MELCHISEDEC

For this Melchisedec, king of Salem, priest of the most high God, first being by interpretation King of righteousness and after that also King of Salem, which is, King of peace; without father, without mother, without descent, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life; but made like unto the Son of God; abideth a priest continually.—Hebrews 7:1-3.

Harry Thaw is sane, and out again.

Did you plant any trees Arbor day?

They've struck one kind of oil at Washington—and that is turmoil.

The style of house that will accommodate two families without trouble has never yet been built.

A Kansas City man was robbed in Los Angeles when he could have stayed at home and had it done much better.

News from London: A wife really hit her husband with a rolling pin. Perhaps it is a quaint old English custom.

A Chicago couple eloped in an airplane. That's the way these days. They fly high at first, but they come down to earth safely.

As we understand it, the Japanese don't want to come here, but they don't want any more caucasians to say that they can't come here.

There is today one encouraging indication that the United States is returning to normalcy. Harry K. Thaw is back on the front page.

Now they are dynamiting clipping vans in Arkansas. Only a few days before some of the boys down there were petitioning Bryan to run again.

Enemies of Hugo Stinnes now see that his death didn't do any good. His children will take up his business interests and run them as he did.

The process that is said to preserve an egg for 100 years can't be anything new. We've sampled storage eggs that must have been preserved that long.

The Washington experts say the income tax is nothing but rates and brackets. The average citizen, however, has encountered another and very sinful feature.

Another old veteran has answered the last roll call. Major J. W. Cress died in Omaha Wednesday evening. The Civil war veterans are going pretty rapidly, and in a few years there will be none to tell the tale. Major Cress was 87 years of age.

Many men are slip-sliding over the state in one capacity or another at the expense of tax payers, in consequence of the code law. The code law is simply a makeshift to get a lot of fellows on the payroll, that's all.

Bascom Slomp has eight hotel reservations at Cleveland for the republican national convention. Well, there is nothing strange in that. Mr. Slomp will be several republicans at one time when it comes to manipulating things for Coolidge around that Ohio town.

Ex-Attorney General Daugherty says he gave up his position in the cabinet rather than "contribute to a reasonable cause." If what he says is true—out with it in full, Mr. Daugherty. "Let no guilty man escape." If there is treason and traitors in the government let the guilty be punished. America is for true Americans.

Managers of the Coolidge campaign are now busy searching the political woods for vice presidential timber. Those whose qualifications for running mate for the president are being discussed are: former Governor Lowden of Illinois; Senator Capper, ansas; Senator Lenroot, Wisconsin; Judge Kenyon and L. J. Dickinson, Iowa; J. Will Taylor, Tennessee; Arthur N. Hyde, Missouri, and Charles G. Dawes, Chicago.

INES TO REMEMBER

To grief there is a limit; not so to fear.—Bacon.

The famous Monroe Doctrine was written Dec. 3, 1823.

France still wants somebody to guarantee her bad debt.

At any rate we shall hear less about the need of business men in government.

Chicago republicans voted 152,632 for President Coolidge and 172,837 for Governor Small.

To stay single: On meeting a girl you don't want to marry, say: "Very pleased to meet you, but I have no auto."

There is nothing new in the bobbed hair bandit. She has only abandoned hearts for banditry's legitimate field.

Much said about the poor farmers again among senators and representatives, but as yet, all they do is talk, talk, talk.

McAdoo gets three and Smith gets twenty-three of the twenty-six delegates from Wisconsin to the democratic national convention.

Before election it is every politician's privilege to see as many reactions to the Washington investigations as he can count.

The Japanese don't like being excluded from this country. Neither did John Barleycorn, but we keep right on excluding him.

Will the president veto the bonus bill? Not on your life at this stage of the game. Election is too close for that sort of business.

Bertram G. Goodhue, designer of our new state capitol, died very suddenly at his home in New York, Wednesday night. Now what?

They say a blinding flash of lightning contains about a dollar's worth of current, but scientists are still figuring up the acreage of the rainbow.

