Stole the Baby Chicks

Vandals on last Wednesday night raided the chicken yards of Mrs. Geo. Smith and appropriated one hundred and ten of her fine baby chicks, which they carried away and left the hens which had them still in the coop. Mrs. Smith has been giving much care to the hatching and raising of the chicks in order that she could have an abundance of the young fowls for table use and keep others for the winter laying, but the marauders have controverted her plans and now she has to begin all over again and probably to run the risk of the same fate. However, the bull dog which they have will not be kept in the house in the future and the automatic shot gun will be kept unlimbered for instant use. Better be a little careful when you go the second time.
