Prepared in the interests of the People of Nehawka and Surrounding Vicinity Especially for the Journal Readers.

Mr. Clarence Trotter spent last Sunday at the home of friends and relatives at Palmyra.

H. W. Griffin and family were guests for last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Griffin.

Frank P. Sheldon of the Sheldon stores, was looking after some business matters in Union last Monday.

Mrs. H. W. Griffin was a guest at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Osborne, of Union last Tuesday.

C. N. Christwiser was called to Plattsmouth last Tuesday to look after some business matters for the day.

C. M. Christwiser is mourning the loss of an excellent steer and about the choice of his herd, which he was fattening.

Mrs. C. M. Christwiser was a visitor in Nebraska City last Thursday, making the trip via the Missouri Pacific train.

Paul Murdock last Monday purchased a drove of fine porkers from C. A. Tren of Murray, which he is placing on feed.

Miss Belle Buck, the genial and efficient saleslady of the Sheldon store, was a visitor with her home folks at Palmyra last Sunday.

Wm. Dickson of Weeping Water was visiting in Nehawka for a short time last week and while here attended the sale of W. A. Hicke.

George Pollard, the efficient salesman of the Sheldon stores, was a visitor for the day last Sunday at the home of friends in the country.

Miss Ruth Hinton was kept from her work at the Sheldon factory for a number of days last week on account of an injury to one of her feet.

The Sheldon Manufacturing company last week shipped a concrete mixer to Montevideo, Uruguay. Yes, they are going to use it down there.

Edgar Glaze and wife of Plattsmouth, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Fulton of Nehawka last Sunday, spending the day here and returning home in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Green and their children of Plattsmouth, visited at Knox, Iowa, and dropped Mr. and Mrs. Glaze here on their way down and picked them up on their way home.

Warren Munn, while returning home the other night, had the misfortune to have the lights go out on his auto, and as a consequence, while he could not see the road very well, the car slipped into a ditch by the roadside. Mr. Munn, not at all disturbed by this incident, went around and set the refractory wagon on the road again and came on home even though it was dark.

Mrs. M. E. Ross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Roush, departed last Thursday for Oakland, where she went to visit with her sister, Mrs. L. R. Denton.

The Rev. John Simpkins, pastor of the United Brethren church, was a visitor in Louisville last Thursday, where he went to attend a meeting of the church.

W. O. Troop took a car from Plattsmouth to Murdock last Saturday in his truck and after returning took a truck load of hogs to the market at Nebraska City.

Henry F. Kropp is reported as feeling pretty well these times and is to be congratulated on his excellent condition, after so long a time of poor health.

J. G. Wunderlich departed on last Thursday morning for Lincoln, where he went to be present at the conferring of the Scottish rite degree on a number of candidates.

Henry Stoll, who has been making his home at Grant for some time past, arrived in Nehawka a few days since and is visiting at the home of his sister, Mrs. Wm. Flemme.

Lawrence Simpkin, son of Rev. and Mrs. John Simpkin, of Alma, Oklahoma, arrived in Nehawka for a short visit with his parents and other members of the family.

Albert Stoll who has been laid up for some time at his home near Wayside, is reported to have recovered from the injury of one of his knees and is able again to work.

Emma Opp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Opp, was among the number of those sick during last week, being very sick last Saturday, but is some better at this time.

Chester Stone very courteously took his car and took some five of the young ladies who are attending school at the state university, to Lincoln. He had a merry time going, but a lonely ride home.

Harry Thomas, brother of the general agent at Nehawka, was a visitor with his brother on Washington's birthday, spending the holiday with the family. Mr. Harry Thomas is agent for the Missouri Pacific at Falls City.

Last Wednesday evening the gaiety of the carnival was interrupted by the interference of the lights and finally they had to quit, as the lights did the same. The Sheldon factory also had to suspend work for the day Thursday.

Last Monday, Fred Smith, salesman for the Plattsmouth Motor company, of Plattsmouth, brought to Nehawka a new car which had been recently purchased by Mr. Thomas Mason, the carrier of one of the rural routes out of Nehawka.

