The ladies of the Baptist church have arranged to hold their meeting next week on May 10th, Thursday, at the home of Mrs. Charles Garrison, when they are expecting to have a most delightful meeting, and as everyone knows who has been privileged to be entertained at this hospitable home, there is a good time in store for all who may attend.

The Baseball Season is Here

Sure thing, Union had a game and a good one at that. The exhibition game which opened the season here was between Milt's Colts and the team from Julian, with the result that when the scores were tallied up at the end of the somewhat drawn-out game, the visiting team from the south had one more run to their credit than the Colts, notwithstanding that the latter received more encouragement from the bleachers. The season is now fairly opened and any one who wants to may play ball or just take about it, as they choose.

ST. MARY'S GUILD MEETS

From Wednesday's Daily

Yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Charles Martin, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Edward Egenberger, entertained very charmingly the ladies of St. Mary's Guild at the home on Washington avenue. Owing to the fact that the school entertainment occupied a large part of the afternoon the ladies made their session largely of a business nature and chief among the matters discussed was the proposal to have the West Sisters string quartet and their associate players here for a recital in the near future and which will be open to the public. The West sisters are well known here and are among the most talented musicians in Omaha and their visit here will be enjoyed by everyone.

A pleasant feature of the afternoon was the piano and flute solos given by Mrs. Elbert Wiles and which were artistic and very pleasing to the ladies present.

The hostesses served very dainty and delicious refreshments at a suitable hour which completed a most profitable and pleasant afternoon.

GETTING ALONG FINE

Allie Melsinger, who suffered the fracture of his left leg eight weeks ago while at work on his farm near Cedar Creek, was here today en route to Omaha in company with his brother, Adam Melsinger, and expects to return with the leg freed from the plaster cast in which it has been encased for the past two months. The injured leg has kept Allie from looking after his farm work and the time when he can once more use the member will be a very pleasant occasion for the members of his family as well as himself.

PRACTICE GAME SUNDAY

The Burlington League will hold a practice game here on Sunday afternoon if the weather permits, getting ready for the formal opening of the season which will occur on Sunday, May 13th. The practice game will be between the Plattsmouth and Omaha Burlington teams and promises to be a good and interesting battle with the two teams well balanced. The first regular game of the season will be at Havelock with the Plattsmouth team as opponents.
