TELLS OF LIFE

AT THE SOLDIERS' HOME AT MILFORD

C. W. Green, Former Resident of Plattsmouth Writes Interesting Letter to Editor.

Milford, Neb., April 27. Editor Journal: As an old timer and a reader of the Journal the writer wishes to note a few items of information for the benefit of the many readers with regard to the soldiers' home here. The home was located at Milford twenty-seven years ago through the influence of J. H. Culver. The original building was intended for a hospital for those seeking health in a changed climate and the use of the Shogo spring waters, the merit of which is widespread throughout the country, and prove an attractive resort to the many thousands who visit here every year to drink at this fountain for pleasure and health. The home now consists of five spacious buildings located on high ground with a view of a beautiful country for miles in every direction. The state has recently built a large three story hospital for the sick and helpless comrades, their wives and widows, not only of the Civil war, but of other wars as well. Many of the residents at the home are now away visiting and will be more or less all through the summer. There are now only about sixty or seventy at the home, the majority of them being in the hospital and not able to leave. They are being well cared for under the state jurisdiction. With the coming of fall the number will gradually increase as those unable to provide for their support thru the winter return to take up their residence at the home.

A word for the town of Milford, which we are told was located by a group of Germans who detested the sight of a soldier and forbade their children to speak to them just at the close of the Civil war. Happily that spirit of hatred has passed away and notwithstanding the beautiful location of Milford it has been slow in growth—almost sixty years old and only numbers in population about 800 inhabitants. It made a much needed improvement last year in the pavement of its principal business street.

There are but few modern conveniences in the town. Milford took its name from the location of a mill at the ford on the Blue river. (Mill-ford)

The tenement houses are old fashioned, built low, and with but little or no foundation. In spite of its lack of modern conveniences Milford is a very desirable town in which to live however, being especially favored as to location.

Here is located a beautiful and well kept cemetery in which many of the old soldiers who die while residing at the home are laid to rest, to await the resurrection. Their graves are designated with appropriate markers and kept up in fine shape.

Some censure is due Milford merchants who impose on the old soldiers in their charges, which are much more than the Lincoln prices for the same class of articles. For instance, Robert's one-half pint of cream sells in Lincoln delivered for nine cents, while in Milford we must pay 15 cents per one-half pint, or the sum of six cents per bottle extortion.

Thanking you for the generosity of your columns in publishing this description of the town of Milford and the soldiers' home here, I am, Very respectfully, C. W. GREEN.

WHAT BARRYMORE THINKS OF 'WAY DOWN EAST'

October 15, 1920.

My Dear Mr. Griffin: I have for the second time seen your picture. Any personal praise of yourself or your genius regarding the picture I would naturally consider redundant and a little like carrying coals to Newcastle. Anyway, I imagine you are so used to it that it would only bore you to death.

I have not the honor of knowing Miss Gish personally and I am afraid that any expression of feeling addressed to her she might consider impertinent. I merely wish to tell you that her performance in "Way Down East" seems to me to be the most superlatively exquisite and poignantly enchanting thing I have ever seen in my life.

I remember seeing Duse in this country when I imagine she must have been at the height of her powers—also Madame Bernhardt—and for their technical brilliancy and great emotional projection done with an almost uncanny simplicity and sincerity of method it is great fun and a great stimulus to see an American artist equal, if not surpass, the finest traditions of the theatre.

I am not in the habit of writing letters of this character and it is only a very rare experience that could impel it.

JOHN BARRYMORE.

FUNERAL OF J. W. SEIVERS HELD SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Methodist Church is Crowded by Old Friends and Neighbors To Pay Their Respects.

Yesterday afternoon at the First Methodist church was held the funeral services of the late James W. Seivers, whose death last Thursday brought a deep sense of grief to the residents of this community. The church was filled with the host of old time friends and neighbors who gathered to pay their last tribute to the memory of the departed and the many beautiful flowers silently attested to the deep feeling of love in which the deceased had been held.

The Rev. John Calvert, pastor of the church, spoke words of comfort and faith to the members of the family and softened their grief with the blessed promise of the Master of the reunion where pain and separation should be no more.

During the service Mrs. E. H. Westcott, Mrs. Ed Roman, J. P. Perry and Don C. York gave two songs, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," and "There is a Land that is Fairer Than Today," while Mr. York sang as a solo, "The Touch of His Hand on Mine."

The pall bearers were the six sons of the deceased and with love and tenderness they laid the father away in the silent tomb to await the dawning of the resurrection morning. To the family in their hour of grief the deep sympathy of the old friends will be extended.

WILL GRADUATE SOON

From Monday's Daily. The World-Herald yesterday contained a very attractive picture of the young women who constitute the graduating class of the University hospital in the trained nurses' school. Among these was Miss Gertrude Roessler, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Roessler of this city, and who is just completing her work in this great state training school. The members of the nurses' training class will go to Lincoln June 5th, where they will participate with the other graduates of the state university in the commencement exercises. There are few more efficient schools of this kind in the country than the great hospital training school that the state of Nebraska maintains at Omaha and their nurses' training department is one that is well attended.

CEDAR CREEK WINS

The Cedar Creek baseball team, under the pilotage of Manager Robert M. Stivers, launched their home season Sunday when they played the team representing Avoca and as the result of the encounter the Cedar Creek team was the winners by the score of 12 to 1. The game is reported as being good throughout and neither team found any reason to "crab" any of the decisions of the umpire, H. J. Inhelder, or any of the plays made during the game. The Cedar Creek team is one of the fast ones in the smaller towns and their showing so far this season has given their backers the most optimistic view of the 1922 season that