Z. W. Shrader, Joseph Shrader, Troy Shrader and Mont Shrader shipped two cars of hogs from Murray last Tuesday to the market at South Omaha, and there found the prices good on Wednesday, but a pretty rainy day for all that.

Edgar Glaze and wife of Plattsmouth, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Fulton of Nehawka last Sunday, spending the day here and returning home in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Green and their children of Plattsmouth, visited at Knox, Iowa, and dropped Mr. and Mrs. Glaze here on their way down and picked them up on their way home.

Married Wednesday Evening

Miss Mabel Rice, living a few miles north of Nehawka, and Mr. George J. Hunt, the latter of Laurel, were joined in the holy bonds of matrimony at the Methodist parsonage, late Rev. E. O. Johnson performing the ceremony. The happy young couple departed last Thursday morning for their new home at Laurel, showered with the good wishes of their many friends.

Takes the First Degree

Anderson Lloyd was an inquirer after some truths which are given out only under some very particular conditions, but which while they are secrets, are never-the-less very applicable to the best conduct of practical living. That is in other words, he had unfolded to him some of the mysteries of the Entered Apprentice degree of the Masonic order, being developed at a special convocation of the Nehawka lodge. Yet, that is just what it means.

Surely Had a Great Time

The Busy Workers, the Ladies Aid society of the Methodist church, gave one of the most enjoyable entertainments at the auditorium last Wednesday evening, which it has been the good fortune of the people of Nehawka to enjoy for many a moon. A very worthwhile program was presented which was not the least among the good things of the evening. Misses Virginia Harris, Alma and Lavinia Frans of Union, favored the gathering with a very comic minstrel part, which kept the house in an uproar during the entire evening. The program was of a patriotic nature, and consisted of drills, marches and songs. The ladies realized a nice sum of money which they were securing for the purpose of decorating the church and will go a long way toward accomplishing the purpose for which it was intended.

School Notes

Ruth Burby was ill with the flu last Tuesday, but is better now. Miss Edith Hansen took dinner with Mrs. Johnson Monday night. Many children are absent from school this week because of illness. The pink eye has kind of given way to the grip and flu for the time being. Most of the grades celebrated Washington's birthday by stories about his life. Five of the teachers took boxes out to Maple Grove for the box social on Tuesday night. The seniors are practicing industriously for their play which will be given the 25th of March. County Agent Snipes was at the school house Monday assisting in the organization of a calf club. The Household Management class have been making a study of "Reading, Music and Pictures" for the home. A special meeting of the Sunny Side Girls club was held and it was decided to hold the next meeting at the home of Margaret Chase February the 28th. One of the buses was stuck Wednesday morning and the children had to come in by wagon. This is but the second time this school year that this has occurred. The pupils of the fifth and sixth grades are having special study in language on some of our great American heroes. Some very interesting compositions have been written on the lives of these great men.

NEHAWKA ENTERPRISE LARGEST IN AMERICA

Sheldon Manufacturing Company Has Largest Output of Concrete Machinery in Country.

Few people of the great commonwealth of Nebraska realize that in Nehawka is located the largest concrete working machinery factory that exists in the United States. Never-the-less this is the case. Nehawka, former home of George L. Sheldon, ex-governor of Nebraska, is proud of the Sheldon Manufacturing company, which has in the past directed building machinery, the manufacturing of machinery for working cement, and placed upon the market a machine not excelled by any. Their trade in this machine extends beyond the confines of the United States, into remotest Europe, South America and the islands of the Pacific. It now has an order to Uruguay, South America.

During the past few years the Sheldon company has been adding other specialties to their output, not the least among which has been a patented saw rigging to both rip and cross-cut building material.

Recently the suggestion of making a combined concrete mixer and saw rigging was suggested and found favor with the concern. Soon the new machine had been developed and today it is on the market, a concrete mixer, or if you prefer, a mixer sawing outfit, quickly convertible from one to the other. The combination machine promises to be greatly in demand among building contractors, for it will not only mix the cement for his foundations, etc., but will saw the concrete for use in concrete buildings. The machine is operated by the 1 1/2 h. p. gasoline engine heretofore used on the Sheldon company's mixer and which furnishes ample power for either operation.

