The battle of the ballots in Cass county yesterday was one a little out of the unusual and the voters were evidently voting just what they thought without any dictation as all party tickets were featured by writing in names of many candidates not on the ticket and showed a disposition to desire the general prinary ballot where all parties would be on the same ballot.

In this city the progressive party polled practically their entire vote in the county and had far more than the republicans and democrats put together. Their vote reached over 500 in the city but there was little evidence of the movement out in the county to any general extent. On this ticket, A. L. Tidd for congress received 533 votes to 56 for John H. Morehead, Judge Arthur G. Wray carried the county by 350 against 234 for A. H. Bigelow, despite the fact that an effort was made to secure the support for Bigelow and Taylor, and in the race for the progressive governor, Taylor received 338 and Norton 251.

Rex Young for sheriff on the progressive ticket received 578, A. H. Harding's request for support: Duxbury for attorney, 579, and was the leading candidate on this ticket. In the progressive race for county clerk Eugene Lister defeated F. Libershall by 451 to 151.

The most interesting fight of the campaign and the one in which the greatest interest was shown was that of Rex Young for the republican nomination for sheriff against Sheriff C. D. Quinton and for the early part of the returns the auctioneer seemed to be securing a lead that might have given him victory over Mrs. Helen Wallick of Weeping the veteran sheriff, but the later re- lowa.
