MOREHEAD DEALS BLOW AT MIS-GOVERNMENT

SHOWS DIFFERENCE OF DEMOCRATIC AND REPUBLICAN ADMINISTRATIONS.

From Thursday's Daily.
The district court room was well filled last evening by the voters, both ladies and gentlemen, to hear former Governor John H. Morehead discuss the issues of the campaign and the vital facts of republican misgovernment that are now being felt in every home and by every individual in this broad land of ours.

The governor, accompanied by Hon. W. B. Banning of Union, candidate for state senator, and L. F. Langhorst, county chairman, had just completed an all day trip thru the northern portion of Cass county and in Grandview, the county seat and Cedar Creek as well as South Bend had met a large number of the voters.

At the meeting here Senator Banning presided, being introduced by Col. M. A. Bates, and the next speaker proceeded to discuss the various earnest manner the story of the looting of the state by the tax-eaters at Lincoln. Mr. Banning, who was in the legislature of 1920, touched on the fact that the expenses of the state at that time were $8,000,000 for the two years while under the last two years while under the present administration were $20,000,000. In speaking of the road roads movement, which it is claimed has cost so much, Mr. Banning stated that he had introduced the first bill for the creation of a state highway commissioner, but at that time it had failed to pass. The senator was strongly for good roads but thought that just as good roads could be built for less money per mile than was used by the array of engineers and overseers that were used by the state in this line of work. As the example of costs he showed the federal aid highways from Omaha to the state high south and the Eagle-Palmira project, both of which run through this county and which cost something like $2,500 per mile, while the county board of Cass county had fixed the road from Louisville to Plattsmouth and from Union to Elmwood at an average cost of $100 per mile and was practically just as good a highway as the federal engineers had made a large part of the difference in the cost of making the roads, rather than the actual work. Mr. Banning also read some of the reports made by the state department of finance on running the offices under the code bill, showing in one instance the office of the attorney general, where under Grant Martin, W. T. Thompson and others, the office had cost with all salaries and expenses, $30,000 a year, while in the last year it had cost $128,000 and with no greater number of convicts or results for the difference. Mr. Banning also touched on the tax question, pointing out the inequalities of the law that allowed the property of the citizen, such as lands, live stock and all property which could be seen by the assessor to be assessed at its full value while only stocks and bonds were taxed at only 25 per cent and as the result $27,000,000,000 in property in Nebraska has escaped the proper taxation and as a consequence the farmer and the small property owner had made up the difference.

Mr. Banning also called attention to the democratic county ticket, including Bill Puls, who was representative in the legislature in the 1911 session and who made a clean record; Miss Min Gering, the efficient deputy treasurer, who is the candidate for the office this fall, and Mrs. Kate Minor, candidate for register of deeds.

Governor Morehead in his remarks at the opening spoke briefly of his service as governor of the state of Nebraska and offered the truthful statement that the best proof of a man's service was his record. In challenging the republican claim of control of the state government, Mr. Morehead read the price that Cass county has paid in tribute to the present regime and the amount paid during his administration. In his administration the county had paid to the state $244,000 while in the previous administration it had paid $600,000 in his administration and had given very little more service than the past administrations.

The former governor stated that the code bill had piled up the cost of government to a figure that was almost unbearable and that the people could expect no relief by electing to office the men who had been responsible for the measure.

Governor Morehead stated that the republicans were preparing to circulate at the last moment of the campaign a frantic effort to divert the minds of the voters from the issue of taxation and misgovernment to that of the liquor question by a deliberate misrepresentation of the democratic candidates regardless of whether they were as dry as the Sahara desert or not. In this respect, Mr. Morehead challenged any investigation of his private life and his freedom from all connection with the so-called wet interests. He pointed out that he was a supporter of the REFERENDUM LAW THAT GAVE THE VOTERS A CHANCE TO HAVE A DIRECT VOICE IN THE APPROVAL OF LAWS AND WHICH HAD MADE PROHIBITION POSSIBLE IN THIS STATE.