There has long existed need for just such a machine, and there is little doubt but sales will be heavy as its possibilities become known.

Nebraska can feel no small degree of satisfaction that this little town within the confines of its border, is the home of such a titanic institution as the Sheldon company, which, although located in the home town of former Governor George L. Sheldon, was not named for him, but for George C. Sheldon, a relative of the ex-governor.

Nebraska, too, can well feel a degree of satisfaction and pride over having this institution in its corporate limits. From this factory has been shipped concrete mixers to all parts of the earth, and not in isolated instances, but by car loads, for their business is one of much moment.

WILL HOLD REVIVAL SERVICES

Arrangements have been perfected whereby there will be begun on Thursday of this week, March 2, a series of revival meetings at the Christian church, which will be conducted by Rev. E. O. Johnson, who was state secretary of the Nebraska Christian Missionary Society for a number of years, and is now state evangelist of that church. It is proposed to have an excellent series of meetings and all members and others are invited to be present. These meetings which will begin on Thursday evening at the Christian church this week and continue for some two weeks.

CARD OF THANKS

ORDER OF HEARING AND NOTICE OF PROBATE OF WILL

In the County Court of Cass county, Nebraska. State of Nebraska, County of Cass.

To George F. McCauley, Charles N. McCauley, Doris Tullisalo, James M. Patterson, Donald S. Patterson, and to all persons interested in the estate of Harriet A. McCauley, deceased: On reading the petition of George F. McCauley and Charles N. McCauley, praying that the instrument filed in this court on the 21st day of February, 1922, and purporting to be the last will and testament of the said deceased, may be proved and allowed, and recorded as the last will and testament of Harriet A. McCauley, deceased, that said instrument be admitted to probate, and the administration of said estate be granted to Thomas M. Patterson, as administrator, with will annexed; It is hereby ordered that you, and all persons interested in said matter, may do appear at the County Court to be held in and for said county, on the 18th day of March, A. D. 1922, at 10:00 o'clock a. m., to show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioners should not be granted, and that notice of the pendency of said petition, and that the hearing thereof be given to all persons interested in said matter by publishing a copy of this Order in the Plattsmouth Journal, a semi-weekly newspaper printed in said county, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing.

Witness my hand, and seal of said court, this 24th day of February, A. D. 1922.

ALLEN J. BEESON, County Judge.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE TIRED GIRAFFE

"How You've Grown."

"Well," said Gerry, "you must tell me your story and perhaps I could weep a giraffe tear or two to comfort you."

"Gracious," laughed George, "they'd dry up before they reached the ground."

"Go on with your story," said Gerry. "I am interested in hearing it."

"Well," said George, "it is true that should a giraffe have a sore throat it would be extremely painful and it is true that a giraffe can have a sore throat and that when he does he likes a little sympathy."

"But this everlasting joking about it tires me. Folks come to the zoo and they look at me and stare up. Of course they have to stare up. They couldn't look down and see George Giraffe. No indeed, they couldn't."

"So they look up, and they say, 'Just suppose he had a sore throat?'"

"As if hundreds and hundreds of people hadn't said the same thing. If I had a sore throat I would like to have people feel sorry for me as I said, but I do wish when they looked at me they would say something else beside that."

"Every person who came to the zoo yesterday except two said that, and it did make me tired."

"I felt I would like to ask them how they would like it if they had long necks to have people say, in a laughing tone, 'Well, it would be a great pity if you had a sore throat.'"

"Of course it would be a great pity for a giraffe to have a sore throat, but they seem to think it is funny to make that remark."

"Gracious, can't they think of something else to say?"

"Perhaps they can't," said Gerry. "I believe they can, though," said George. "For I'm told that people are smart. Now a giraffe hasn't much in the way of brains. He makes up for it in the length of his neck and in the length of his legs."

"Can one make up for brains that way?" asked Gerry.

"I don't know whether 'one' can or not," said George, "but I know I can and do. It is enough for me that I have a good portion of some things, even if they're not brains."

