock-down-and-drag-out method.

One of the most important of our railroad problems is how to stop the breed of fools who imagine they can beat an express train over the crossing.

Marshal Foch carried off the key to the city of St. Louis, and that city will make another. It lingers in the memory that he also carried off the key to Berlin, but Berlin has never considered it worth while to make another.

When Chicago beat Princeton a short time ago eastern sport writers who never heard that football is played in the west were at a loss to explain the disaster. But now, with Notre Dame beating the Army and Nebraska beating Pittsburgh, those writers will have to face the facts: Some of these westerners are simply apt beginners.

Somebody has sent us a four-page communication in which he seeks to discuss what Isaiah said on a certain occasion. If there is anything on earth that gives us the willies it is a communication from a man who wants to air his views on the scriptures. We have no space for such flub-dub, and if our correspondent wants to get it off his chest he had better go hire a hall.