The democratic legislature had enacted a law more strict than the national prohibition law and it had been signed by a democratic governor. He asked for the position of the republican candidates in their public and private records in this respect. A man that would be elected and go to Washington and vote against the expressed wish of the people of Nebraska, should not be allowed to return to the state, Mr. Morehead stated.

In regard to the soldiers' compensation, Mr. Morehead was strong in his stand and stated that the claim was a just one and he wanted to see it fully covered by levelling a tax on the profiteers who had made their fortunes in the war while the men were away at the front. He also mentioned that the heads of the purchasing boards during the war were largely republican business men and that had stayed the prosecution of war frauds.

The tariff bill that levied a tribute on the people and the efforts to pass a compulsory military training bill by the republicans was also denounced by the governor.

WILL DEMAND THE FULL SERVICE FOR MONEY EXPENDED

William Stohlman of Louisville, Candidate in Second Commissioner District, For Economy.

From Thursday's Daily.
While in the city today William Stohlman of Louisville, democratic candidate for county commissioner in the second district, was discussing the trend of the modern way of dealing with the conduct of public office and "Bill" as he is so well known in the locality where he has spent his lifetime, was decidedly in favor of a real effort being made to see that for every dollar expended from the public treasury there was a full dollar of service given and it elected, Mr. Stohlman stated that he would demand this of the people serving the county.

Mr. Stohlman was born in Cass county fifty-nine years ago and has been a resident of the county since that time. Fifty-five years being spent on the farm and four years in the hardware and mercantile business and the rest of his life has been passed by Mr. Stohlman in active life. He has been successful ones and this ripe experience he will bring to the office of commissioner. At the present time Mr. Stohlman is retired from active business duties and is doing a portion of his time to the problems of the day of which he has long been a close student.

BURGLARY AT STORE IN MYNARD LAST NIGHT

Parties Make Away With Array of Articles and So Far Have Eluded Capture.

From Thursday's Daily.
Another addition was made to the long list of burglaries that have occurred in Cass county in the past year or two, when the store of W. T. Richardson at Mynard was entered sometime during the night and there was taken two Goodrich castings, two inner tubes, six pair of socks, six pair of gloves and a number of other articles according to the check made by the owner of the store and reported to the sheriff.

The burglars broke out a glass in the front door of the store and then reaching in were able to lift the bar holding the door and easily affected an entrance.

Mr. Richardson discovered the burglary this morning and at once called Sheriff Quinton who hurried to the scene, but there was apparently no trace of the burglars or where they had gone and the case is one that will be hard for the officers to solve, and like many of the other robberies, the start that the parties secured has gotten them in the clear.

URGES FARMERS TO WATCH FOR HOG CHOLERA

State Agricultural Department and College Urge Prompt Action on Part of Raisers.

Watch for the first hog to show signs of cholera, advise the United States Department of Agriculture and the state Agricultural college. If the herd is treated at once, it is generally possible to save the herd with but few losses. If the disease however, is allowed to reach all the animals before the serum preventative treatment is applied, heavy losses may be expected. Anti-hog cholera serum is a preventative and not a cure for hog cholera, but its curative properties in increased dosage can not be entirely overlooked in the early stages of the disease.

When a hog dies of an unknown cause the owner should watch his herd closely for at least a week, and if any other hogs in the herd begin to show signs of sickness a veterinarian should be called immediately for the chance are that hog cholera has reached the herd and prompt action in applying the serum treatment is the only thing that will save the well animals. A high temperature ranging anywhere from 105° to 108° F. in a hog that staggers when it walks, is a pretty good indication of hog cholera. Such hogs should be segregated and not allowed to mingle with other hogs or to wander about, for they will spread the disease wherever they go, sometimes in places where it is impossible to disinfect. Hogs that die on the farm should be buried, or preferably, burned, in order to prevent birds, insects and animals that visit the carcass from spreading the disease.

