Evils of Constipation

Perhaps the most serious of the diseases caused by constipation is appendicitis. If you would avoid this dangerous disease, keep your bowels regular. For this purpose Chamberlain's Tablets are excellent, easy to take and mild and gentle in effect. Weyrich & Hadraba.

Whoooping Cough

This is a very dangerous disease, particularly to children under five years of age, but when no paregoric, codeine or other opiate is given, is easily cured by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Most people believe that it should run its course, not knowing that the time is very much shortened and that there is little danger from the disease when this remedy is given. It has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough with pronounced success. It is safe and pleasant to take. Weyrich & Hadraba.

UNDERGOES OPERATION

George Schoeman underwent a serious operation on his right eye at the Wise Memorial hospital in Omaha last Friday. He thought he had some foreign substances in his eye, and did not give it immediate attention and by the time he went to a physician, the eye was so badly inflamed as to make it difficult to determine what was the trouble. The X-ray showed the injury but the substance could not be located even after the delicate operation, and it is possible that it was absorbed or dissolved.
Mr. Schoeman has suffered greatly but is making good progress and his physician has great hopes of saving the sight, which will be gratifying news to his many friends throughout the county.—Louisville Courier.

MIGHT CANCEL PART OF WAR DEBT, SAYS NEW YORK BANKER

New York Banker Believes it Would Work Well—Suggestion Made at Trade Convention.

Philadelphia, May 12.—Cancellation of some percentage of the inter-allied loans was suggested by Fred I. Kent, vice president of the Bankers Trust company of New York, at the national foreign trade convention here today as a factor that would accelerate the return of trade and commerce thruout the world. Mr. Kent stipulated, however, that such cancellation should be made after agreements as to co-operation and that the percentage of loans cancelled should represent a direct and legitimate war charge to the nations taking part in the cancellation.
"As the war went on," he said, "it turned out that in a large part we were actually loaning to the allies to make it possible for them to save the lives of American boys. After the armistice large sums were spent by the allies from the proceeds of loans which had been made them by the United States for purposes of reconstruction and during the war payments in large amounts were made for civil purposes. Such sums should be deductible."
"Should it be found on examination that some round percentage such as, say, 60 per cent of the loans made our allies can be fairly stated by this country as having gone primarily for their own services and, if we should then come to some agreement with our allies under which their governments would co-operate with this country toward bringing order out of the present economic chaos which exists, the good to this country and to the world would be incalculable."
"Such action on the part of the United States, intelligently carried out, can be relieving some of the obstacles which stand in the way of the return to the normal foreign exchange movements."

Mr. Kent suggested also co-operation with Russia aimed to reduce the menace of the Red army, quick settlement of German reparations, reduction of governmental waste, stoppage of inflation of currency, removal of trade barriers, greater co-operation between capital and labor, elimination of class and national hatreds and increase of integrity and square dealing.
