NEWLYWEDS ARE GIVEN A VERY THRILLING RIDE

On last Saturday evening the friends and some of the relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Dremmer conceived the idea that they would show them a good time by giving them a ride such as they had never had before. Along in the afternoon several went to the Ed James farm, southeast of town, and borrowed old Jenny, the white mule, and another friend furnished an old time shay. These things were kept in readiness and about 11 o'clock that evening they arrived at the Dremmer home with the outfit. Leonard had to ride the mule and the bride sedately rode in the buggy while their friends chose the route of travel thru the main street of town. Everybody had a lot of fun, but no one had more fun than Mr. and Mrs. Dremmer for they took it as real sports and laughed as loudly as any one. On top of it all Leonard set up the cigars. Ed was looking for the mule Sunday morning and finally located her. She was happy as could be for the boys were feeding her on bran mash and oats. Leonard says that Ed is to blame for it all for keeping the old white mule, but that if he hadn't had a cigar to come around and get one. It was a jolly good time and revived a practice that was played on newlyweds some years ago.—Elmwood Leader-Echo.

WEDDING BELLS RING AT THE JACKMAN HOME

Miss Mary, Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Jackman, Married on Monday Evening.

The marriage of Mary Elizabeth Jackman to William Robert Brunkow of Murdock was solemnized Monday evening at seven o'clock at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Jackman. Preceding the ceremony, Rev. Everett Jackman of West Chelmsford, Mass., a brother of the bride, sang, "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms." Mrs. Lewis Eddy of University Place an aunt of the bride, played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the members of the bridal party entered the living room and took their places beneath a canopy of yellow and white draped with ferns from which suspended a white wedding bell. Gold-enrods and ferns were used extensively throughout the house. The ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Everett Jackman.

The bride was attired in a white taffeta dress trimmed with pearls. Her veil, which was the length of her skirt, was arranged in the crownless style with a pearl band. She was attended by her sister, Miss Lois Jackman, who was gowned in gold changeable taffeta trimmed with pearls and they both carried arm bouquets of purple and white asters.

Mr. Brunkow was attended by the bride's brother, Prof. Willard Jackman of Havelock as his best man. Only members of the immediate families and Prof. Roy Dillon of Havelock and Miss Ella Gerbeling of Wabash were present.

A one-course luncheon was served after which the bridal party left for Lincoln. The bride's traveling suit was of dark blue French serge and she wore a hat of tangerine velvet.

These two young people are among Elmwood's finest and best. The bride is well known to all and graduated from our schools last year. The groom is a young man of sterling worth and industry. The hearty congratulations of the class of 1922 are also to be students at Nebraska. Miss Lillian Calvert goes to Wesleyan to attend school and Dean Douglas, another of the class of '22, will take up his work at the University of Indiana.

RAIN DOES DAMAGE TO STREET WORK

As Result of Storm Yesterday Afternoon Contractor Coleman Will Have Work to Replace.

The intense heat of the past week was culminated late yesterday afternoon by a very heavy rain that swept over the city and vicinity and brought with it a great relief to the sufferers from the heat and the crops that were not already damaged from the heat will be revived and freshened.

In the city the water did more or less damage to the work of Bert Coleman, the contractor, on the sewer and paving as he had just placed a part of the fresh concrete in the sewers and on the street. The work on the sewer was damaged the greatest of any as there will be at least $200 damages as the result of the water and the cost of having a part of the work done over.

While the rain was not of long duration, it came down very lively and quite a lot flowed down the street and west of 5th street where the paving and sewer is out and created quite a disagreeable condition of affairs.

A PECULIAR ACCIDENT

A most peculiar accident, which, however, happened a year and a half ago, is just now bearing its fruit and causing much pain and anxiety. About that time Glenn Knapp, who has been at The Beacon home about two years slipped and fell on the ice on the back stairway, alighting on his shoulder and his head between two steps, wrenching his neck. A little salve and ointment was applied and nothing serious was thought to be the matter. However, at intervals ever since severe headaches and stiffness have bothered him, and his recent experience in cleaning the water tank brought such acute pain that he visited Dr. Liston of Elmwood. An X-ray picture revealed that the neck had been broken—at least the vertebra misplaced, had grown together imperfectly and the unnatural pressure was the cause of intense pain. A cast is being prepared and will be applied and it is expected it will take two or three months to remedy the trouble.—Eagle Beacon.

