SOW, BUT NOT REAP

Thou shalt sow, but thou shalt not reap; thou shalt tread the olives, but thou shalt not annoy these with oil; and sweet wine, but shalt not drink wine.—Micah vi, 15.

Bobbed hair is still bobbing along.

How do you like the summer so far?

Growing old is a habit. Keeping it up will get you.

Work never hurts a man unless he keeps away from it.

A bachelor is a man who had no auto when he was young.

People are born naked and some of the flappers haven't outgrown it.

The girls have no edge over the boys on the bobbed hair business.

Moving all holidays up one day would keep them out of bad weather.

They are selecting the 12 greatest women in America. Any June bride knows one.

Many callers on the first of the month does not necessarily mean many friends.

In the summer the young man's fancy lightly turns to right and left and all round.

Dry cleaning makes her... according to Dainty Dorothy

"It don't take a man long to bag his pants at the knees, and to make a finely tailored suit look thoroughly disreputable—that's the man of it," avers Dainty Dorothy.

But she goes on to explain that the man who is making use of our cleaning, steaming and pressing services is keeping his clothes in much more presentable condition than when he got acquainted with us. And it doesn't cost much, either.

THE GODS OF ERROR

The United States is now endeavoring to establish a permanent military policy. Such policy is necessarily controlled by the attitude of the congress toward appropriations for the maintenance of the army and navy and for the training of reserve officers.

At no time in our history has the subject of military appropriations been under discussion by the congress that pacifists and those who refused to learn the lesson of history have not raised their voices in protest.

The lessons of the great war have made no impression on these people any more than did the lessons of our previous war impress those who, like their fellows today, immediately after the ending of a war, prophesied that wars would be no more and that even if a war should occur, the United States, in its splendid isolation, would be outside of any theatre the war might develop.

The fallacy of these prophecies and the confounding by history of these prophets in no way prevents a new crowd from following the Gods of Error.

These, unlearned in history's teaching, make emphatic statement that over night a million men will spring to arms and adequately defend the country; this quite regardless of the fact that all who think know that men must be trained to use arms if they would be equal to a trained and armed foe.

The policy of the United States to have a small, highly trained regular army is established and accepted as the correct policy of the nation; but the preparation of the country otherwise against useless destruction from war created by another, is by no means an established policy. On the contrary, congressmen are at all times affected by voices that demand in the interest of economy and to preserve the country against militarism, that the regular army and navy be further reduced and that the training of men outside of the regular army be practically eliminated.

Even before all of the American boys who gave their lives in the great struggle of 1918-19 reach their final resting place in American soil, the lesson of war in which they died are forgotten. The billions of dollars accumulated as a national debt in the winning of the war daily pressing on our people in taxes, fail to show, to those who will not learn, the futility of unpreparedness.

It is to be hoped that out of this present struggle of conflicting thought there may come a wise judgment definitely determining an adequate preparedness and preventing our country from again meriting the contempt bestowed upon it by the German empire before and immediately after our entering the World War because of our pitiful plight in so far as having men trained in the knowledge of modern warfare was concerned, with the exception of our efficient, but small, regular army. That we were finally an effective and victorious force was only made possible by our allies holding our enemy in check until we could prepare. We would be foolish indeed to believe that, in a future war, others will fight our battles while we prepare.

Will Maupin has filed as candidate for governor on the democratic ticket. Mr. Maupin is a full-fledged democrat, and competent to fill the position. That is more than we can say for some of those who have tried for governor.

Are you planning to vacation in the mountains or the seashore or on the shaded front porch of your own trusty home? If you stay at home this summer you will trot with the majority, if it is any comfort to know that.

Sometimes we reach the point of skepticism where we don't believe any seer here can dictate what will be and what won't be in the next world any more than he could dictate what will and won't be in this one.

Only one candidate filed for the republican nomination for governor has come out for McKelvie's code, and that is Chas. H. Randall of Randolph county. Of course, he will expect the governor's support.

The trouble with some motorists is that they use their feet for stepping on the gas instead of their heads for guiding the wheel.