"But why, oh why, can't people say something else when they see me? Why can't they talk of the meals they've had? I had, or of the keeper who is so friendly, or of the way I've grown up? That's pleasant, for I grow so fast, but I don't like them to say that in any superior tone."

"I've heard grown-ups say to children, 'My dear, how you've grown,' and I could see how the children did wish they would say something else because they said this in such a fine and condescending tone. I don't like to have them say that to me in that tone either."

"I don't want any one to say, 'My dear, how you've grown,' as though they wanted to be very kind and condescending. I like them to say, however, 'Well, hello George. What a great big fellow you are growing to be. I'm honored to know you and proud to see the way you grow.'"

"Dear me," said Gerry, "you are fussy. I think you ought to make out a list of rules for people and call it."

"What folks should not say to the giraffe."

"I would," said George, "if some one would write it for me in the people's language. And among the rules I'd put the two I've mentioned as I've suggested, and I could think up some other fine ones, too. This is the way the book of rules would start:

"Rule One. Do not talk only of possible sore throats for giraffes."

"Rule Two. Do not speak of how giraffes have grown in a condescending tone." And so on. It would be a good book," ended George Giraffe proudly.

TREATY DISCUSSION STIRS UP A STORM

TEMPESTUOUS HOUR IN SENATE FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE YESTERDAY.

Washington, Feb. 23.—An administration move for a compromise on reservations to the four-power Pacific treaty failed of immediate success today after it had stirred up a spirited debate in the senate foreign relations committee. Coming directly from a conference with President Harding, Chairman Lodge of the committee laid before his colleagues a revised resolution declaring in specific terms that the treaty does not contemplate an "alliance" and drafted to take the place of the blanket reservation which a majority of the committee members had previously indicated they would support.

Those who had sponsored the original blanket qualification immediately opened fire on the new reservation and the hour of debate which followed was described by senators present as the stormiest passage witnessed since the days of the Versailles treaty fight. Senator Borah of Idaho and Senator Johnson of California, among the republicans, and Senator Forrester of Ohio, on the democratic side, were said to have led the opposition to the administration proposal, while all the other reservationists reserved final judgment. In his advocacy of the modified draft, Senator Lodge was seconded by Senators Kellogg of Minnesota and New of Indiana, both republicans.

Without taking action, the committee adjourned until tomorrow, and various groups began conferences in the hope that some more satisfactory ground for compromise might be found to prevent a long reservation debate during committee consideration of the treaty.

The precise attitude of the president regarding reservations was not explained to the committee by Senator Lodge, but members gained the impression that Mr. Harding was not disposed to accede to the blanket proposal introduced several days ago by Senator Brandegee, republican, of Connecticut, and now awaiting action.

It was indicated clearly that the white house would like to see all reservations voted down, but falling in that, they would continue to seek whatever softening appeared possible in the reservation proposals. The text of the new resolution was held in confidence and members of the committee said they had promised not to make it public. It provides briefly that the treaty is not understood by the United States as forming an "alliance" or as committing this government to use of force, or as providing for the exercise of any power by the government except thru the usual processes laid down in the American constitution. Its language follows almost exactly the words of the president in laying the treaty before the senate.

Attacked in the Senate While the committee members were reforming their lines for a renewal of the argument at tomorrow's meeting, the four-power treaty was attacked in the senate by Senator Watson, democrat, Georgia, who coupled a belated birthday tribute to George Washington with a prediction that the proposed four-power arrangement would be an expensive departure from the traditions of the fathers. Germany and Russia, he prophesied, would be drawn together eventually in antagonism to the "quadruple alliance" with the result that a new balance of power arrangement would be established, involving the United States.

Meantime, debate on the Yap treaty between the United States and Japan, which was to have been continued today, was shut off by other senate discussions. Senator Lodge called up the treaty soon after the day's session began and for more than four hours it remained technically before the senate without a single reference being made to it on the floor. It will be brought up again tomorrow.

ATTENDS FUNERAL HERE

Mrs. B. M. Gerlach, formerly Miss Isabel Shrader, and sister, Mrs. Campbell of Omaha, formerly Miss Margie Shrader, were here the past week called by the death of their uncle, John W.
