PAUL'S PROMISE

Those things which ye have both learned and received, and heard, and seen in me, do; and the God of peace shall be with you.—Philippians iv. 9.

The grand jury is grinding away slowly.

It takes two to make a couple, but only one to make a divorce.

Figures show the war cost 11,000,000 lives, and wasn't worth it.

Fourteen more days until Thanksgiving. How about that turkey?

Beautiful fall weather and farmers are busy gathering their corn crops.

It isn't the rattled sword that menaces the world, but rattled statesmen.

Arguing with a policeman is about as foolish as a dog trying to bite a big automobile.

The best thing about stopping at a hotel is you don't mind if you do get the towels dirty.

Many people have the polish and refinement of a good education without the good education.

Germany is undoubtedly in a bad way, but apparently not so bad yet, as to offer the opportunity the crown prince thinks he sees.

Or, to put it in other words, what Secretary Mellon means is that the United States can save a lot of money next year if it doesn't spend it.

It begins to look as if some fellow might get a lot of votes in a race for congress next year by promising government aid to owners of oil wells.

Humility is general, and the male sex in particular, will award heaps of thanks and gratitude to the person who invents a self-putting-up stove pipe.

Senator Smoot says the sales tax is just a matter of education, which probably accounts for his statement that it will not be enacted at the next session of congress.

Experience has demonstrated that the ultimate consumer generally manages to get skinned sufficiently without the government getting a price-fixing clutch on him.

Children who read something besides their school lessons will continue reading when they are grown. Not all readers acquire understanding; but only readers have true understanding. Fond parents should remember that.

Alas, memory is short. Humanity likes to forget the unpleasant side of life. That is why catastrophes like wars are repeated. One generation, trying to forget, fails to impress indelibly on the minds of the rising generation the frightfulness, sorrow and futility of the battlefield.

Why should we care what they are doing over in Germany? Let them have the Kaiser if they want him, or the crown prince either, as their ruler. They made all their trouble, now let them get out of it the best way they can. If nothing will do them but a monarchy let them have it.

The drunken automobile driver is a dangerous person. He menaces not only his own life but the lives of all who are on the street or highway or who cross them while he is near. He ignores caution, takes risks, tries to do things that no sober person would think of attempting, pays no attention to speed limits and ultimately comes to grief.

Taxes last year took an average of $64 from every man, woman and child in our country. So figures the National Industrial conference board. That would be $320 for a man and wife with three children. The politicians wouldn't hand us a straight bill for so much, so they cleverly arrange a lot of indirect taxation that is passed on to us in the form of higher cost of living. One reason taxes are high: Fifty-four billion dollars worth of property is exempt from taxes. That's almost a fifth of our national wealth.

DODGING JURY DUTY

Relying on what appeared to be a technicality, Kermit Roosevelt, son of the late president, recently asked to be excused from jury duty in New York City. He based his appeal on the fact that he maintained a residence at Oyster Bay, L. I. The court felt otherwise about it and held that if he spent as long as four and a half months a year in the city he was eligible for jury duty. Mr. Roosevelt, who also has a home in New York City, thereupon withdrew his application from the panel and took his seat with the rest of the tatesmen who had been called.

Mr. Roosevelt's case is not unlike those of hundreds of others who consider themselves good Americans. Year in and year out they knowingly or unknowingly evade and avoid some measure of their civic duties. In the sheer magnitude of numbers many of us seem to have forgotten that our individual civic responsibility is one whit less than it was. As we have said before, most of us are too ready to share the benefits of government without lending a helping hand in the orderly processes.

Jury duty is not always pleasant. Doubtless most men and women who act on juries really sacrifice something serving on panels. On the other hand, it is no less true that they gain something worth while. We are accustomed to look upon the jury system as one of the bulwarks of safety and with good reason. In our hour of need we are always glad to take advantage of it. That is all the more reason why we should be willing to serve when we are summoned unless there is some excuse of far more importance than our own taste and convenience.

