PLATTSMOUTH TURN VEREIN HAS CLOSED CAREER

Organized Here in 1887 Local Organization Closes Affairs and Disbanded Sunday.

From Wednesday's Daily. The Plattsmouth Turn-Verein is no more—the affairs of the society having been wound up last Sunday at the meeting of the membership that remains here and the resources of the organization divided among the old guard that has remained with it through the years.

This organization first came into being in 1887 and was formed by a number of the prominent residents of the city of German descent, who in its workings carried out the ideas of athletic training that they had brought from their old home across the sea, where Father Jahn had by his splendid work established the turn-verein as a part of the national life. At the time of the organization the city had for a number of years the Liederkrantz or singing society and later these two societies were merged as one and made a strong and vigorous organization for years.

The hall on Washington avenue was later erected and which at the time was well prepared to carry on the work of the society with a well equipped gymnasium, stage for the presentation of plays and the hall was also used for dancing and meetings of the singing societies.

Some very expert exponents of the art of physical culture have graduated from the old turn-verein and for many years the Plattsmouth turners were known over the state for their skill and prowess and it was here that Otto A. Wurl, who has been physical director in a number of the large schools of the country, secured his first work and he was for years in charge of the work there and with which his brothers were also identified.

The turners at their meeting Sunday decided to dispose of what personal property they still have on hand, they having sold the hall building some time ago to Perry Coffman. To the city schools the turners donated all their athletic equipment, including parallel bars, pole, horse, buck, rings, dumb bells and Indian clubs and a large amount of other material that will come in very handy in stocking the gym at the high school. To the American Legion the turners donated the cases that were used to store the banners of the society and which can house nicely the standards of the World war society.

I. S. Smith and wife of Weeping Water were here today for a few hours enroute to Oecola, Iowa, where they will visit with friends and relatives.

YOUNG PEOPLE ARE JOINED IN WEDLOCK

Miss Mary Jane Dunn of West Franklin, Ill., and Mr. Maldon D. Brown Join Lives.

From Wednesday's Daily.

Yesterday afternoon at the office of County Judge Allen J. Beeson occurred the marriage of Miss Mary Jane Dunn of West Franklin, Ill., and Mr. Maldon D. Brown of this city.

The wedding was very simple and the judge in his accustomed impressive manner pronounced the words that were to bind until the end of time the lives and destinies of these two estimable young people.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown will make their home in the future in this city where the groom is the owner of one of the leading business houses of the city and for the present will have their residence at the Hotel Wagner.

The bride is known to a circle of warm friends here, having been a resident of this city for a number of months and is a lady of much charm of personality who has won for herself the friendship of all those with whom she has come in touch.

The groom has been reared to manhood in this city and stands as one of the clean-cut representative business men of the community. Mr. Brown is a former service man, having been among the Cass county volunteers in the machine gun company of the 6th Nebraska and later in the 125th machine gun battalion during the world war, and since his return has been in charge of the jewelry store that he purchased from J. W. Crabbill. He is a splendid young man and well worthy of the charming helpmate that he has won for his life's companion.

Options Are Loans, Vocational Training, Farm or Home Aid and Land Settlement.

Washington, March 7.—The compromise soldiers' bonus bill, carrying a bank loan provision in place of the installment pay plan, originally proposed and once approved by the house, finally was agreed to today by republican members of the ways and means committee. It was introduced later in the house by Chairman Fordney, who announced that it would not be called up until Monday, if then.

Passage of the bill was predicted by Mr. Fordney. His opinion appeared to be shared by members of the house generally, some of whom said that the final vote party line would disappear. There was some speculation in house lobbies and corridors as to whether he would find occasion to express those views before the house voted.

At the White House, it was said that Mr. Harding had not studied and consequently had not formed an opinion as to the bank loan provision. Some of the majority members of the committee believe that since the new plan defers for three years an large drain on the federal treasury the president will not object to it. They say the compromise will enable needy veterans to obtain cash without the necessity of imposing additional taxes on the general public.

May Come Up Monday

Just when the bill will be called up in the house will not be decided until after Mr. Fordney returns from a trip to the west, on which he started late today. Should the bill be taken up next Monday, the house could proceed to its consideration under suspension of rules which would prevent amendment. If taken up late Mr. Fordney said, there would have to be a special rule. It was expected that this would be so drawn as to give precedence to committee amendments, a plan designed to prevent the opening up of the bill to general amendment.

Mr. Fordney said the entire way and means committee would meet Saturday, when the democrats would have an opportunity to pass judgment on the bill. Meantime the measure will be printed so that they are house members generally can study its provisions.

Aside from the substitution of the bank loan provision for the cash payment plan, the bill as introduced is very similar to that previously passed by the house. The only immediate cash payments proposed are to veterans whose adjusted service pay would not exceed $50. Other veterans could select one of these four options: Adjusted service certificate, combining a loan and insurance plan. Vocational training. Farm and home aid. Land settlement.

TEST OF CHILD LABOR LAW

Washington, March 7.—The child labor law cases, three in number, brought to test the constitutionality of that law, were reached for oral argument in the supreme court today. Solicitor General Beck opened the argument but made only a brief statement before the court adjourned for the day. The supreme court has declined in no less than fifty cases, he stated, to sit as a censor of the morals of congress or enter into an inquiry into its motives when it remained within its delegated powers.

There could be no question, he insisted, of the right of congress to impose an excise tax such as that embodied in the child labor law and the only question at issue was whether the court would inquire into the motive which guided congress in enacting the law.

PRESIDENT ACTS IN PROSPECT OF MINE STRIKE

Washington, March 7.—The belief of President Harding that the coal operators and miners should keep faith and get together before the expiration of the present agreement on March 31, was reiterated today at the White House.

The president, it was said, has informed Secretary Davis that the department of labor should insist on both parties to the present contract observing the provision for a meeting of the operators and miners to renew the agreement before the expiration of the present one.

MUST KNOW HOW TO ATTACK SAYS ARMY BULLETIN

American Troops To Be Trained In The Offensive; Circular Issued to Corps Commanders.

Washington, March 7.—American troops are being trained to attack any enemy, not merely to hold their own ground. A circular issued to corps area commanders, prescribing the general nature of the field work for reserve officers during their fifteen-day training period says: "About one-half of the twelve exercises should deal with the attack, one-fourth with the defense and the remainder with observation and security."

The circular is an elaboration for purposes of reserve training of a basic war department regulation as to all army training. It outlines the "doctrines, principles and methods" of military training from which officers may not depart. Setting out the "doctrine of war," the regulation says:

"Decision to go to war having been made, operations will be carried into hostile territory and every resource of the nation—mental, moral and physical—will be utilized to bring about a definite, speedy and successful conclusion."

"The mission of the army and its primary objective is the destruction of the enemy's armed forces and the regulation of the strategic and tactical offensive be taken and maintained until a decision is reached."

"The strategic and tactical defense is used only as a temporary measure to meet requirements of the principle of economy of force."

"All war plans, training and military operations will be based on the foregoing doctrine and will conform to this mission."

Again under "methods of war," the regulation declares: "All methods must be bold and aggressive and marked with a resolute determination and tenacity to impose our will upon the enemy."

"Whatever auxiliary methods are employed—strategical, tactical, mechanical or moral, the final method is physical encounter with bullet and bayonet—the human element is the decisive one."
