The "Moral Risk"

In considering loans, your bank is largely influenced by the moral risk. Bankers in other towns or cities where you are a comparative stranger, will limit your requirements to your cash balance. Sometimes you are entitled to more than that — why not bank in your home town where your moral worth is known and where it will have weight. It's worth thinking about, gentlemen!

When he was home last Sunday he thought to go over and get the hives and when he essayed to do so he found that someone had beat him to it. Trent that they would make a trade in which Mr. Trent was to take the business from the above named firm. The arrangements had been made when lo and behold Mr. Trent and the family were missing from the scene. Inquiries which he had been wont to frequent. People wondered until two days later a letter came bearing the postmark of Norfolk which told of a change of mind of Mr. Trent and saying goodbye to the peaceful little city of Murray for good. Evidently he, like the Arab, quietly folded his tent and faded away in the mists of the morning. Free Lecture Sunday Night Arrangements have been completed by the Rev. W. G. thus engaged one of the outcasts of society, one who had the leprosy, came to him and falling down before him said, "Thou canst make me clean." Christ knew the kind of a disease. He knew its nature and what it did for the unfortunate one who had it and that his hair came out, his finger and toe nails would be eaten off and his nose and ears would disappear, also that his eyes would be eaten out, the bones would protrude from the flesh and finally with the most loathsome disease of a living death, the flesh would rot and drop off and finally death would ensue. Well has this disease been taken as a type of sin, for it is sin in its virulent form. While this disease was incurable, the man with leprosy had seen the wonders which the Master had performed and he exclaims, as he falls at the Master's feet, "If thou wilt, thou canst make me clean." We call it cure, but leprosy was the effects of sin, it was the crystallization of sin, and sin in its manifest form. Jesus observing the faith of this man, assured him immediately as he reached out his hand and touched him with an assuring pressure, saying, "I will be thou clean." In this Christ dealt with sin and its sinful leprosy and when he cleansed the disease, he removed the cause also for he said, "I will be thou clean." Now the new condition, the new state, the new relation of the man with the leprosy was one which caused him much joy, but the Master had an admonition for him and he charged him saying, "Go show thyself to the priests and offer the things which Moses commanded for a testimonial unto them." There was a law for cleansing and the Master required that this man should conform to it. He also said, "See thou tell no man." This latter the man failed to do, but published the fact to the extent that the Master could not enter the cities for the throng of people who wished to see him and he remained out in the desert places and the people came unto him from everywhere. The joy which was felt over the healing caused the forgetting of the admonition of the Master. He wanted to tell what the Lord had done for him.

MAKERS OF CASS COUNTY Mrs. Mary Wiley Miss Mary Craig was born in Paris, Ill., June 18, 1846, where she lived and attended school until she was sixteen years of age when with her parents she came to Nebraska in 1860 in the month of September and three years later was united in marriage with William W. Wiley, who had come to Nebraska in 1853 and with eleven other hardy pioneers made a purchase of land of the Indians extending from the Weeping Water creek to Bellevue and extending miles west from the river, they paying each one dollar, making eleven dollars and one half cent from Wiley had been married before and lost his first wife and of the five children three had died, the ones now living by the first marriage being Marion Wiley, now living at Nome, Alaska, and Mrs. A. V. Dills of Shenandoah, Iowa. Mr. and Mrs. Wiley made their home on the farm where this excellent lady now lives and have lived there ever since. They took the place on homestead entry and after having lived there for a number of years by a fire which destroyed much of their effects, the rest which they had obtained from the government was burned and when they went to obtain a second place they had to go through much red tape in order to get the title again and had to dispose of forty acres of the land for two hundred dollars to pay the expenses. There stands on the place and is occupied by Mrs. Wiley and George Parks and family a log house which was erected on the place early in 1854 and is in good state of preservation. In 1854 I. S. White did some braving for them, the first in the country, which while he was farming at this time, the water obstructing the crop of corn this year there, thinks it an average of this year. A sprout grew up after the land was plowed and made a tree which remained and is standing at this time, a giant, but a few years since a renter of the place raked some stalks about the base of this giant and burned them thus killing the tree and while it stands there it is dead and bare of bark. Mrs. Wiley can tell many an interesting story of the early days in Cass county when the country was in the making. The union of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley was blessed with fifteen sturdy Americans of which there are still thirteen living, making fifteen in all of both marriages. Mr. Wm. W. Wiley died May 18, 1912. The children who are now living are: Mrs. Elizabeth Jenkins, Grand Junction, Colorado; Mrs. Sarah Smith, Cozad, Nebraska; Wm. G. Wiley, Payette, Idaho; Rosalie Hesser of Los Angeles; Mrs. Wm. Timblin of near Alvo; Mrs. George Wiles of Weeping Water, Nebraska; Algernon Wiley of Emporia, Kansas; Mrs. Nettie M. Wellington, Plainview; Warren M. Wiley, Venango, Nebraska; James C. Wiley living in the state of Washington; George E. Wiley, Eustis; and Mrs. Addie Park of Murray. Mrs. Wiley when but twenty years of age united with the Christian church in 1864 and has ever been a consistent and faithful member of that church and a worker for the Master during all the years and with a firm faith in the varieties of the Christian faith and the ultimate realization of good in all things. The homestead which now consists of 122 3/4 acres is the only one held in Rock Bluffs precinct which there never was a transfer made, they having the title direct from the United States.

