Very pleasant for March.

Idle words often work over time.

Another big sale day has passed and a great success it was.

The average home brew may smell to high heaven, but it tastes like hell.

Looks like other nations are fighting us with dirigibles by selling them to us.

The modern version of an old question is "what are the wild air waves saying?"

We want to know if we really think the Lord is fooled by a death-bed repentance.

The democrats are selling for ex-Governor Overhead for congress. Will he answer?

A wholesale cut in retail prices will come when we get a retail cut in wholesale prices.

Spain has sentenced a forger to 192 years. He certainly will have the time of his life.

"A girl in short dresses is in danger," says a reformer. Shucks, every man looks after her.

One never realizes how good a spending fork looks until it is placed beside a coal shovel.

About 1,000,000 tons of sugar are awaiting the canning season. But home brew has all the jars.

The time is coming, when about the only thing that will scare a horse is to see another horse in town.

This is a faithful saying * * that Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners.—Tim. 1-15.

Have you ever begun looking up at nothing and seen other people start doing the same? Moral: Look up.

Seats near the Mary-Lascelles wedding cost $30; but this wasn't as high as at the Carpenter-Dempsey bout.

Candidates are getting more plentiful, and still they come. Seven candidates for U. S. senator, and about a dozen for governor.

Just as soon as the Egyptians learned they were about to have a government of their own they commenced fighting among themselves. And that's exactly what would happen in the Philippines if Uncle Sam cut them adrift.

"It don't take a man long to bag his pants at the knees, and to make a lady's skirt— that's the way of it," avers Dainty Dorothy.

But she goes on to explain that the man who is making use of our cleaning, steaming and pressing services is keeping his clothes in much more presentable condition than when he got acquainted with us. And it doesn't cost much, either.

With three candidates in the field for governor, listen to the voice of the third party candidate. It will be hard to pick the winner.

All this worry about the soldier bonus is a bit premature, as by the time it crosses the red tape there may be no more veterans.

"Exercise the best cosmetic." And another thing in its favor is nothing fatal happens if it is left off some morning when you get up later.

"Physician says it is dangerous to health to jump out of bed on being awakened." Yep, but if one has health to spare and wealth to get?

Whenever you hear a man sticking to his own opinion with constancy and urging them with vehemence you may safely regard him as stupid.

Eating an apple gave Adam wisdom. And it's about the only way to get wise to a pretty looking apple when that may be deceitful beyond words.

Charley Bryan will come about as near getting the democratic nomination for governor as Edgar Howard will the third party nomination for senator.

Our idea of a polite man, is one who listens with interest to things he knows all about when they are told by a man who knows nothing about them.

Heaven, according to the Kansas Industrialist, is a place where you may be with people you like—and hell is where you have to associate with people like you.

Jibe and jeer as you will, Margot Asquith stands pretty much in line with Sarah Barnhardt, P. T. Barnum and G. B. Shaw as one who gets the grapes of publicity.

If a man who knows how to be governor of Nebraska should announce his candidacy people who don't know how to be governor of Nebraska would defeat him.

From all reports, those spirits the scientists have been searching for up in Nova Scotia must be harder to find than those so many amateurs go over to test opposite Detroit.

Says an exchange: "Plants utilize in food making less than 1 per cent of the sunshine they receive." This information amazes us. We had an idea that nature was thoroughly efficient.

It is a violation of law in some states to advertise tonic that makes hair grow on bald heads, but the law sees nothing wrong with selling it to bald-headed people if they want to buy it.

And now there is a controversy among scientists as to whether the Patagonian saurus shall be taken to a zoo or left at liberty. But perhaps that point can better be settled after the monster is found.

Michael Collins, the Irish Free State leader, declares that St. Patrick's day will see the end of all of Ireland's troubles. Well, if one is going to be an optimist there's nothing like going the whole way.

There seems to be a regular old-fashioned watchdog of the treasury on the job now in Washington, and judging from congress' attitude on the bonus thus far, nobody wants to find out whether his bite is as bad as his bark.

The old-fashioned father who smoked sixteen cigars a day and offered his son a gold watch and chain if he did not smoke until he reached 21, is the grandfather of a girl who at middle age will be opposing the ruling of her physician against intemperate smoking and offering her daughter an automobile to follow her advice instead of her example.

It must be very exasperating to congress to have Secretary Mellon keep remarking, at every step of the bonus legislation, that there is no money in the treasury to make such legislation effective. Congress knows that, but cannot help feeling that if Secretary Mellon was a good fellow he would keep still about it and let congress get a little political credit without cost to anybody.

