A GOOD TURN

The inner side of every cloud
Is bright and shining;
And so I turn my clouds about
And always wear them inside out
To show the lining.

There are 233,104 Christian congregations in America.

Congress may be an asset; it also represents a great liability.

The trouble with talking at random is people listen that way.

You can't convince a bootlegger that honest tea is the best policy.

An easy way to get our old ships torn up is send them to the laundry.

When a 1922 model girl mentions needles she means phonograph needles.

Matters are warming up quite a little bit this early on the majority question.

Some are blondes and some are brunettes, and some are blondes and brunettes.

A woman has more faith in a string of beads than a man has in suspenders.

On the contrary, March came in like Mary's lamb, and it's fleece was white as snow.

Humorists seldom see anything funny in their writings and at times others agree with them.

It is easy to learn which side your bread is buttered on. Drop it and see which side hits the carpet.

Every day in the last five years an average of 2,173 persons joined the various churches of America.

Ford will make nitrates at Muscle Shoals. Hope they are cheaper than the telegraph company's.

A New York judge says every man should be boss in his own home. None of us are what we should be.

An optimist puts screens up to files out, a pessimist leaves them down so the files can get out.

The patriotic citizens want the soldier boys to get their just dues, and they are going to get them.

Mr. Lloyd George ought to be careful how he threatens to resign. Somebody might take him at his word.

Only a few days ago people gazed in wonder at the first gas light. Now they gaze in wonder at the last gas bill.

If you quit when bad luck comes
And bewail your fate aloud,
You'll find your silver lining
In the other fellow's cloud.

Another snow.
Maybe it was needed.
It's never too late to grin.

Germany published 32,345 books in 1920.

Once they saw everything after a drink; now they see nothing.

Fred Wagner has hosts of friends who will vote for him for mayor.

The outcome of the income depends on the outgo of the upkeep.

New York politicians fighting against schools are after the kid vote.

All of us make trouble and wonder why the supply exceeds the demand.

Muscle Shoals was a white elephant until Ford asked to start a circus.

Maybe they call it Wall street because many of the firms there are going to the wall.

In voting for county officers, we believe in home first, where the candidates are competent.

Treasury department of the United States handles more money than any other institution on earth.

"Human brain contains 300,000 nerve cells"—news item. There, we have the situation in a nutshell.

That author of 100 stories at the age of 12 will be asking his dad to buy him some monkey glands soon.

We wonder whether the man who claims to have a serum to make people tell the truth took any himself.

Lloyd George wants a ten year truce in Europe. What Europe needs is ten years of hard work for everybody.

The thing a man enjoys about a love affair is that he has found some one at last who believes everything he says.

An 8-inch snow in Kansas is called a blanket by the headline writer. Shucks! That's not a blanket. It's a comfort.

Miss Alpha Peterson has proved a most competent county superintendent, and we can see no necessity for a change.

Now the question is, did the administration or the farm bloc provide the snow that saved the Kansas wheat?

Congress does not look with favor upon the matter of a general tariff reciprocity with Canada—not at the present time.

Experience ranks right along with other great teachers who have a lot of pupils who don't seem to learn much.

Fred Wagner seems to be looming up for mayor. He is making a good landlord. Why can't he make just as good a mayor as landlord?

"What is a harmless flirtation?" A movie advertisement wishes to know. A harmless flirtation is what a man says he has been in when he has been caught flirting.

In New York state a 45 year old school ma'am married her 19 year old pupil. Maybe she couldn't hope to control him except by marrying him.

George Brandes, the leading Danish thinker, declares that "Europe is finished." George is wrong. Europe will come around all right; all that is needed is time.

Now the meddlers want to abolish the electoral college. The electoral college has never been very popular. Probably the reason is that it has no football team.

Those Balkan children who refuse to go to sleep until given prayer books were considered worthy of Associated Press cables, but our own children who resort to similar sleep strikes night after night get not even a local item.

The New York heiress who fled from piano lessons to take a job as a servant upset all theories as to why girls leave home.

The two New Jersey bootleggers who were poisoned by their own wares must have suspected that the stuff was made to drink.

Mr. McAdoo is going to move to California because he says he likes the climate. Well, cold weather does agree with some people.

Mr. Edison's currency idea might be converted to issuing money on phonograph records. They're easily broken into small change.

Irish emigrants settled in Iceland 700 years ago, doubtless realizing that a well trained people can keep any climate comfortable warm.

The disclosure that the innocent public has dropped several hundred millions in bucket shops shows how the drop in the bucket counts up.

Travelers report that American expatriates are found in Greece, which explains where they have gone since the Greek barbers invaded America.

The navy faces the prospect of tying up a number of ships because its coal supply is exhausted. Evidently the navy didn't expect a long winter, either.

That convict who sent Attorney General Daugherty an inlay may be hinting that he is willing to separate himself from Uncle Sam's bed and board.

Another big Bargain Day one week from tomorrow—Wednesday, March 15th. The greatest bargains yet will be offered. Remember the day and date.

Maryland's proposed law to keep tabs on "drivers" and "campaigns" will give the income tax expert a new field for ingenuity with complicated figures.

A woman may not be able to make a political speech, shear sheep or drink out of a jug, but boy, she can accomplish wonders with a flatiron and a 6-penny nail.

