TO THE YOUNGER WOMEN

I will therefore that the younger women marry, bear children, guide the house, give none occasion to the adversary to speak reproachfully. For some are already turned aside after Satan.—1 Timothy v. 14 and 15.

The next thing in order is Thanksgiving.

It is estimated that too many want fur coats for Christmas.

Will Harding be a candidate for re-election? Well, Hard-ly.

A war isn't over until the surplus army goods are disposed of.

One way to relieve traffic congestion is to sell autos for cash only.

We have setting up exercises, but don't need sitting down exercises.

Thinking you can whip some one you can't often spoils a beautiful face.

The leaves are falling from the trees; this is the season of the sneeze.

It takes years to get a good reputation and only a few minutes to get a bad one.

Harding has bought a farm. Making it pay will be much harder than his present job.

In Duquoin, Ill., a trained lion bit a miner. Just another evil result of the coal shortage.

These days are too short. Just before you get out of bed it is time you were at work.

In New Britain, Conn., a cat is raising three mice. She evidently expects a hard winter.

A baby born in a flivver recently has been named Henry because it is a bouncing baby boy.

Beauty secret: Closing one eye while looking at a girl often leaves scratches on the face.

More than 300,000 postage stamps are printed daily. Why don't you people pay your bills?

Oh, no, the people of Plattsmouth don't eat much meat, but we support six meat markets.

Strange things happen. A Los Angeles man bought a church to cuss in instead of to sleep in.

Lots of people will interrupt a phonograph record to tell you how much they are enjoying it.

Philip Valentine must pay $552.535 for running over a woman. He certainly was her Valentine.

The new Hudson river bridge will be the most costly bridge in the world except auction bridge.

Some men are like rivers. A river may have a very small head, but it has a great flow at the mouth.

Vacations would be rather nice, at this late day, if we had sense enough to stay at home and enjoy them.

Beauty secret: Talking about the neighbors often makes a woman's hair come out by the handfuls.

Our idea of a spoiled child is one that missed getting two hundred thoroughly good Hekings it ought to have received.

With the election over, both successful and defeated candidates will again become respected members of their communities.

It may be that the extra session of congress was necessary to insure legislation to take care of the extraordinary number of lame ducks.

Harding is getting ready to push the ship subsidy right through congress at the special session, notwithstanding the rebuff it got in the recent election.

The incoming legislature should compel McKelvie to pay Lieutenant Governor Pell Barrows for serving as governor of Nebraska while Mac was gallivanting all over the east as well as the west at the expense of the taxpayers.

All's well that ends the way you want it to.

Not all the eccentric dancers are on the stage.

The most difficult part of any job is getting started at it.

The world gets better, an inventor has made a tickless clock.

Deer hunters in the Ozarks report an excellent kill of farmers' cows.

Life will have its little jokes. The ex-kaiser says he is the happiest man on earth.

Isn't that singer and minister murder mystery some New Brunswick stew?

China wants a constitution like ours in spite of the fact that ours is all run down.

What we are wondering, is whether they are selling us the chestnut or the worms.

Hunt the bright side. If Columbus hadn't discovered America we would all be foreigners.

Some people are agnostic only as regards religion. In everything else they know it all.

More men are going to theatres now. With skirts longer they have no show on the street.

Letters may be sent to Uruguay for two cents now. Bargain hunters wish they knew some one in Uruguay.

Progress note: The great grandson of Daniel Boone is in a New York jail, sentenced for carrying a revolver without a license.

"Patience," said Uncle Eben, "is what you think of other fellow ought to show when you gits in a hurry an' tries to run over 'im."

If people put the same concentration and energy on their work that they do in their worries, their success would be assured.

Speaking of the eternal search for weight reducing exercises, why has no one ever urged a few months at milking cows on a dairy farm?

If a spot on the sun was responsible for the earthquake in Chile maybe the same spot had something to do with the result of last week's election.

Some men are just simple fools, some gosh darn fools and some have a sneaking notion they could make money playing poker if they were given the opportunity.

It will hurt McKelvie worse than anything else when he steps down and surrenders that good old transportation he has been using at the expense of the taxpayers of Nebraska.

The enthusiasm with which the Kemalists are hanging members of the anti-nationalist party in Turkey raises the question whether the Kemalists don't suspect all their enemies of being Armenians.

We never did believe in kicking a man when he's down, but some men deserve still worse and the people would not resent it, either, especially those who are so hard up in the shape of taxes.

A dispatch from Washington says Senator Borah does not smoke, chew, drink coffee or tea; has never tasted liquor and doesn't know one card from another. Which sounds like the preacher at the negro camp meetings who, after one penitent had recited a long list of successful barnyard forays, demanded: "Say, niggab, is yo' confessin' or braggin'."

If Governor-Elect Bryan, in the selection of a good man for state sheriff, will cast his eyes in the direction of Plattsmouth, he will find the ideal man in the person of W. D. Wheeler, who was sheriff of Cass county for four years and county treasurer for four years. In both instances he performed his duty to perfection. As sheriff of the state he will do his duty regardless of friend or foe. That's Billy Wheeler.