Usually the disease is most prevalent during the fall months, especially in October and November and losses are invariably heavy in herds where owners neglect to immunize their hogs before the disease reaches them, or fail to call a veterinarian immediately on its first appearance.

There has been an unusual amount of vaccination in the state of Nebraska this year, up to date but at that only a comparatively small per cent of the hogs in the state are vaccinated, consequently hog cholera always becomes a serious question every fall among the unvaccinated hogs.

Mr. Schlichtemeler with his lambs topped the market for shorn lambs last Wednesday when he shipped his car to the South Omaha market receiving for what he paid $5 per head, for approximately $10, which represented a good gain, he making a good increase in the weight as well as receiving an advance in the price $12.50 for the flock. He sheared the sheep and was able to get $1.50 per pound for the wool, it selling at two cents premium over the market. This feeding of sheep has proved profitable to Mr. Schlichtemeler, but it required care and good feeding to bring the results.

STILL SEEKING PARENTS OF THE YOUNG WANDERER

From Friday's Daily.
Clyde Ward, the young man who was picked up yesterday by Sheriff Quinton at the J. C. Meisinger farm, is still quartered at the county jail awaiting word from the place of residence of the stranger and advice have been sent out to see if it is possible to find from where he came. The young man is comfortably dressed and from his attire has apparently only been out a very short time from his wanderings and this has led the sheriff to believe that his home may be in the nearby counties. Ward is unable to give a clear account of where he came from and for a time it was thought that perhaps he might be from the institute at Glenwood but investigations so far failed to locate the home of the young man. Authorities are very anxious to get in touch with the relatives or guardians of the young man and any one who might know of any clue as to where he came from should get in touch with Sheriff Quinton.

The work will start at Seventh street and extend eastward toward the Burlington station.

Our fellow townsman, James H. The honor comes as a recognition of the services of Mr. Short for the Patriarchs as well as Odd Fellowship in general and is well bestowed as James H. Short has been a live wire in the order in this city as well as in Omaha where he was for years an active figure and he has worked hard in perfecting the Militant degree of the order in the state.

EDSEL FORD HAS HOPES OF SELLING EVERYONE A CAR

Head of Big Concern, on Inspection Tour, Declares Surface of Industry Only Scratched.
"The surface of the automobile industry is only scratched; there are 110,000,000 people in the United States and all will be prospects for cars—I hope, eventually, Ford cars," declared Edsel Ford, 25, president of the Ford Motor company, who yesterday arrived in Omaha enroute on an inspection trip west. With the youthful president of the big motor concern, which since its establishment many people produced 6,500,000 cars, is W. A. Ryan, general sales manager; E. C. Kanzler, production manager, and R. C. Getzinger, sales manager for the Lincoln car.

"I have been president of the company for four years," said Mr. Ford. "And during that time I have evolved the ambition to give the people of this country the cheapest and best car that can be manufactured. Right now, with our recent lowering of prices, I believe we have reached rock bottom, but conditions are bound to change as they always do, and if the change is in our favor—down will come the price of our product.

"Every time we lower prices we are broadening our field, and giving employment to a greater number of people. It is my aim in life to give as much employment as I can, and if the change is in our favor—down will come the price of our product. "What are we doing with our millions? We are putting them back in the industry as fast as possible. We have an immediate building program on hand of $25,000,000. We hope soon to have not only our blast furnaces, mills, glass factories, timber sources and transportation facilities as part of our production in whole, but every other contributory industry to the manufacture of our cars and lowering of prices. We have an intention of putting any railroad into Omaha or of going into the railroad business generally."

READY CASH FOR FARMERS!

Farmers are beginning to realize the advantage of being able to turn dairy products, hogs, garden truck, chickens, eggs, etc. into ready cash. From the amount of produce brought here yesterday (Bargain Wednesday) it would seem more and more of them are planning their operations to include the items which can be cashed promptly. And it is well to do so.

We're always glad to co-operate with the farmer who wants to diversify. Glad to talk with you about these things.