EXILE KINGS

At any rate we seem destined to see another chapter added to the exile tradition. For more than half a century the Stuart pretenders kept their cause alive in Britain. As late as 1745, fifty-seven years after the flight of James II, his heir was able to raise an armed rebellion in Scotland. Voltaire, in "Candide," gives us a picture of nearly a dozen exiled kings in one tavern room, and, while they didn't have the price of a dinner among them, all had visions of thrones. Finally there is the classic example of Napoleon's return from Elba, and, while it can hardly be called successful, it shows what daring can do. Frederick William probably knows the history of fallen thrones, but, like all exiles, probably thinks he can reverse it. One wonders what the ex-Kaiser's thought of what may be, watching there at Doorn. Anyway, he appears to have left the enterprise to younger blood.

K. C. Knudson, head of the state banking department, thinks that the time has come, in the heavy trek back to prosperity, to sound a note of warning against over-excitement. To insure that "normalcy" which the great corn crop and "other things" appear to be bringing finally into view, says Knudson, Nebraskans must be frugal. They "must spend money only for those things which are absolutely necessary." There must be no "speculation."

Not trusting the farmers, entirely, Knudson directs his appeal to the bankers. The bankers must hold down on their loans. They must keep up their reserves. Money should be loaned for crop-marketing purposes and for the purchase of livestock to consume the crop, but money for automobiles and anything but the most-to-be-done-without necessities must be charily doled out.

There is something of good advice in Knudson's warning. Nebraska wants strong banks, with ample reserves; the depositor has a right to know that his money is safe, and the state banks that pay the money into the guaranty fund to make the losses good have a right to expect that these losses will be kept within the minimum of reason and good judgment.

But to allow ourselves to go to the other extreme, to become paralyzed with fear over the hard memories of the last two or three years, is just as much to be avoided as another era of reckless spending and reckless loaning. Penuriousness isn't "normalcy." And "normalcy" Mr. Knudson admits he is anxious to see return.

A man who works hard and makes some money, who because of the sweat of his brow sees a little profit on the right side of his ledger on January first, is entitled to something more than the "necessaries of life." The economic life of the United States would die—and be just as well dead—if bare necessities were all that it offered to him who toils. It would be better if Mr. Knudson had warned against reckless spending, the kind of spending which forgets all about the proper economy of getting value received, while encouraging normal and rational spending. Only normal spending and normal business will lead back to "normalcy." Frugality of an extreme kind leads just as far away from it as prodigality of an extreme kind.—Omaha World-Herald.

THE OLD WILSON

The radio address of Woodrow Wilson Saturday night, followed by his brief speech from the porch of his Washington home on Sunday proved conclusively that the nation's greatest president is not seeking sympathy—he desires only understanding.

Woodrow Wilson says that our attitude in world's affairs since the armistice has been ignoble, and there is no other word to adequately describe it.

"I have seen fools resist Providence before," he declared, "and I have seen their destruction, as will come upon these again—utter destruction and contempt. That we shall prevail is as sure as God reigns."

That sounds like the old Wilson—the Wilson of war days, endowed by God with wisdom, courage and a determination to do his duty at all hazards.

FORMER NEBRASKAN AWARDED MILLIONS

L. P. Larson, Who Won Suit Against Wrigley for $3,718,000 Damages Was Fremont Boy.

Fremont, Neb., Nov. 15.—Eleven years of waiting while the court has heard testimony considerably dulled excitement that would have followed the announcement here that a former Fremont boy, L. P. Larson, Jr., had been awarded $3,718,000 damages against William Wrigley, Jr., for infringement of a patent on a gum wrapper.

L. P. Larson, Sr., returned Tuesday from Chicago where he had visited his son during the progress of the suit. He was informed today that the Wrigley company would appeal the decision.

PARDON AND PAROLE ABUSE IS CHARGED TO WALTON

Oklahoma City, Nov. 15.—Prosecution in the impeachment trial of Governor Walton today turned their guns on the alleged abuse of pardon and parole authority. They declared there would be no proof that the governor had received bribes, but that they would show he exceeded his legal authority. The prosecution said they will attempt to prove that a pardon was obtained for an imprisoned man by an agent who demanded $5,000 before delivery.

PARTISANS OF EX-KAISER ADVISED HIM TO RETURN

Brussels, Nov. 15.—Some of his partisans who consulted with the former German emperor at a conference at Doorn, according to Le Peuple, declared that he ought to assert his rights and go to Germany. Others, however, considered that the Berlin government, notwithstanding its indulgence toward anti-republican proceedings, could not permit the return of William Hohenzollern, who did not recognize the new order in Germany.
