AGRICULTURE HAS HIT BOTTOM, NOW ON THE UP-GRADE

Cabinet Member Favors Lower Rates on Farm Products—Won't Discuss Railroad Law.

The agricultural industry has hit bottom and is on the up-grade, according to Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, who arrived in Omaha to make an address at the meeting of the American National Live Stock association.

"We are not yet out of the woods," he said, "but conditions are better, and there should be a steady improvement in the future."

The secretary proposed to commit himself on the Esch-Cummings act or give his ideas as to any amendment necessary to give the farmer lower rates. He said he did favor lower rates for agricultural products.

To Explain Packer Merger

"Agricultural products bear a disproportionate high rate," he said. "I haven't prepared any set speech for the convention. I will talk largely on the packer merger and report what the department has done to date. We have examined all the books of the commission companies and are now ready to make an examination of the packers' accounting system."

The agricultural department has also secured a market for millions of pounds of pork abroad by inducing England and The Netherlands to modify their inspection rules, the secretary said, and the department is now negotiating with France.

"It is these modifications which are holding up the price of pork now," explained Mr. Wallace.

Denies Magnus Was Cheated. The secretary laughed heartily, when the milking contest he won from Senator Magnus Johnson was mentioned.

"I didn't know that the contest was to be held that day," he said. "The senator had asked me to go out and inspect a fine herd of Holsteins, and while we were there the cows were brought out and we went at it."

Mr. Wallace said that Senator Johnson had a square deal and if he found any fault with the contest it was because Johnson didn't like to be beaten. Johnson said his cow was "dry" before he was given it, according to dispatches.

CARNIVAL MAN WANTS CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN

Harold Bushea, of the Lachmann Shows Representing Legislative Com. For Cleanup.

Harold Bushea, representative of the Lachmann Exposition shows, is in Lincoln this week as the representative of the legislative committee of the Showmen of America. Mr. Bushea, who is well known in this city where he appeared last season with the Lachmann Shows, is a strong advocate of the clean up campaign in the show business which was urged by Mr. Purcell of Broken Bow at the meeting of the county fair managers last week.

He called attention to the fact that he was permitted to speak when he requested the floor after Mr. Purcell had spoken and stated that for the past five years a number of those financially interested in the carnival business have been trying to get an organization which would remedy the abuses Mr. Purcell referred to.

He said he agreed with him heartily that there has been a number of shows conducted on lines such as he represents. Also he said that the form of contract that Mr. Purcell wants to all showmen who want to do the right thing. About a year ago the committee referred to was formed and has engaged Thomas J. Johnson of Chicago, an attorney, as commissioner of the committee and has given him more power than Will Hayes has over the movies and Judge Landis over baseball. Mr. Bushea said thru this committee 95 per cent of the grade girls played basketball after school in the school gym. Miss Scott had charge of them.

The first try at the county examinations are to be given earlier this year. The first ones coming Jan. 25. Examinations will be held at Nehawka for the districts surrounding.

All the teachers returned from their vacations feeling fit for work. Miss Reyman spent the week end in Elmwood with her sister who teaches there.

There are three weeks more including this one in the first semester. During the last week examinations will be held.

HOUSE DEMOCRATS NOW IN THE SADDLE

Propose to Follow up Victory in Tax Bill Fight by Pressing Garner Measure—Form Plan.

Washington, Jan. 15.—House democrats prepared today to follow up their advantage in the bill fight gained yesterday by repeal of the rule restricting amendments on revenue measures, with a view to obtaining revision of the bill along the lines of the proposal of Representative Garner, democrat, Texas, and also possibly enforcing some amendments to the tariff law. The latter plan, it was indicated, would not be pressed until the tax bill is disposed of.

Formulation of a definite plan of battle to use the rules revision advantage on the floor when the tax bill comes up in an effort to put thru the Garner proposals occupied minority leaders during the day. Among other revisions of the Mellon bill, Mr. Garner's proposal would provide a maximum income surtax of 44 per cent, applying on $92,000.

Meanwhile the house ways and means committee continued public hearings on the tax measure receiving requests from various business interests for repeal of special and excise taxes. Assaults on the bill under consideration were made in the senate on similar lines.

Senator Curtis, Kansas, a republican member of the senate finance committee, announced he would attempt to find means for a soldiers bonus under the new bill and Senator Edge, New Jersey, introduced a bill to repeal the excise taxes on automobile, trucks tires and other automotive equipment.

In his proposal to provide for the bonus from the tax on theater admissions, repeal of which was proposed by Secretary Mellon, Mr. Curtis presented a revised schedule for such taxes as he estimated would net $77,000,000 annually. He would remove all taxes from admission of 25c or less and fix the tax at 5 cents on those from 25 cents to $1.00 and 25 cents for each dollar or fraction above. Box seats and roof garden cover charges would be subject to a surtax.

The deceased was the mother of William, Edward and John Kelly, prominent residents of the Manley neighborhood.
