Mr. and Mrs. George Jones and Charles Smith, of Wakefield, arrived in Murray last Sunday morning for a visit with relatives and were during a portion of the week guests at the home of Herman Smith and Mrs. Kniss and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Jones, the latter who was formerly Miss Lorina Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Smith, were united in marriage March 22nd and came as far as Omaha in their car, intending to drive down to Murray, but finding the roads so very bad came to Plattsmouth where they visited for a time at the home of W. T. Smith, and then came on to Murray where they are spending their honeymoon.

They are now returning to their home in the northern part of the state, where Mr. Jones is engaged in the garage business.

Received Very Severe Wound While Mrs. J. A. Davis was breaking up some barrel staves, one of the pieces rebounded and the sharp end of the same struck her on the forehead just over the eye, cutting a very severe gash which bled profusely. She was alone, Mr. Davis being at the sale and the blood streaming profusely from the wound, looked like the bleeding might prove fatal. She telephoned for assistance and all preparations were made to immediately go there by Dr. Brendel, who would have to go by team as the roads were impassable for a car, and as it was raining and the phone message came saying that Mrs. Davis had stopped the flow of blood and that it would not be necessary for him to come. The doctor prepared some medicine for treating the wound and as Mr. Davis had then been located and apprised of the accident, he immediately departed for home with the medicine. It is hoped that Mrs. Davis will soon be well again and over the sad experience.

Wanted to Trade I have a touring Ford top and body in good condition which I would like to exchange for a roadster top and body. Who wants to trade?—C. A. Trent.

Murray Community Sale The Murray community sale which was held at the Rhoden barn last Tuesday, while the roads were very bad, was a success beyond the expectation of those who had it in hand. This is the first of what it is expected will be made a regular innovation in the commercial life of Murray.

Richard Brendel Very Sick Little Richard Brendel, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Brendel, was taken with ptomaine poisoning last Monday and was in a very critical condition for some time, but late Tuesday he was showing signs of improvement. He has had the best of medical attention and nursing and his improvement is much due to this. His many friends and friends of the family are rejoicing that he is feeling better.

To Celebrate Golden Wedding On April 9th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Young will be celebrated by the family the wedding of this popular couple and all of the children and many other relatives and friends will participate in the festivities of the occasion. The gathering will be held at the Young home west of Murray.

New Firm in Charge During the past week Messrs. Wilson and Scotten disposed of their grocery business and restaurant to Messrs. Oscar Nailor and Earl Lancaster, both of whom are well known here. They have taken charge of the business, and we predict they will make a success of it.

Must Have Been Rightly Named Frank H. Smith, the versatile city editor of the Evening Journal, and a man with clear insight to the future in some instances, named the car which we have been driving, when he first got the beast, "The Black Devil." As time has come and gone, we are of the opinion that he must have known, for last Tuesday, on the way to come to Murray, the animal scooted out of the beaten path into the deep mud and water east of town near the bridge at the A. G. Long place, and as we were endeavoring to encourage the weather, being without chains, we promptly parked the demon there and went on to town in a lumber wagon.

This was the day of the community sale and others coming over the hill east parked their cars on the crest until the road was full. The braver ones came on to town, which was not such a difficult task for those equipped to buck the mud. We secured a pair of chains, as ours were at Plattsmouth, and returning to the scene wallowed about in the mud for a while and with the assistance of Art Copenhaver got them on the car and his satanic majesty backed out of the bog, turned around and climbed the hill and we returned to the chains. Some said we would not tell about the episode, because it was on us, but we have.

DRUG GARDEN OF THE STATE UNIVERSITY

One of the Best in the Country According to Experts Who Have Investigated Many.

The drug-plant garden of the College of Pharmacy of the University of Nebraska ranks as the best state university garden of this kind in the United States. It ranks fifth in the number of different species grown and has about the smallest plot of ground of twenty pharmacy drug-plant gardens in the United States, declares Dr. W. W. Stockberger of the bureau of plant industry of the United States department of agriculture in a bulletin entitled "A List of Medicinal Plants grown in Pharmacy Drug Gardens in the United States." In Nebraska's garden, 110 species of drug plants, collected from all corners of the globe are planted, cultivated, studied and harvested and prepared for use in the pharmacy laboratories for the extraction of drugs. Of the large number of species, about twenty-five are found in Nebraska—some of them are native. Not long ago Dr. Fetter of Cincinnati used nine illustrations from this garden in his work entitled, "The Eclectic Materia Medica—Pharmacology and Therapeutics."

Two other university gardens rank near Nebraska's—those of Minnesota and Wisconsin. These receive support from the federal government, having been selected by the federal pharmacologists for the propagation of drug plants because a field where plants could be grown under northern climatic conditions was desired. The Nebraska garden does not serve only to produce plants but also as a laboratory for pharmacy students who have the added advantage of studying the live plant. The College of Pharmacy produces enough plants to supply its laboratory needs.