KEEP AN EYE ON HIM

Keep your eye on Al Smith, who led the democrats to a glorious victory in New York.

It was a great lambasting administered to the G. O. P. in the Empire state, and Smith is entitled to more credit for it than any other party leader.

He made New York a great governor and he will make her a still greater one during his second term. There are several things about Smith that make him stand head and shoulders above the crowd.

In the first place, he is a regular fellow, frank straightforward, courageous, purposeful and devoid of frills.

He knows what he wants to do, and he has the nerve to go right ahead and do it.

The politicians don't like Smith, but he is a man whom the politicians know they can't afford to fight. Like Roosevelt, he has a way of compelling their support.

When the democrats of New York met in state convention Tammany was against Smith and so was William H. Hearst. Both realized they sought a compromise. He declared that he would not run on any ticket on any platform save of his own choosing; that he wanted men of his own sort on the ticket, otherwise they could count him out.

It was rather a bitter dose, but Tammany capitulated and so did Hearst. Smith was nominated on his own platform, and with his own running mates. Moreover, the elements in the party that had opposed him stepped back in line, and helped to swell the big majority.

Up to this time Smith has not figured in national politics. He has been big only in his home state. But from now on he will bear watching. The democratic party is casting about to find the right sort of a man to give Harding a trouncing two years hence, and it may be that Smith is the man we are looking for.

Certain it is, if Al Smith can get the support of all members of the Smith family, he will have a formidable following right at the start. We have never had a president named Smith. In fact, no man by that name has ever run for the office. Putting a Smith at the head of the ticket might also inspire the support of the numerous members of the Brown and Jones families and encourage them to believe that the office is not closed to folks who bear everyday names.

HE WAS NOT JOKING

An effort is being made to prove that Colonel George Harvey, American ambassador to England, was only joking when he said in a speech in London that women have no souls.

The effort, however, is weak and futile. Colonel Harvey is a solemn ass, utterly devoid of any sense of humor, and he undoubtedly meant just what he said in that speech.

The New York Times of Sunday calls attention to a speech delivered by Colonel Harvey on January 16, 1919, before the Women's University club of New York City, the title of his speech being "Have Women Souls?" This speech will be found in a book entitled "The Power of Tolerance and Other Speeches" by George Harvey and published in 1911 by Harvey's Press. "Have Women Souls?" appears on page 322, and may be of interest. It is there stated:

"There is no recognition in the decalogue of the possession of souls or inherent rights by women. On the contrary, the fact that they are regarded by that fundamental law exclusively as property, in common with oxen and asses, and that they continued to be so regarded in practice to the beginning of the Christian era, bears a practically irresistible implication that they were not endowed with the higher consciousness or any of the innate attributes."

It would therefore appear that Colonel Harvey is giving to the British public in his recent speech simply a rebash of what he had served to the American public thirteen years ago. Stripped of its turgid language what Colonel Harvey said in 1909 is substantially the same as what he said in London the other night.

A lot of folks thought Senator Pat Harrison was too harsh when he bitterly arraigned President Harding for sending George Harvey as ambassador to England. Each time our ambassador opens his mouth he furnishes conclusive proof of the justness of Senator Harrison's arraignment.

It doesn't seem appropriate to call a cabinet resignation a crisis for Germany, though it's a very useful word. Still probably it ought to be conserved for those occasions when Germany has to meet a reparations payment.

A cure for the old timer who is always longing for the good old days, is a glance at the bunch of freaks in any old photograph album of forty years ago.

Hughes is On Job Every Day and Feels Fine.

"Since taking Tanlac I am on the job every day, have gained several pounds and feel better than I have in years," declared David L. Hughes, 2602 S. 11th street, St. Louis, Mo., employee of the American Refrigerator Transit Co.

"I suffered from stomach trouble two years and got so I could hardly eat a thing but what it felt like a jump of lead in my stomach. Gas bloated me until I was in misery for hours. I had terrible headaches, awful pains across the small of my back and was so run down I could hardly drag around."

"Tanlac helped me from the very start and now I have such a good appetite and such perfect digestion I can eat just anything and nothing hurts me a particle. I am only too glad to pass along the good word about Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

CAN HE COME BACK?

Students of British politics—and some of our folks who pretend that they know something about the peculiar brand of the game now being played across the Atlantic are offering the prediction that Lloyd George, deposed premier, will come back, and that he is coming strong. They always say that, of course, especially concerning premiers and pugilists, and the effort of Lloyd George to reinstate himself will be watched with exceptional interest.

With the passing of Lloyd George the last of the Big Four disappears. Orlando was the first to go, then Clemenceau, then the repudiation of Wilson. Each of those men performed prodigiously, but of the four Lloyd George was the Atlas who carried the world on his shoulders and apparently thrived under the burden. After his seven Herculean years he is today as fresh and vigorous as when he assumed the specially created post of minister of munitions and took over the task in which Kitchener had failed. At Manchester, a few days ago Lloyd George carried the fight to his critics with all the nerve of a youngster's love of battling. And because of a temperament and virility so buoyant and inexhaustible the matter of writing the little Welshman's epitaph may well be postponed.

