HE THAT IS READY TO SLIP

He that is ready to slip with his feet is as a lamp despoiled in the thought of him that is at ease.—Job xii, 5.

Our mistrust justifies the deceit of others.

Life is half spent before one knows what life is.

The smallest fish find their place in the ocean.

He that loses his honesty, hath nothing else to lose.

The man worth while is the man who can smile when life goes like some popular songs.

Nature may have invented war to thin out the population, but man invented motor cars.

A deer, evidently thinking turn about is fair play, chased a hunter out of Canadian woods.

Do you remember who you were worried about this time last fall? We don't. Very few do.

An age builds up cities—an hour destroys them. In a moment the ashes are made, but a forest is a long time growing.

Taxes seem to be the problem of the incoming congress. The taxpayers need relief and they are going to have it one way or the other.

Coolidge and Hughes are to take a hand in European affairs. Be careful, gentlemen, and don't go too far without the consent of America.

A noted musician says that jazz is passing. We refuse to jubilate until we know what will supplant it. Just remember who preceded jazz.

They are hanging the war profiteers in Russia, which sounds attractive, but it may turn out later that the soviet idea of a profiteer is different from ours.

Chicken thieves over in Saunders county got the chickens, but one of them dropped a pocketbook containing $700. The lady of the house is well paid and she isn't worrying about the stolen chickens.

The Rhineland republic will not be able to gain recognition from the United States or Britain while it remains a mushroom sovereignty, it is announced. Mushrooms so often turn out to be something else.

According to a London magistrate a motorist should have at least 12 months' experience of driving before being allowed to negotiate the busy streets of a city. Even then it is hardly fair to those pedestrians who have had 20 or 30 years' experience of walking.

Now that the season for hunting is here, it would be well for sportsmen to bear in mind that they are required to take out hunting permits. This precaution may save you quite a bit of trouble, aside from the fact that it is a formality prescribed by statute.

Chickens live longer on good roads than poor ones, according to farmers who have tried both. Chickens on good roads get educated to traffic and get out of the way. Chickens on roads where there is less traffic get killed before they learn the danger of "honk, honk." Ask any chicken raiser.

Occasionally you hear some pessimist declaring that real estate prices in Plattsmouth are too high, and cannot be sustained. Mother Earth will never see the day in this neck of the woods when it will be worth less than it is today. If you are looking for an investment, Plattsmouth real estate is your best buy.

Here's an idea that hit us all in a heap: Why not put the face of pretty girls on postage stamps, instead of those hard-visaged men who are famous chiefly for hold office? Better still, why not a special issue of postage stamps to reach community, bearing a picture of its prettiest girl? Wouldn't that make things nice for the stamp collectors? And just think how it would boom the sale of postage stamps.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Some people forgive and say they forget, but they never get it out of their minds.

Whatever love has ordained, it is not safe to despise.

When the best things are not possible, the best may be made of those that are.

Package mailed nine years ago has arrived in Seattle. Do your Christmas mailings early.

Man in Lima, Ohio, refuses to wear any clothes at all, so perhaps he has seen the new prices.

An auto spotlight was stolen in Youngstown, O., probably by a man who lost his collar button.

Corn thieves are active in Kansas. Farmers sleep with their shoes on to save corn not corns.

Here's the news from Paris. High heels for men are stylish. We would hate to be in their shoes.

Hitting the ground is much easier than hitting a golf ball because the ground is so much larger.

Shaving every morning is bad, but not too bad. Count the money you save by doing it yourself.

Ohio farmer sells apples at 50 cents a bushel, but we refuse to say it isn't enough apple jack.

King of Bulgaria wants to marry a rich woman. That's easy to do, except you have to be richer.

A case of home brew up in Seattle. Headline on report should have been "Liquor Case Heard."

The days are so much shorter. Just after supper it is dark enough to wear a dirty collar to town.

In New York, Mr. Limburg is a candidate for judge. While not a big cheese they say he is strong.

Keeping within the temperate zone of discussion is the best way to settle the zoning law question.

Too much experience is enough. A man with a wild son in college should get it at wholesale rates.

A white crow was captured in Denver. Our theory is the bird had been smoking too many cigarettes.

One way of becoming thin is to be born that way and afterwards refrain from taking on surplus flesh.

Nearly 60,000 majority for the democratic candidate for governor in Kentucky. Coming back to old times.

D. M. Amsbery, former secretary of state, died of pneumonia in Lincoln Wednesday evening. He was 72 years of age.

The progress of the administration's foreign policy might be registered as perplexed, perfunctory and perfectly blank.

Lloyd George has gone home after convincing the American people that Great Britain made a mistake when he was deposed as premier.

The democrats were victorious in Rock Springs, Wyo., Tuesday for the first time in 23 years. Well, the tables are turning everywhere.

A California man has married twenty-four times, which provokes us to remark that "if there were no heaven, God would create one for a man with a faith like that."

There is not so much difference in humans as some would have us think. Most of us intend to do about what's right, but too many of us don't work hard enough at it.

A scientist says that in a few years sleep will be unnecessary, for its place will be taken by electricity. Fathers who have been paying light bills run up by attractive daughters will regard the scientist's statement as the year's oldest stuff.

