We Have Shingles!

They are not a disease, but a necessity. Examine your roofs and see if they need re-placing before the winter rains and snows come. Now is the time to make all such repairs. A leaky roof will cause much damage to the interior of your home. It is cheaper and much less trouble to re-shingle than re-plaster.

We sell roll roofing for your barns and sheds. Put on the lid—it pays.

We Appreciate Your Patronage!

FORMER CITIZEN ANSWERS CALL

From Wednesday's Daily—

Lenard Spencer Austin, was born in Linn county Iowa, March 14th, 1861, where he with the family remained until in 1874, when they moved to Nebraska crossing the Missouri river at the historic town, of Rock Bluff, arriving in April of that year, and then coming south until they were near a point east of where Union now stands as there was no town there at the time. Mr. Austin worked on a farm and later farmed for himself. In 1874, he was united in marriage, at Nebraska City, to Miss Mary Nash, they then going on a farm, where they farmed for some time. Their union was not blessed with any offspring, but they adopted a son whom they raised and who is now in the west and his whereabouts not known. Four years after their marriage Mr. Austin and wife purchased a farm in Gage county where they lived until 1917, when they sold their farm and went to Wymore to make their home.

Here in 1918 the wife died, and Mr. Austin lived at the home until a short time since, when he went to a hospital in Omaha, where on September 18th he passed away and was taken to his home at Wymore for interment and buried beside his wife. Mr. Austin was a member of the Knights of Pythias, and for three years freighted across the plains this being in 1864-5-6. He leaves three brothers A. H. Austin and Eugene Austin of Union, Ulysses Austin of Walthill, a sister Mrs. T. J. McClurg of Woodard Kan., and a half sister Lydia Dix of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Allen Beeson of Omaha is here enjoying a visit at the home of her son, John Beeson and family and also at the A. J. Beeson home, west of the city.