Interesting History Among the plants that grow best and most profusely are digitalis or the purple fox glove; golden seal; grindella, which grows almost everywhere; jimson weed, a common home yard plant; and echinacea, or the purple cone flower which is the most widely used drug in eclectic medicine.

In connection with this plant runs an interesting history peculiar to Nebraska. From the Indians the early settlers learned that its root was good for snake bites. The Indians used it for this purpose.

Dr. H. C. F. Meyer, of Pawnee City, took the plant and vainly sought for many years to introduce it as a remedy for snake bite before it was accepted. Echinacea not only serves this one purpose but it is also put to manifold uses in eclectic medicine. This purple cone flower grows wild in Nebraska and a few doctors gather it and extract the drug themselves.

Many persons are misled to believe that there is an immense profit in growing drug plants, says Dean R. A. Lyman of the College of Pharmacy. The fact is, he says, that if a 160-acre farm were planted with one of the species and were harvested it would flood the markets for years. To grow drug plants successfully in the peculiar case in the case of many species. For this reason it is difficult to do on a large scale.

All herbs—like sage, horehound, catnip, the mints, fennel and caraway—grow well in this state, according to Dean Lyman. No attempt has been made to grow drug shrubs or trees. Shrubs are so plentiful where they grow that it would add no advantage to produce them in this garden. Most of the drug trees are acclimated to the tropics.

Synthetic production of drugs is making itself felt, states Dean Lyman. Caffeine, cocaine and camphor are among the drugs successfully produced artificially. In spite of this, many physicians still insist on the drug extracted from plants.

SAUNDERS IS AGAIN IN RELENTING MOOD

Memphis, Tenn., March 26.—Clarence Saunders, president of the Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., today will accept delivery from "shorts" caught in last week's jam which resulted in the suspension of trading in Class A Piggly Wiggly stock from the "big board," of any number of shares they may have to cover their contracts, but his acceptance is to be made with certain reservations.

This announcement was made by Mr. Saunders after he had withdrawn his telegram of Saturday, in which he said that Piggly Wiggly stock purchased from him and in "over the counter" trading since the stock was taken off of the exchange list would not be accepted in delivery. His contention was that trading in the stock after its suspension was against the constitution of the New York stock exchange.

New York, March 26.—The New York stock exchange in a formal statement today replying to charges made against it by Clarence Saunders, president of Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., said no member would be permitted to disavow contracts made before trading in Piggly Wiggly was suspended.

Under the rules, the statement set forth, delivery of stock traded in last Tuesday must be made by 2:15 p. m. today.

WILSON WOULD SELECT SOLON

Former President Asks Governor of Colorado to Name Friend as United States Senator.

Denver, March 26.—Woodrow Wilson, former president of the United States, today asked Governor W. E. Sweet, of Colorado, to appoint Huston Thompson, democrat, to a seat in the United States senate to succeed Samuel D. Nicholson, republican, who died Saturday night.

Thompson now is a member of the federal trade commission. Governor Sweet announced he had received the following telegram from the former president:

"I trust you will not think it an unwarranted liberty if I express the hope that you will select my friend Huston Thompson for the vacant seat in the senate." Thompson is a graduate of Princeton university. He was one of the founders of the first Woodrow Wilson-for-President clubs at the university. At the last democratic national convention at San Francisco he was credited with being one of President Wilson's personal representatives. He was an ardent supporter of William G. McAdoo's candidacy for the presidential nomination at San Francisco.

Governor Sweet said he did not expect to make a hasty appointment.

He thought it would be some time before a decision was reached.

Politicians here pointed out it was the first time that former President Wilson had come so openly for any candidate for office since his retirement from the White House. According to Thompson's friends, he and the former president were closely associated at Princeton. Thompson is 47 years old.

FAVOR INCREASING RANGE SHIP'S GUNS

England Has Advantage Over Other Navies of Fully 3,000 Yards—To Meet Opposition

Washington, March 24.—The United States will have the support of France and Japan in any opposition to the British contention that the elevation of guns on capital ships may not be increased under the terms of the naval treaty, it was learned officially tonight.

Italy, the other signatory to the naval treaty, has not yet expressed any official opinion on the disputed question, but officials believe the Mussolini government will follow the attitude of France.

Both France and Italy, it was said, are virtually compelled to take a stand favoring the increased range for capital ships inasmuch as their principal battleships are far less modern than those of Great Britain, the United States and Japan and without increasing gun range would be far below the 5-5-3-1 ratio laid down in the Washington agreement.

Japan takes the view that the elevation of guns may be increased, provided no change in the general type of mounting, such as is prohibited in the treaty, is involved.

Final decision is left to President Harding as to whether this government will insist upon its rights to increase range of American ships with a parity to the British fleet, which is now asserted to have a superiority of 3,000 yards. At the same time, it is pointed out that the question of the "modernization of the American fleet, is still under consideration."

President Harding and Secretary Hughes, however, are determined there shall be no ground for charges that this government is not living up to the letter and spirit of the treaty, and they are making absolutely sure of their ground before acting.