If the shipping board investigators expect to get on deck with a genuine sensation they'll have to unearth evidence of good management.

The code law will be an issue in the state campaign, and the voters will have another chance to express their opinion of the dastardly law again.

Democratic women of Ohio have formed a Newton D. Baker club and launched a boom for the former secretary of war for the democratic nomination for president.

We would rather have Will Hayes' position with the movie management than be president of the United States. It is more pleasant, and the salary is a way the biggest there.

Congress must do something to relieve the farmers, for their votes may be badly needed this fall. They are watching those who are for and against them. Mark that, will you?

What of the Volstead law when ministers in their pulpits declare it is undermining our youth and making millionaires out of the head men who make such a weak attempt to enforce prohibition?

General Pershing for vice president on the republican ticket. That's what Mark Woods says, one of the Nebraska delegates. If the General permits it, out of the way with the governors who want the place.

The Missouri is longer than the Mississippi. The Missouri from its extreme source to the point where it joins the Mississippi traverses 2,945 miles. The Mississippi from extreme source to mouth is 2,486 miles long.

Hi Johnson says the manager of the Coolidge forces is giving out false reports in regard to state delegations to the Cleveland convention. He says Coolidge may be nominated, but his election is a horse of another color.

SAFE IN THE OPEN

Fear not, neither be ye dismayed. The out-of-doors is safe. It will be retained. The White House has said so. "Life in the open," the president has determined, following a prolonged study of pressing problems of the country and of world, "is a great character builder." Possibly that is why the former attorney general was released from his confining duties at Washington. Mr. Coolidge is reputed to have the undemonstrative nature of his native New England hills, but when he beheld the pining spirit of the out-of-doorsman, Denby, chained to a desk and far from the wild, free life of the wilderness, it was too much. The trembling hand loosed the doors of the cage and Denby flew to the open spaces he loved so well—never to return again. Truly President Coolidge is a tender man.

Or it may be that there is another picture that we ought to call to mind in interpreting the announcement of the chief magistrate by which the resources, the resolution and the plighted honor of these United States is dedicated to the proposition that the out-of-doors shall not be moved in the woodshed of plutocracy of the crass industrialism of our fair land. Shade the eye of imagination with the hand of fancy and see if you do not deary the outlines of an earnest man bent intently upon the reading of a book. The book lies open of itself, giving evidence that the page has been well read and often. It is biography. The book is the book of Theodore Roosevelt, the elder. The page is the page on "Getting the Ear of the Populace." There is set down the story of the "Inter-view on Reformed Spelling and the Declaration on Race Suicide," together with many another. There is told how, by giving out "cold" copy to the newspaper boys on Sunday evening, the poor, starved Monday papers leap upon it and give it headlines free of competition such as events of week-days ordinarily beget. It was T. R. who learned the secret of the first page on Monday rather than page fourteen on some other day. The man in our picture closes the book, draws the foolscap toward him and indites his message to the world. It is released on Sunday evening.

Somehow, says the president, the country itself must take the lead. Realizing that so tremendous a subject is filled with dynamite and teetering on the brink of an abyss, he is vague. Other men have been vague. The republican platform was vague on foreign policy. Mr. Fall has been known to be vague in some of his statements in public. Mr. Lodge, forthright and outspoken apostle of advancement that he is, is vague about what to do next. But it is the characterizing distinction of the president that he can take a subject as vague as all outdoors and evaluate, so to speak, vagueness itself. The country is to co-operate in co-ordination, we gather. Probably the out-of-doors under a Coolidgean epoch would be thoroughly ventilated with access to the open air daily and left to the free play of wind and weather. Appropriations to that end aren't in order yet, but the leaven of the idea has not had time to work. In due season the appropriation experts will be able to meet the situation. Co-operate, in the lexicon of the federal union, means to co-operate. The treasury contains treasure trove, and thence will come the money for Bull Creek picnic grounds hereinafter to be annexed to the great out-of-doors by act of congress—assuming that nature overlooking the matter. It is a great movement, and to Mr. Coolidge goes the credit.