True, his return to power seems problematical, if not impossible, at this distance, but it is yet too early to venture a prophecy. He has no actual party affiliation now, though at Manchester he spoke as a Liberal. He has behind him a record of enormous things done. The difficulties he has met and surmounted, or temporarily shelved, are without parallel. Both at home and abroad the way of his premiership has been an almost uninterrupted series of crises. That he changed front frequently, as necessity required, is undeniable, but the fact that he remained in power so long and so successfully is very nearly a political miracle.

The coalition is dead, but Lloyd George isn't buried.

SCIENCE AND RELIGION

Religion and science have many controversies. One often disagrees with the other. There are stages in the progress of science when science seems to be at variance with religion, yet, as a rule, when science makes sufficient advance it generally confirms religious belief.

Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz, the New York electrical expert, offers this avowal: "All that we can say is that two, science and religion, are not necessarily incompatible, but are different and unrelated activities of the human mind." Had he contented himself with saying that the two "are not necessarily incompatible," his position would be approved without comment.

He goes further and contends that "God and immortality are illogical conceptions" and "science is based on sense perceptions by the laws of logic, and we have no proof of the correctness of either the perceptions or the logic."

God and immortality are thoroughly logical conceptions. Both are as logical as life and mortality. The trouble between science and religion is that science has no faith.

A Timely Suggestion

This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before winter is over and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the first indication of a cold appears and before it has become settled in the system. There is no danger in giving it to children as it contains no opium or other harmful drug. Weyrich & Hadraba.

USING RADIO TO REPORT STOLEN AUTOMOBILES

A radio broadcasting apparatus State Sheriff Hyers on Thursday to spread information over the state in regard to the theft of an automobile which occurred in Lincoln. The car belongs to the Tait Automobile Co., and it disappeared Wednesday.

The state sheriff telephoned the facts to Mrs. George E. Johnson, the wife of Public Works Secretary Johnson, who sent out the information from the radio sending station at her home. Hyers expects to continue using the radio as a means of informing sheriffs and police officers throughout the state when crimes are committed.

The police station at Denver is now broadcasting daily reports of stolen automobiles which are being received over Nebraska.

Your ad will carry punch if you write it as a plain "selling talk" instead of trying to fess it up with frills and exaggerations.

Legal Notice

We recently found abandoned a Dodge Brothers touring car which we brought to our garage in Union and are holding the same here for the coming and going of the owner. This car will be held for thirty days and if not then called for and proved to be the property of the one demanding same, will be sold according to law for the purpose of paying the storage, advertising and other expenses which may be incurred in its care and disposal.

DRIVE IS ON FOR STATE STADIUM

Cass County Quota Fixed at $1,500 for Erection of New Structure at State University.

The drive that is on for the new stadium for the athletic field at the state university is meeting with a hearty response from the students, the alumni of the university and the friends of the university. The state and the proposition is scheduled to go over the top in great shape and the sum of $450,000 that is necessary for the completion of the structure will be realized in a comparatively short time.

In the division of the quota Cass county has been assigned $1,500 as its part and William A. Robertson, '09, of Nebraska university, has been placed in charge of the drive in this county and is getting the proposition kept up in fine shape.

The need for the stadium for the university football games has been keenly felt and has been one of the reasons why the university variety team has not been able to play the leading teams of the east and west. The students of the present crop in some 300,000,000 bushels short of last year and the stocks of old corn carried over are about 100,000,000 bushels smaller than a year ago, so that the available supply for the coming year is fully 400,000,000 bushels smaller than was the case the past year. The surplus of corn accumulated as a result of war urging and post war prices, has been used up and we are once again on a basis of current supply and demand.

Originated in Country

The present price movement has its origin in the country, making the farmers as the price-making factor. The country set the pace by paying more for corn for feeding purposes, in transactions between farmers, than it commanded in terminal markets. Ordinarily Iowa corn is tributary to the Chicago market, but this year western, southwestern and local demand has created a price that continues above a Chicago parity. California prices for corn in Omaha, a price fully 7 and 8 cents above Chicago's relative quotations. Under these conditions there is no material accumulation of corn stocks at terminal markets, and the ordinary commercial demand has to be satisfied with current receipts.

Unusual Profit

The spread between prices of thin cattle and fattened stock in the stock yards shows an unusual profit to farmers from feeding operations while hog prices are such as to net probably a dollar a bushel for corn marketed in that form. Corn has already advanced 17 cents a bushel or more and at a time when the crop is still in producers' hands, so that the farmer and country business generally are getting the full benefit of the improved corn situation.

It seems that McKelvie intends to give Charley Bryan some trouble on assuming the reins of government. But there have been too many sensible republicans elected to the legislature this time for the wily governor to pull the wool over their eyes like he did the last legislature. But he will do everything he can to try to embarrass the incoming governor.