BIBLE SCHOOL LESSON Sunday, September 21 By M. S. Briggs Will Be Thou Clean Golden Text—"Thou canst make me clean."—Mark 1:40. Lesson text—Mark, chapter 1. The man had been preaching at Capurnum and healing. Now he was doing this for a number of reasons. One was he was demonstrating the power delegated him from the Father that all might know that in deed and truth he was the Messiah which should come into the world. The power was his credentials and the testimony that he was the Christ. Again he did it because he was thus serving his fellow men. The main reason was to teach the world to be good and to teach his disciples to truly be his disciples after he had gone. And of them it might be said: Avail it whether bare or shod, These feet the paths of duty trod. If from the bowers of ease they sped, And sought ofttimes a humble bed, If fortune's giddy bribe they spurned— And home to victor's cot returned; Those feet with Angel's wings shall vie. And tread the palace of the sky. He wished to teach them and the world through them the better life. He had had a strenuous day and had healed many, preaching and teaching as well. But he was up the next morning long before day and went out into a secret place where he talked with the Father in prayer. Peter and the rest, when they arose later, went to see him for large crowds were already assembling a great many wishing to be healed, while others were curious to see the manifestation of his power. When Peter found him he was engaged in prayer and he said, addressing the Master, "All men seek thee." But the Master, knowing he had much to do, said, "We will go to other towns, where I must also preach." He went and preached in the Jewish synagogue of Galilee, also healing all kinds of disease. While been spending some time in the Lone Star state, has returned home and they will remain here for the present at least. Mr. and Mrs. Mutz were visiting in the Rio Grande valley, where Mr. Mutz is interested in land near Harrington and while they were there they made the purchase of twenty additional acres, which makes them forty acres of this very valuable land that they will have placed in cultivation and in the coming season they expect have the land divided among the different market gardening crops, ten acres in cabbage, ten acres in carrots, ten acres in beets and the rest of the land divided between sugar corn, cane and beans, all of which crops make very valuable market products in the north, as the season there permits early shipments in the spring. Next fall they are planning on having the land turned into a grape fruit orchard, which will greatly increase the value of the land. SURPRISE FOR CHOIR DIRECTOR. The choir of the First Methodist church gave Mrs. E. H. Wescott, their efficient director, a lovely surprise following the regular rehearsal last evening. The members of the choir all departed as usual, but went into the parlors of the church. As Mrs. Wescott left the building some one called her and as she entered the room the light was snapped on and there the company greeted her. Refreshments were served and as every one sat around the table reminiscences of the past twenty-four years were exchanged together with some later impressions by newer members of the choir. Short and appropriate responses were made by Miss Baker, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. R. B. Hayes, Jesse Perry, Miss Pond and Mr. Wescott. Rev. Pfoutz then read communications from former pastors, the Revs. Calvert, Hunter, Austin and Drulliner. Each of these letters were brimming with praise and appreciation of the faithful work Mrs. Wescott has rendered during these years. She has directed the Methodist choir. Following the tributes and responses the pastor presented this estimable lady with a silver sandwich tray in the name of the choir, and she replied with her usual good humor and happy manner, reminding one and all that a leader is of little use without singers. The occasion was in celebration of 24 years of service, last Sunday morning marking the exact date of her faithful service.

BELLEVUE VOCATIONAL SCHOOL WILL BE CLOSED

Dwindling Enrollment Given as the Reason—Students to be Transferred to Other Points. From Tuesday's Daily—The Bellevue Vocational Training school will be closed within the next thirty or sixty days, according to Frank A. Darling, of the St. Louis district office, who is now in Omaha making arrangements for the transfer of the twenty students to other schools. Darling said there were not enough students to longer warrant keeping the school open. The veterans now receiving training at Bellevue will be transferred either to the Iowa state college at Ames, Iowa, or Carlton college, at Farmington, Mo., according to Darling. Those who have completed their training will be provided with placement training by the bureau. Every man, Darling said, who is at the school now, will be provided for. The Bellevue school was started by the department of vocational training of the United States Veterans' bureau when the government leased the buildings of Bellevue college May 11, 1921, for five years to provide training for tubercular and wounded world war veterans from Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas. Accommodations were prepared immediately after to take care of approximately 200 men at the school and the institution was formally opened January 16, 1922, when fifty veterans arrived for vocational training. The number of men in training at the school later increased to 200. The curriculum of the school included instruction in physics, chemistry, laboratory work, electricity, mathematics, shop work of all kinds and athletics. During the last eighteen months the enrollment dwindled rapidly and General Frank T. Hines, director of the veterans' bureau, finally ordered that the school be closed October 31.