A LESSON FOR ADVERTISERS

The other day we saw an article in an exchange which read something like this:

Once upon a time, a man had a furnace which was not heating his home with satisfaction. One day he became angry and going down to the basement stood before the furnace and exclaimed: "Not another lump of coal will you get until you give me more heat." The poor fellow froze to death.

Herein is a lesson for advertisers. Some men put a little ad in the paper and if it doesn't bring the results that he expected, he says: "I won't advertise again until the other ad brings results." So the poor fool starves to death.

For further proof of this look up statistics and compare the figures of failures among advertisers with the figures of failures of non-advertisers—those who freeze or starve to death.

Mr. Gompers thinks if we had light wines and pale beers we would not have any whisky evil which must mean that he has not had any good whisky lately.

WHAT IS YOUR BIG IDEA?

A slang phrase is often an epigram. Peering through its apparently meaningless grouping of words on ediscovers an expression of cleverness, conciseness and age-old truth. There is the question asking frequently and so casually as to seem almost trivial, "What is the big idea?" But suppose each of us asked himself this question seriously and searchingly. Every life depends for success and usefulness on the nature of the thought which rules it. The artist, the writer, the musician, the philanthropist, the merchant, the college president each has found or shall find his true place in life in the nature of the idea that dominates it. Man is cowardly or heroic, worthless or useful, wretched or happy, by this one test—what is the big idea?

Ingredients do not assure good cake or good gasoline
 it's BALANCE that counts

SOME flour, shortening, spice, sugar, salt, eggs and milk do not assure a light, delicious cake. Similarly, gasoline containing all desirable ingredients—low, medium and higher boiling point fractions—may be either first-rate or decidedly inferior motor fuel. In each case balanced proportion is the determining factor.

So-called "improved" gasolines are always deficient in some important particular. If it isn't slow starting and pick-up, it is poor mileage, heavy carbon accumulations or some other big defect. Varying the proportions was tried with Red Crown, but innumerable tests and experiments demonstrated that you can neither add nor take away any fraction of Red Crown and have as thoroughly satisfactory, dependable and economical motor fuel. It is balanced for quick, clean burning, for developing maximum power, for delivering most miles per gallon.

To get the most out of your car drive up to any Red Crown Service Station and get a filling of Red Crown, the balanced gasoline. You'll receive prompt, courteous attention and service, full measure of uniformly high grade gasoline and Polarine motor oils that provide protective lubrication.

LEGAL NOTICE

In the District Court of Cass county, Nebraska. In the matter of the application of Frank G. Hull, Administrator of the estate of Samuel L. Furlong, deceased, for license to sell real estate to pay debts of said deceased.

Order to Show Cause. Now, on this 5th day of April, 1924, comes Frank G. Hull, administrator of the estate of Samuel L. Furlong, deceased, and presents his petition for a license to sell the real estate of said deceased to pay the debts and claims allowed, and it appearing to the Court from said petition that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of the Administrator to pay the debts outstanding against said deceased and the expense of administration and this proceeding, and that it is necessary to sell the whole or some portion of the real estate of said decedent for the payment of such debts or claims;

It is therefore ordered and adjudged that all persons interested in the estate of said Samuel L. Furlong, deceased, appear before me, James T. Begley, Judge of the District Court of said county, at the office of the Clerk of the District Court, in the Court House in the City of Plattsmouth, in Cass county, Nebraska, on the 26th day of May, 1924, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any there be, why such license should not be granted to Frank G. Hull, Administrator of said estate, to sell so much of the real estate of the deceased as may be necessary to pay the debts of said deceased and claims allowed and costs of administration and this proceeding.

It is further ordered that notice be given to all persons interested by the publication of this Order to Show Cause for four successive weeks in The Plattsmouth Journal, a legal newspaper published and of general circulation in said County of Cass.

By the Court.
