NOTHING TO MORE-HEAD POLITICAL TALE

Friends of Former Governor Say He Has Made No Statement as to His Intentions.

Stories in circulation to the effect that Governor Morehead has definitely decided to run for congress and not for governor on the democratic primary ticket were said last night by close friends of the gentleman to be without any substantial foundation. Even those responsible for it admitted they had no statement direct from him, but that they had it from a man who says he knows what Morehead is going to do.

This is the season of the political year when stories are started, often for the purpose of testing public sentiment, and also by men who are trying to flush the game in some way or another.

One man close to the governor said that he had no information from him as to his intentions with respect to any office.

The belief is held by a number of democrats that in the final windup Bryan will be running for congress. Morehead for governor and Hitchcock for senator, all without opposition. They base this on the logic of the political situation, and the fact that great pressure is being exerted to secure complete democratic primary harmony so that the good prospects of November are not dissipated in advance by a party ruction.—State Journal.

FLYING BOATS TO CARRY MAIL

Washington, March 26.—More than a hundred years ago, when the United States mails were being transported by carriers on horseback, the editor of the Freeman's Journal, now the Norristown, Pa., Herald, suggested the use of "flying ships," and today Postmaster General Work declared it was time publicly to acknowledge receipt of the "friendly advice."

In the issue of the Freeman's Journal of March 1, 1882, the editor wrote: "We would advise the postmaster general to avail himself of the novel and the very ingenious flying machine invented by James Bennett, of Philadelphia, by which we conceive, the mails would be transported with mere celerity and their arrival at the places of destination be much more certain than is the case at present."

In approval of the development of the air service mail, Postmaster General Work said: "If that was true then, it is true today, and I wish I might be able to advise this old editor that we are today using the 'flying machine' with splendid results in transporting the mails with safety and celerity."

Postoffice records show that in 1833 a "wonderful feat" was performed in carrying the mail and news dispatches by relays of horses every five miles, between Washington and New York, in fifteen hours.

CRIPPLE TO SEE WIFE BEFORE DIES

James Jameson, Hurt at Eagle Seven Years Ago in Baloon Accident, Has Short Time to Live.

Council Bluffs, Ia., March 27.—With only four weeks to live, according to his doctors, James Jameson, forty-one, whose parachute failed to open in a 1,000 foot drop at Eagle, Nebraska, seven years ago, arrived here from Minneapolis Saturday on a stretcher, enroute to see his wife who is lying at the point of death in a hospital at Brush, Colo.

He has lived at Minneapolis since the accident. Physicians said nearly every bone in his body was broken. He also sustained a fractured skull.

Two years ago his wife was taken down with tuberculosis and has been confined in the Brush hospital since. Penniless, and realizing death is near, Jameson decided to visit her before the end.

He is knitting and crocheting to pay his expenses. He remains continuously on his back.

He will visit his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Peterson, Bentley, Iowa, a few days and then continue his journey.

LEWIS IS VETERAN STRIKE LEADER

Coming Strike Not the First He Has Participated in—Has Three Strikes to His Credit.

Indianapolis, March 27.—As the leader in the impending nationwide coal strike, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, will enter his fourth big industrial conflict. Unless present indications go awry, he will lead labor's largest strike army in the history of the United States for the strike set for April 1 threatens to call out more than 500,000 workers scattered throughout the United States.

Conflicts between employers and workers in which Mr. Lewis has stood out prominently, are these: The 1919 soft coal strike of 335,000 miners, which was broken by the government, after which the miners got a 24-cent a ton increase in the wages, their largest single pay advance.

The first attempt, made in 1913-14, to unionize the steel industry, Mr. Lewis having charge of the field workers of the American Federation of Labor; the movement failed according to union men because of widespread unemployment.

The great copper strike in upper Michigan during 1913, in which Mr. Lewis, as general field agent of the American Federation of Labor, assisted in the general conduct of the strike.

Strike troubles, however, have been only a small part of Mr. Lewis' work within the organized labor movement. In 1910 at the age of thirty he was elected a representative of the Illinois union miners, and in October, 1911, he became general field agent of the American Federation of Labor, resigning in February, 1917, to become statistician of the United Mine Workers of America. On October 25, 1917, he was elected vice president of the United Mine Workers, and on February 6, 1920, became president, having for a short time previously been the union's acting president.

WAR'S EFFECT ON LAWS IS QUESTIONED

A. O. U. W. Resists Payment, Alleging War Did Not Suspend the Statutes of Limitations.

Were the Nebraska statutes of limitations suspended by the world's war? This question is presented to the supreme court of Nebraska for the first time by the Ancient Order of United Workmen of Nebraska in a suit which resulted in judgment for $2,000 and $250 attorneys' fee against the grand lodge of that organization.

The insurance policy held by an Oteo county man who died in Germany was sued upon in that country. The suit was instituted by Christiana Wirtle, widow of Christian Wirtle. In 1914 this couple went to Stuttgart, kingdom of Wurtemberg, Germany. The husband had been a member of the A. O. U. W. since 1896. He died in Germany, April 28, 1915. Both were citizens of the United States, but resided in Germany. Proof of death was not delivered to the A. O. U. W. until July 30, 1920. Payment was refused then because it was alleged the claim was barred by the statutes of limitations.

The plaintiff alleged she had sent proof of death August 2, 1916, but it was lost or destroyed. She did not learn of this until 1920. Her attorney alleges the statutes of limitations became suspended and did not bar her claim. It is narrated by her that after the first proof of claim was lost or destroyed the submarine campaign of Germany was instituted in 1916, in 1917 the United States declared war against Germany and in 1917 the "Trading with the enemy act" was passed prohibiting intercourse between these nations and all this caused to delay proof of claim or suit.

The A. O. U. W. asserts that the statute of limitations are not suspended by war except in the event of invasion or some other cause that closes the courts to litigants. It alleges that the courts of the United States were open at all times during the war and that an alien property custodian was established by law and that this official had authority to sue for alien enemies whether they were resident or non-resident.

You don't have to coax big and little folks to eat Kellogg's Corn Flakes

Just as soon as you serve Kellogg's you'll note fussy and faded appetites getting mighty sharp; you'll find big bowls being handed back for "just a few more Kellogg's, mother—they're wonderful!"

And, that'll make you glad, for Kellogg's Corn Flakes are a great speed-start for the day's doings! They make for health and happy digestions! Kellogg's are never leathery or tough, but always joyously crisp!

Kellogg's—the original Corn Flakes—will be a revelation to your taste if you have been eating imitations! For your own enjoyment, do this—compare the big, sunny-brown Kellogg's Corn Flakes with other "corn flakes." Eat some of Kellogg's—then try the imitations! You'll realize then why Kellogg's Corn Flakes are the largest and fastest selling cereal in the whole world!

Do more than ask for "corn flakes." Insist upon KELLOGG'S Corn Flakes in the RED and GREEN package! My, but it's worth while!
