BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR RECORD CORN CROP IN NEBRASKA

Rains in July Have Put Fields in Splendid Shape—No More is Needed in Some Counties

Seldom has Nebraska entered into the month of August with so fine a prospect for a bumper crop of corn. Unusually well distributed rains during July, brought the crop through that trying month in perfect condition and little more moisture will be necessary to insure the filling of the ears during the first two weeks of August.

In many localities, especially in the eastern counties, the corn is said to be made now and no amount of sunshine or scarcity of rain will be able to damage the yield. In other portions of Nebraska, another timely rain in early August will insure equally good results. After August 15, corn cannot be injured to any appreciable extent by heat or drought. Experts from the college of agriculture, agree that the corn crop never promised better.

The corn is standing unusually heavy. In places winds the past two weeks have bent and tangled the fields which will make picking difficult and may leave some of the corn laying low. The ears are showing promise of being both numerous and unusually large and if given the chance to fill ought to measure out and above normal yield.

The July rains have kept Nebraska vegetation which generally suffers during that month, in a surprisingly fresh condition. Sweet corn, following the example of field corn, has yielded with unusual abundance and in exceptionally large ears. Garden truck is so plentiful that prices on the retail market in Lincoln are lower than they have been for several years. Truck garden owners around Lincoln complain of a lack of market, because local gardens have furnished such a large part of the city's supply of fresh vegetables.

Tomatoes, beans, peas, cabbages and all other garden truck is flooding the market. The local melon crop is said to promise a record-breaking yield. Pastures and alfalfa which suffered most during the dry period in June which ripened the wheat so rapidly, are recovered and in exceptionally good condition, especially in the eastern part of the state.

Mr. Norton, democratic and progressive candidate for governor in the primary, is certainly a man after our own heart. He says he will give Charley Bryan his undivided support, and do all in his power to elect him. So will we!