MANY ARE PLANNING TO ATTEND UNIVERSITY

Graduates of Last Year from Plattsmouth High School Will Attend Higher Schools.

In addition to those who have been previously named as intending to take up work in the state university, there are an increasing number of the boys and girls who will pursue their studies at the various schools over the country.

Misses Harriet Sullivan, Kermet Wiles and Esther Tritsch are all to attend the University of Nebraska, and Miss Clara Trilety, who was a student last year at the University of Omaha, will take up her work at Nebraska. Ray Bookmeyer and Vern Hendricks of the class of 1922 are also to be students at Nebraska. Miss Lillian Calvert goes to Wesleyan to attend school and Dean Douglas, another of the class of '22, will take up his work at the University of Indiana.

Among the last year students who will continue their work in the higher schools are Carl Schneider, at Hastings college and G. E. Brubaker at the University of Omaha.

PELICANS' WAYS

"I've been given permission to tell the story," said Master Brown Pelican. "There's my cousin, Master White Pelican, and he'd like to tell it too, but the keeper said it was fair to let me tell it. I'm smaller and not quite so beautiful so I have been granted this favor."

"Fair enough, fair enough," said Master White Pelican. "Tell the story, cousin. I'd be glad to hear of myself, too, for you'll tell of me when you're telling of pelicans and their ways, won't you?"

"Of course, of course," said Master Brown Pelican.

"There have been so many silly rhymes made up about us. People don't half take us seriously enough. Now they're so apt to laugh the minute they see us," complained Master White Pelican.

"That is all very true," said Master Brown Pelican. "But still I would rather have rhymes made up about me even if they weren't very good than not to be noticed at all."

"And, dear me, I'd much rather people laughed when they saw me than to have them weep at the sight of me."

"Yes, I'd rather have that, too," said Master White Pelican.

"I like to think I'm so cheerful in appearance that they feel like laughing."

"Well," said Master White Pelican, "I suppose it is because of our great long bills or beaks that they laugh. They are very long."

"It is good to have them long," said Master Brown Pelican. "Besides it is well to be generous in things especially in our bills. That is well, indeed."

"Well, indeed," repeated Master White Pelican.

"Now, Master Brown Pelican," he added after a moment, "do tell your story of the ways of Pelicans."

"You know it all, Master White Pelican."

"Ah, yes," said Master White Pelican. "But I think the next best thing to talking about one's self is to listen to some one else talking about one. If I am not to talk about myself I look forward eagerly to hearing you talk about me—and about yourself, too," he added. "Do begin."

"Well, I will," said Master Brown Pelican. "And as you have allowed me to tell the story I will tell about you first."

"Kind of you, kind of you," said Master White Pelican.

"Well," said Master Brown Pelican, "I think it is fair that I should be allowed to tell the story because I'm smaller, but I don't believe in the smaller person always having everything their own way. The bigger creature has rights, too."

"You're a fair-minded pelican," said Master White Pelican. "Now do not let me detain you in your talking any more."

"I'll begin this moment," said Master Brown Pelican. "In the first place my cousin, Master White Pelican, is one of the largest birds of this continent—and the continent has both South America and North America on it!"

"Master White Pelican has beautiful white feathers, as his name tells you—but he is not wrongly named—no, his name is excellent. It just describes him. He is as white as white can be and he is a pelican. His name, therefore, is perfect and fits him like a glove, as the saying goes. "We're in other words, it's a name that just fits him! He has a golden-amber colored beak or bill which is truly a magnificent one. You have a fine pouch as a pelican should have."

"They say that your family eats as much fish as the sea lions. In fact your family are even greater fish eaters than we are. We're good fish eaters, too. We're handsome, sociable, and enjoy zoo life immensely. It agrees with us and we like the care they take of us. We are at our best when we're full grown and then we're at the height of our good looks, too."

"Pelicans have fine pouches and we can hold the food there, too. It's like a private icebox of our own—only there is no ice in it, ha, ha. That's a good pelican joke."

