CIRCUS DEFENDANT IN DAMAGE SUIT

Parents of Lincoln Boy Claim Ringling Brothers & Barnum & Bailey's Circus Took Boy

Trial in a $10,000 damage suit against Ringling Brothers & Barnum & Bailey's circus was begun Monday afternoon in District Judge Shepherd's court. The plaintiffs are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tavinsky, Lincoln people who allege that the circus people, in 1920 hired their minor son, Jacob, and allowed him to leave home where, under the glamour of circus life his morals degenerated, the parents at the same time deprived of the comfort of the son's society and his earnings.

No evidence was taken before court adjourned for the night. The circus is being represented by Attorney A. L. Tidd, of Plattsmouth. The parents are represented by Attorney Wilmer Comstock. In his opening statement the attorney for the plaintiffs stated that when the circus was in Lincoln in September, 1921, Jacob Tavinsky then lacking fifteen days of being sixteen years old, was given a dollar by his mother so he could go to the circus. Later the mother learned that the money had been left at home. The parents are said to have been unable for ten days to locate their son.

They did not see him until August, 1921, when the boy returned with the circus to Lincoln. It is alleged that he has stayed with the show, and has followed the big top about the country. The attorney declared that he could show by the boy's own letters to Lincoln people that his morals had been lowered.

The attorney for the defense declared that the evidence would show that the lad had been ill treated at home, that his father had beat him and called him vile names, and that the lad took refuge with the circus. It is declared by the defense that the boy went home and told his parents that he had secured a job with the circus.

Jacob was in the ninth grade when he left home, it is said by the prosecution, and was known as a clean young fellow.

The Polarine Chart Is Friction Insurance For Truck Owners

A TRUCK owner will insure his property against fire, accidental damage of all kinds, or theft. But how much real thought does he give to that most destructive of all agencies—friction generated in faulty operation?

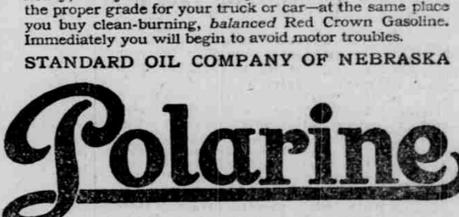

Automotive engineers say that more than 80% of all bills for motor overhauling, repairs and replacements are caused by using low-grade oils or oils of unsuitable body. Friction wears a truck's life out. And yet—to overcome it is so easy.

The complete Polarine Chart is in the hands of all Polarine dealers and it contains a list of tested lubrication specifications for all trucks. This chart tells you what grade of oil your truck needs in each season and under all operating conditions. It is accurate to the last degree. It is 100% friction insurance.

Polarine Oil is the product of the world's largest oil refiners. It retains its body and lubricating quality under all operating conditions. Polarine prevents friction. Its fuel-tight and gas-tight seal in the cylinders assures maximum pressure development, power a-plenty and big mileage per gallon of gasoline.

Polarine Oil is made in four grades—medium light, medium heavy, heavy and extra heavy—but in one quality. Get the proper grade for your truck or car—at the same place you buy clean-burning, balanced Red Crown Gasoline. Immediately you will begin to avoid motor troubles.
