

Shall Clothing prices go up again?

Last year American wool growers produced 275 million pounds of wool, valued at 65 million dollars.

To protect this industry the Tariff Bill now before the Senate proposes an import tax on raw wool of 33 cents a pound on the scoured content. The added cost to the American public will be between 450 and 400 million dollars.

Your share of this enormous amount of money will be from $3 to $5 on every suit or overcoat you buy.

It would be a hardship if existing conditions made this high tariff necessary, but the facts are the tariff is higher than necessary. Of the 350 million dollars, the total cost, only about 45 million dollars will go to the wool industry in "protection."

Write your Congressman and Senator; let them know that you are anxious to see living costs go down instead of up. Write or wire them today!

NAVIGATION ON MISSOURI RIVER IS QUITE PROMISING

Work on Channel of Stream Seems to Make Prospect for River Travel Better.

The old residents along the Missouri river who recall the days when the river steamers plied up and down the Big Muddy, bearing their loads of freight and passengers, may have the opportunity of once more seeing the river used for the natural means of transportation.
This city at one time was a great point of shipping for the river packets and even at this late day along the banks of the old stream can be found the posts once used in tying up the steamboats. That it may be revived creates a great deal of interest among the residents of the river towns.

It appears now that there is a prospect of bringing about a condition in the channel and the performance of the river that will make steamboat transportation a practical means of traffic during all but the winter seasons and a few weeks when the stream is running at low ebb.
The tendency of the Missouri river is to turn occasionally from its logical and more direct channel and eat its way through the lands that border its course. This not only destroys valuable property but broadens the channel and causes silt in great quantities to be deposited at the bottom making it shallower. A system has been devised and now widely used which prevents the river taking these jaunts across the adjacent bottom lands. This holds the river in its proper course causing it to scour a deeper channel. When the method has been applied to the places where the river tends to elave its bed then a channel will be provided that will admit of steamboat traffic.

The Woods Brothers Construction Company of Lincoln, Neb., has been doing a vast amount of work along the Missouri using this system known as Standard Current Retards. The company first used it five years ago to protect a large farm which it owns at Hamburg, Iowa, that was being cut away by the river. The company's attention was attracted previously to a concrete pile devised and patented by a Burlington railroad superintendent which could be sunk to bed rock regardless of the depth, by a hydraulic process without the stroke of a hammer. Recognizing that this pile could be sunk far below the bed of any river out of reach of scour the company saw that it could be used as a permanent anchorage to which trees could be attached forming retards at such places where the river was cutting the banks. So effective did the method prove in its first application that the company undertook outside contract work for other land owners along the river and for railroads and municipalities.

It soon became evident that not only were the properties along the shore line being protected but as a secondary result the channel of the stream was being deepened. A study of the river was made and the conclusion reached that by the use of retards in series of from three to ten, depending on the length of the cutting section, at intervals of three or four miles the channel could be held and somewhat straightened and made deep enough by the current to admit of steamboat transportation. An estimate made by a widely known engineer indicates that the cost of providing this protection at needed points in continuous succession would be scarcely more than half as much as it would cost to make a hard surface road along the same distance. The work being done for farmer districts, railroads, cities and towns will very largely bring about the result though at various points additional co-operation may be needed and would facilitate progress. Undoubtedly navigation is nearer a realization on the Missouri today than at any time since mid western development got well under way.

FOREST FIRES IN FAR WEST

Olympia, Wash., July 3.—A forest fire situation as serious as any in the history of the state is threatening virtually every county in the state, according to State Forester Fred E. Pape today. Probably forty or fifty new fires have started up over Sunday, he said, and practically all the old fires are reburning, many of them into green timber.
It is marvelous that no serious damage is reported from any particular place, it was said, but a continuation of the present warm weather will put the blazes entirely out of control. Men are working only to keep the fires from spreading into green timber. The first fires in the Olympia national forest of any consequence were reported today. One serious blaze is running into green timber along the Duckabush river, burning out several logging railroad bridges of the Webb logging and timber company as well as one small camp and some equipment.

FOR CONGRESS
I hereby announce my candidacy for Congress in this district for the regular term, subject to the Republican primary.

CURFEW LAW TO BE STRICTLY ENFORCED IN FUTURE

City Ordinance Covering Presence of Young People Under 16 On Street After 9 P. M.

The city ordinance covering the presence on the street of the city's young people sixteen years of age or under after 9 o'clock at night is going to be enforced hereafter and those who fall under the age limit should take heed and govern themselves accordingly.
There has been more or less urging that this measure that is known as the curfew ordinance be enforced and Mayor Johnson has instructed the police force to see that it is carried out to the letter.
The youngsters who make a practice of loitering on the streets until the late hours may find it inconvenient for a time, but it is some thing that is going to be to their ultimate good. Parents should co-operate with the city in seeing that the boys and girls are encouraged to stay at home and not cause a violation of the ordinance with the consequent necessity of the officers ordering the young people to hit the trail for home when the mellow hours of nine o'clock peals forth.

KENTUCKY SENATOR FLAYS PROGRESSIVES OF G. O. P.

New York, July 4.—An attack on the "insane and pernicious saturnalia of socialistic legislation" passed by and being urged upon congress, was made today by Senator Stanley, democrat, Kentucky, in an address here at a Tammany Hall celebration.
Traditional principles of the American government are being abandoned, he declared. In the so-called "progressive" movement and the people are being harassed by innumerable government boards and bureaus.
Criticizing the "progressive wing" of the republican party, he said it was "the most ingenious inventor of new ways and means of invading the vested rights of the states and the liberties of the citizen."

FOR CONGRESS— WILBER ANNESS

Dunbar Man Being Boosted to Fill the Shoes of Frank Reavis— Is Well Known Here.

THE NATURAL AND LOGICAL SUCCESSOR TO HON. C. F. REAVIS. Everywhere you go over the district, you will hear this kind of sentiment: WILBER ANNESS is the natural and logical man to succeed Frank Reavis. Why? There are many reasons.

One is because of the good showing WILBER ANNESS made in 1914, when Mr. Reavis was first nominated and the way ANNESS took his coat off and supported him, never even asking any kind of a favor in return. It shows what a GENUINE MAN Wilber Anness is, unselfish and honorable, "a true sportsman" in the highest sense.
And Wilber Anness is capable; none question his ability. He has had legislative experience, and is one of the finest public speakers in the state, and can hold his own with the best on the floor of congress.

He is a perfect gentleman, unassuming, but pure gold. Vote for WILBER W. ANNESS, the man who deserves to win—AND WILL.—Elmwood Leader-Echo.

Do you want to see clothes prices go up again?

Most of us think they're high enough now; we'd hate to see $4 tacked on to the price of every suit.

That's exactly what is bound to happen if the proposed tariff of 33 cents a pound on wool is enacted into law.

Four dollars might not make much difference to the rich man who pays his tailor $100 to $150 for a suit of clothes, but it's a big item to the farmer and the working-man who is forced to economize and yet likes good materials.

We are not taking any active part in politics; don't believe it is a political issue. It's a vital question of keeping the cost of clothing down. Write your Senator and Congressman and tell them what you think about it.