TAXES AND PUBLIC

Property owned by the federal government is not subjected to taxation. If public ownership were adopted in the country and the tax free exemption continued, there would be enormous losses of public treasuries, quite enough to force a radical revision of public expenditure or a hunt for new sources of income.

During 1921 railroads paid taxes amounting to $275,128,134. Of that sum $37,176,773 went to the United States government and the remainder, $237,951,361, went to the state and local governments. Public ownership would mean the loss of all that sum to the public treasuries.

There is an increase in taxation paid by railroads. Statistics indicate the total for 1922 will be about $304,000,000. On these properties in 1916 the taxes amounted to $162,474,733. In that year the railroads paid taxes of $681 per mile on track, while in 1921 the taxes per mile had been increased to $1,223.

These are some of the practical questions involved in any campaign for ownership of utilities and transportation. They are of interest to the public because the information has a large value to the taxpayers who will be affected by heavier taxes falling on all property that remains in private ownership.

YOUR OWN BOSS

The Armour meat packing company tells its 60,000 employees they can become silent partners in the business by buying preferred stock. This stock will be sold to employees on the installment plan. It will pay guaranteed dividends of 7 per cent.

Only a few years since the Armour firm was practically "a closed corporation." That is to say, the Armour family owned most of it and controlled all of it.

Observe a straw showing which way the wind's blowing. There's really nothing unusual about the Armour method of letting employees buy an interest in the business. Many businesses already have the same system in operation.

It's the ideal way to save. The method usually is for the employee to subscribe to pay so much a week, then that amount is regularly taken from his pay envelope.

The employee with stock in the business is more loyal and works harder. That's the theory, at any rate, and it averages true. So it's a definite part of the "efficiency" movement.

You never can tell where such a thing, once started, will lead. Take a business employing 100,000 men. If each of them investigated $1,000, there's a fund of 100 million dollars. Quite a fund, that.

Will the day come when employees by their savings, will buy a controlling interest, then gradually take over the business that employs them? An interesting prospect, decidedly a possibility.

OLD DAN'S DEFI

Dan O'Leary, the famous long distance walker, is 82 years old but he challenges all comers, regardless of age, to walk 500 miles for a side bet of $1,000 to $5,000.

Dan's certainly ambitious for his years. He has, of course, lived the life of a professional athlete, nevertheless his excellent condition in old age proves that most of us allow ourselves to become prematurely old by not keeping our bodies in proper physical training.

At 82, the average man dreads walking farther than the corner. O'Leary's greatest stunt, year ago, was walking 1,000 miles in 1,000 hours. Doctors had claimed that such a feat was impossible, that no human body could stand the strain.

Dan did it because he had the "nothing is impossible" attitude. So have all people who accomplish great things.

Our mental attitude toward an obstacle, when we fear it, is apt to hold us back more than the obstacle itself.

All told, Dan O'Leary has walked more than 125,000 miles in contests. And 26,000 of these miles have been covered since 1908 when he passed his sixty-seventh birthday.

You will travel a long way to find a more interesting character or one furnishing more food for thought. Old age comes to all of us, nearly always sooner than it should. We cannot all be Dan O'Learys. But we can keep our bodies in good physical trim by getting plenty of outside exercise and fresh air, and living sanely. That is the only Fountain of Youth—sensible living.

ETERNAL HOKUM

About 200 years ago Richard Bradley published a "family dictionary" in which he said: "To attain an advanced and extreme old age, take three pounds of rosewater, five ounces of orange and lemon peel dried in the shade, nutmeg, clove and cinnamon, of each three ounces; a pound of red roses that have been gathered two days, a pinch of laurel leaves; put all these together with some rosewater, bed upon bed, into a glass of limebeck, distill them very gently with a Bath Mary, and keep the water that comes out for your use."

This concoction, according to Bradley, would prolong life and meantime effect all the cures for infirmities and disorders ever claimed for any patent medicine by a street faker.

There are many home brewers ambitious enough to attempt to manufacture Bradley's formula, no doubt. He had other formulas for living to a ripe old age—and played them up so strongly that it is evident the folks of 200 years ago were as keen for long life as we eager observers of monkey gland experiments.

Life is a merry-go-round, the same old things over and over again in different disguises in succeeding generations.

Death and trouble seem to ignore the campaigns against them. The trouble with these attempts to find a method of making people live 150 or more years is that, even if scientists discovered how, no one would live up to the rules.

It is like going to a doctor. We want him to give us a pill and send us away magically cured. If Doc prescribes starvation diet, a long course of bitter medicine or hard physical exercise, the patient is apt to consider the cure worse than the disease.

After all, we're kidding ourselves about wanting to live 200 years or so. Most of us are ready to quit at 70, tired, bored.

Progressive Americans watch air races. Reactionaries visit King Tut's tomb.

Lookout for earthquakes in California. It is getting a little shaky in that country.

Many fathers can't be stylish because their sons don't wear out their clothes quick enough.

Game is the easiest thing on earth to find. All you have to do is go hunting without a gun.

Henry Ford plans to build a model town which should have about 90 million parking places.

Be careful with a man who is too glad to meet you. He will try to sell you something some day.

A Detroit woman demands $50,000 for her stolen heart, the amount proving her heart is gone.
