

NEBRASKA'S OWN HOLIDAY IS OBSERVED

ARBOR DAY IS HANDIWORK OF ONE OF NEBRASKA'S MOST ILLUSTRIOUS MEN.

This day marked the observance of the day that is distinctly Nebraska's own in the annals of the holidays of the nation—Arbor Day—in which the residents of the nation are called upon to plant trees to replenish the wastages of time in the destruction of the forests and to provide that the beautiful trees planted in our state by the pioneers should not be allowed to remain neglected and the spirit of these early residents preserved in the planting of new trees.

The early residents of this state who came here when the Indians were still dominating this gateway to the west found the prairies of the young territory devoid of the growth of trees that had been so important in the life of the states farther east and only in a few localities was there to be found any growth of forestry that could rightly be so designated. This condition impressed the mind of one of the early residents of the territory—Sterling Morton—who had arrived as one of the early territorial officers and located at Nebraska City. Mr. Morton made the love of nature a great study and the fact that the new country did not possess the beautiful trees of the old eastern states led him to start the agitation for the more extensive use of tree planting to remedy the lack of natural forests. His splendid example led to the gradual co-operation of the people of the territory and when the new state of Nebraska was born the practice of planting public recognition and in 1872 was made a legal holiday in the state when each citizen was asked to plant a tree of some kind that it might grow to maturity and assist in the providing of the needed forestry and timber to the state.

The practice of the Nebraska residents gradually spread over the land and on this, the fiftieth anniversary of Arbor day, President Warren G. Harding has proclaimed the event a national holiday. At lover the land there are held today tree plantings and in many cases the trees so planted are made as memorials to the hero dead of the world war.

IN SERIOUS SHAPE

The reports from the Immanuel hospital in Omaha state that John Kaufman of this city, who has been there for the past two weeks, is in very serious condition and his recovery a matter of the gravest doubt. Mr. Kaufman was suffering from rupture as well as appendicitis and two operations have already been performed in the hope of giving him permanent relief but without success. The wife and mother have been at his side as the condition of the young man has grown worse and the sisters were at the hospital today to be near their beloved brother in his gravest time. The friends are hopeful that he may be able to withstand the crisis of the case but it is extremely doubtful.

JUDGE D. J. GOFF DIES AT MASINIC HOME IN THIS CITY

Well Known Pioneer Resident of Nebraska City and For Many Years Police Judge.

Last night at 12:15 Judge David J. Goff passed away at the Masonic Home in this city at the ripe old age of eighty-nine years and following a lifetime of activity in the history of this part of the state where he has lived for the greater part of his lifetime.

Judge Goff was born in New York February 11, 1833, and at an early day came west to Nebraska City where he entered the Masonic fraternity, being a member of Western Star lodge No. 2 of that city and was the oldest member of the lodge in years. For many years Judge Goff served as the police magistrate of Nebraska City and was one of the well known figures in the life of that place and held in deep affection by the host of friends and associates.

On April 13, 1920, Judge Goff came to Plattsmouth to make his home at the Nebraska Masonic Home as he was in failing health and has spent the last two years in retirement from the activities of life. The body of this old pioneer resident of Nebraska was taken back to the old home last night on the midnight Missouri Pacific train and the funeral service will be held tomorrow.

FRANK LAMBERT HAD LARGE SUM ON HIS PERSON

Sheriff C. D. Quinton On Searching Man Discovers $400 in Bills Sewed in His Shirt.

Yesterday afternoon when Sheriff C. D. Quinton conducted the investigation of the person and property of Frank Lambert, the dead man found at the ruins of the old brewery, he discovered the fact that the dead man had prepared a secret pocket in one of the several shirts that he was wearing and in which he had secreted the sum of $400 in bills of large denominations which had not been located in the first examination of the pockets of the clothing of the man.

This amount will assure the deceased a first class funeral and burial place and relieve the county from the necessity of standing the expense as had been thought would be necessary. No further light could be shed on the whereabouts of the relatives of the deceased and the body will be laid to rest here.

With the funds that might have assured a little comfort to the man in the last moments it was most unfortunate that he did not have the opportunity of securing a little care and a respectable place to spend his last days. From the efforts of the man and the prescriptions that he carried it can be readily seen that he had been a sufferer from heart trouble for some time.

Lambert, who had been making his headquarters in the vicinity of the place where he died, for several days, resided to parties working around the pumping station that his sister residing in St. Louis was quite well fixed financially and also that he had a sister residing at Kansas City. Mr. Sattler, who is a member of the National Identification Bureau, has notified the bureau at Kansas City and St. Louis as to the death and the matter will be taken up with the police departments in the two cities to learn if possible the address of the relatives and get in touch with them. If they are not reached in a few days the body will be buried here.

NEBRASKA MAY GET AN OIL PIPE LINE THIS YEAR

Likely to Traverse Greater Part of State as Result of Opening Up of Naval Reserve.

Washington, April 21.—The contract of the government with the Mammoth Oil company opening up the naval oil reserves in the famous Teapot dome in Wyoming, which was announced recently by Secretary Fall of the interior, probably means a pipe line traversing the greater part of Nebraska, according to information received by Representative Jeffers today from the bureau of mines. The government officials were careful to point out the fact that the route of the line is wholly a matter for the lessee to decide but that a study of their topographic maps would indicate that the logical route would lie along the North Platte and Platte rivers as far as Kearney and then southeast to Kansas City, going not far from Lincoln. The Omaha representative asked whether it would not be possible to run the line by way of this city or at least a branch line from Kearney to Omaha. He was told that the former was not logically indicated and that the latter would depend on the economics of the situation as they appealed to the lessee. It might be cheaper to ship by railroad from Kansas City. At the latter point the new line will tap a net work of pipe lines which can deliver oil as far as the naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba, and any place in northeastern United States. The new pipe line will cost about $26,000,000. It will also tap the Salt Creek oil field adjacent to the Teapot dome, which is at present, owing to lack of transportation, producing only 40 per cent of capacity.

Oil for the navy and the government is to have priority of shipment and the government is to receive royalties ranging from 12 1/2 to 20 cents a barrel. The lessee is to sink not less than twenty wells and to build the pipe line.