It's a great event in a boy's life when he reaches the age of 11 or 12 and buys a sack of candy for his little girl without her asking him.

Whereja get the money?

Some folks fear that America's failure to lend Greece more money will discredit us in the Near East. The loss of some of our lending credit may be just what we need.

The statement that New York's unemployed are trying to create a union prompts some strike-harassed employer to declare that some of the unions try to create unemployed.

Capper-Volstead bill, legalizing cooperative associations of farmers and producers for marketing purposes and exempting them from the operation of the anti-trust acts, has become a law. Now all the farmers have to do is to co-operate and if the millennium doesn't come it will at least not be for lack of legislation.

THE BROKEN PLUNGERS

The harvest time for gathering the financial plungers who bet on the continuation of post war prosperity, is at hand. The stock brokerage houses which went out beyond their depths when prices began to fall have kept afloat as long as possible and many have had to give up the goal.

Since December 1 fifteen firms dealing in stocks in the financial district of New York have gone down. Six firms went down in twenty-four hours last Wednesday. The total liabilities of the fifteen failed firms are at twenty-five million dollars and their assets are supposed to amount to twelve million dollars. The taint of crookedness attaches to some of these firms but not to all.

The failure of these houses dealing in stocks and bonds signifies nothing dangerous in the present financial situation. They overreached themselves in stock speculation. There is more or less of the spirit of gambling in speculative investments in stocks at best. When "the goose hung high" and everybody was making money these houses bet on a protracted spell of prosperity. The legitimate industry can manage to weather deflation, but capital, of which has been over its capital, can go so far and no farther. Even the speculator and the gambler has to face payday some day.

The failures have not in the least affected general business. These firms were in no way directly associated with production or regular production investments.

One of the men who were financially wiped out by one of the failures is John Burke, former treasurer of the United States. His name is found now on much of the money circulated in the United States. The firm went under owing a million, five hundred and fifty thousand dollars as assets.

THE SAFE SALUTE

Kissing as a form of general salutation is quite beyond the pale of discussion in this liberty loving land. Nobody will submit to it. Even the girls of the younger set, who, like girls of every younger set in every country, B. C. or A. D., as the terrible infant of the inflated imagination of the elderly alarmist, doesn't kiss everyone.

If you don't believe it try it and find out the truth.

Moreover youth and health are armor against germs, like beaten breastplate and burnished buckler before the sword's point.

The danger, to public health, lies therefore in the handshake. Nearly anyone will shake hands with nearly everyone. Even persons who are not in politics shake hands quite promiscuously. So, if one may jumble, or juggle, anatomical terms and mix metaphors the heel of Achilles is the palm of the human being of the period.

That may sound reasonable, or even possible, but it is both. Therefore the London Lancet—not London Punch—proposes that a new form of salutation be established, "such as placing a couple of fingers on the forehead."

The forehead?

Whose?

If upon one's own forehead the salutation may be fairly safe. But the hand lest it has become infectious from handling money, as in the case of a member of the intellectual proletariat should not be brought past the mouth to reach the forehead. Germs might be inhaled.

LODGE AND DON QUIXOTE

In likening Henry Cabot Lodge to Don Quixote, Senator Harrison of Mississippi, is far less accurate than in likening George Harvey to Sancha Panza.

In the American ambassador at the court of St. James may be noted not a few points or resemblance with "the round, selfish, self important squire" of Cervantes' deathless tale.

But what is there in Henry Cabot Lodge that may remotely suggest the amusingly chivalrous character of Don Quixote?

Don Quixote was at once noble and amusing.

Don Quixote never once in his adventurous career "sold the truth to serve the hour."

Not once was he guilty of cursing today the bond that he had blessed yesterday.

In vain may the knight's record be scrutinized in search of a single case where Don Quixote sacrificed his intellectual integrity.

Chivalrous after the fashion of his age, Don Quixote scorned to stoop to slander or to defamation of character.

Don Quixote is the last character in fiction that Henry Cabot Lodge may be likened to.

PRESUMPTIOUS

Ignoring Alexander Pope's injunction, "presume not God to scan," a Presbyterian clergyman of Philadelphia informs a curious world that "telepathy is the language of the angels," the more especially of the three persons of triune God.

The Father and the Holy Ghost, says this Quaker authority, have always lacked organs of human speech. Therefore, it follows, says he, that in communicating with each other as well as with the Son, the Father and Holy Ghost employ telepathic means.

This Philadelphia clergyman's logic suggests that of a little girl fresh from a Calvinistic Sunday school where she had been amazed by the teacher's statement that "Jesus of Nazareth was a Jew." "I don't see how he 'could be a Jew,'" said the child, "when every one knows that God, his father, is a Presbyterian."

Pope's rule is a fairly good one.

PROFITS

A railroad propaganda bulletin mourns that the railroads, in the 12 months ended last September 30, earned an average of only two and three-quarters per cent on their investment.

Thousands of business organizations would be in their seventh heaven of happiness if their showing were as good.

Some of the big dinosaurian businesses, which lately have been hanging around receiver's court will second the motion.

"It don't take a man long to bag his pants at the knees, and to make a finely tailored suit look thoroughly disreputable—that's the man of it," avers Dainty Dorothy.

But she goes on to explain that the man who is making use of our cleaning, steaming and pressing services is keeping his clothes in much more presentable condition than when he got acquainted with us. And it doesn't cost much, either.