"Yes," said Master White Pelican, "and all you have to say about pelicans is true. But let us continue talking another time, for here comes the keeper with our luncheon of fish." And all the pelicans rushed toward the keeper and opened wide their bills for their beloved and favorite food.

WIFE OF PRESIDENT IS CRITICALLY ILL

Complications Developing in Case of Mrs. Harding, But Hope Expressed of Improvement.

Washington, Sept. 8.—The condition of Mrs. Harding, wife of the president, was so serious tonight that "recovery is not yet assured," a statement issued at the White House at 9:30 tonight by Brigadier General C. E. Sawyer, the family physician, said.

Complications which developed yesterday and last night, the statement said, makes Mrs. Harding's condition "critical." It was added, "Concern over the illness of Mrs. Harding, wife of the president, was expressed today at the White House, despite the announcement that her condition had improved during the day. In a bulletin to the press Brigadier General C. E. Sawyer, the family physician, said some serious complications developed last night. They abated slightly today, and Mrs. Harding was reported to be resting easier."

The illness was described as hyponephrosis, from which Mrs. Harding has suffered at intervals since a surgical operation nine years ago. On former occasions, however, her illness has yielded more readily to treatment, it was said.

During the past two days, Doctor Sawyer has been in almost constant attendance at her bedside, his son, Dr. Carl W. Sawyer of Marion, O., arriving today for consultation. Dr. Joel T. Boone, naval medical officer on the Mayflower, a staff of laboratory technicians and two trained nurses, also have been in attendance. The president spent part of the morning today at Mrs. Harding's bedside. After the cabinet meeting he again left his office to be with her, and late in the afternoon laid aside his official duties to return to the sick room.

Confidence was expressed by those in attendance at Mrs. Harding's bedside that the next day or two would see a marked improvement in her condition.

STUDENT DENIED
RIGHT TO FINISH
GOSPEL COURSE

Refusal to Study Books He Considered Too Liberal is Cause—Veteran Pastor is Retired.

Walter W. Rust, 34, Wolbach, Nebraska, studying for the ministry, was ordered dismissed by Rev. J. D. Buckner, of Aurora, 49 years in Methodist service, was retired yesterday by the Nebraska Methodist conference.

Rust refused to read some books prescribed in his course of study for the ministry, declaring them to be too liberal. He attempted to read his defense at the conference in Omaha yesterday, but was stopped. He said he would appeal to a higher Methodist tribunal.

Rev. Mr. Buckner was retired after he told his congregation in sermons that he was a progressive Christian, that he did not accept the Bible throughout as inspired, and that the God of the Old Testament was in some respects "cruel" and not the God he worshipped.

"If the practice of Methodist doctrines is as good as the doctrines no one need worry," was a sally which brought applause at the conference last night, during the talk of Dr. N. E. Davis, of Chicago, on "Methodist Missions and Homes."

Dr. Davis called attention to the fact that the board of hospitals and homes is the youngest board of the Methodist church, and jokingly remarked that it is the business of the board to "keep people out of heaven as long as possible." He quoted statistics to show that the board is succeeding to a large extent.

Dr. Davis called attention to the fact that Catholic institutions care for 51 per cent of the sick in America. "That great church is doing its work well," he said, "and we take off our hats to it. There are ten children in Catholic orphanages where Protestant institutions have one child. The Catholics have set an ideal before us."

Ten thousand babies were born in Methodist hospitals last year, Dr. Davis said, adding that Methodist homes care for 4,000 boys and girls each year.

LOOKS AFTER DAMAGE

From Saturday's Daily
Harry W. Smith, the monument man, was a visitor in Lincoln today when he goes to look into the matter of an auto accident in which he was one of the victims on last Tuesday. The accident occurred eleven miles west of Lincoln and was caused when the car of Mr. Smith and that of Mr. Bailey, one of the Lincoln State League ball players, collided. Mr. Smith was coming from Hastings and Mr. Bailey was going west and where they met on the highway there were two cars parked and without any warning the car of Mr. Bailey swung out on the highway just back of the two parked cars and right in the path of the car of Mr. Smith. Harry states that both cars were badly damaged and will require a great deal of work to make them fit for service. The responsibility for the accident, however, seems to lie with the driver of the other car.

Postal receipts show that we are the greatest letter writers in the world. But we already knew that from the stenographers' record in the divorce courts.