OLD NEBRASKA TRAILS

While the Oregon trail, reaching out from the Missouri river at Omaha, has been well marked all the way to the Pacific coast, and a few other pioneer trails westward have been marked in some degree for short distances, the fact remains that there are several once important trails leading out from Nebraska Missouri river points that have not been marked.

One of the early trails across the plains led out from Plattsmouth, the first stopping place being the almost forgotten Mullen's ranch, located well out in Cass county. This old ranch was such in name only, consisting of a stockade for livestock and a cottonwood lumber house. Food was obtainable for man and beast, as at all the other ranches across the plains. Mullen's ranch was only about sixteen miles out from the Missouri river, a hard day's drive with oxen. From there the trail led up into what is now Saunders county, and on up the south side of the Platte river to a crossing point not far from Fort Kearney, there to strike the trail out of Omaha, and on west, leaving the Oregon Trail at Julesburg, Colo., for "Cherry Creek" or Denver. This old trail should be marked. Another trail, that has not been marked, nor has the old Santa Fe trail, so far as that portion of it is concerned which branched off and came north through Omaha and on up to old Fort Calhoun, thence westward, presumably along the Oregon Trail, for several hundred miles.

The men who helped make these trails are getting scarcer each year. It is remarkable that any of them are still alive, when one considers the hardships they endured. One of them, now 84, talks of these old trails in this way: "If the future generations are really to know about the pioneer trails across the plains from Nebraska territory starting points, then someone must get busy pretty soon and gather the data. There are only a few of us old-timers left who can look back into the days of the fifties when we drove oxen across from the Missouri river to Pike's Peak (Denver), or can tell of the difficulties experienced in following a sand-blown desert track. Almost any white man can write a history, but there are few who can tell history as it really happened, so far as early Nebraska days are concerned—because most all of us are dead."

The old pioneer was speaking directly of the happenings of the fifties, when real pioneers began to open up the west. He believes, as does this newspaper, that all of the old trails in this state should be honored with appropriate markers.—World-Herald.

HAIL, LADY RHONDDA!

To be elected a member of the house of representatives at Washington is no mean achievement for an American woman. To be seated as a member of the British House of Lords in London is an event of first magnitude in the life of any English woman.

Lady Astor, of American birth, was the first woman to sit in the British House of Commons. Lady Rhondda, daughter of Great Britain's food controller throughout the war, is the first English woman to be honored with a seat in the British House of Lords.

There is no reason why Britain's "Coal Queen" should not "make good." If the daughter is a chip of the old block, character and efficiency will mark her membership in the House of Lords, for the late Lord Rhondda was one of the really useful men of his country.

Lady Rhondda has wealth, intelligence, beauty and charm. For a woman of her character and culture surely there should be room and welcome in the higher branch of the imperial legislature at London. Seated among lords temporal and lords spiritual, the womanly touch needed in the world's life.

A GENEROUS NATION

The Red Cross figures that Americans have given $26,375,000 to relieve was distress in 15 European countries.

Cynics, with acid temperaments, comment that this is only $2.50 for each of us. A liberal estimate.

However, it is equivalent to 500,000 men donating the entire fruits of their labor for a whole year.

That isn't bad, considering the libels about Americans being selfish. It would be a very cold day in August before other nations would do as much for us.

From the appearance of those fellows out in this district for congress it would seem that it doesn't take much to be a candidate.

THE ONLY THING

David Belasco, at a dinner celebrating his 40th year as a theatrical producer, says with the mellowness of age:

"In all these years it stands to reason that I must have learned something, and it is this—it took years to learn it: Love is the only thing that tells in the long run. Nothing else endures to the end."

Love is more than a sentiment. It is the basis of endeavor, the generator of current that keeps us battling upward.

Man guards closely his money wealth. Often he is careless of his greatest treasure, love. Like the orchid, it is delicate, fragile, easily destroyed.

Are you doing you utmost to preserve and intensify the love that is directing your life?

THEY CAN'T ANSWER

Studying astronomy is like all deep stuff. It teaches you that education is only a process of increasing your knowledge of what you don't know, never can know.

Man learns nothing. He merely extends his horizon—enlarges his comprehension of his ignorance.

What is water? Two parts of hydrogen, one part of oxygen. All right what are hydrogen and oxygen? No answer. Edison and Tesla almost work miracles with electricity, but neither can give you an analysis of that silent, deadly, invisible fluid.

The divine wisdom of the Creator is hidden from us. We gradually increase our comprehension of our ignorance. That is called progress.
