THE ANGER OF THE LORD

Mine anger was kindled against the shepherds, and I punished the goats: for the Lord of hosts hath visited his flock, the house of Judah, and hath made them as a goodly horse in the battle. Out of him came forth the earner, out of him the nail, out of him the battle bow, out of him every oppressor together. —Zechariah 1, 3 and 4.

The humors of the campaign are about equally divided. Somebody is trying to organize the deaf-mute vote for Coolidge, while Davis has been made an honorary member of the Boy Scouts.

There is more money in running a cafeteria than in running a book store, says the bishop of Grand Rapids. And the bootlegger is more prosperous than the coquette, but that doesn't prove anything.

London Bridge is really falling down—too heavy a traffic strain. One of the piers is sinking. It will be repaired. This famous old bridge was originally built 748 years ago. Can you imagine any modern bridge last that long? It's the same with roads. Highways, paved by the Romans 2,000 years ago, today have stretches as good as new. Our generation builds for the moment. In the Good Roads movement why not more attention to endurance and less to mileage?

The 100 million pounds of high explosives ordered by the national government is the largest single order for "powder" ever placed. Even in war time there was no such buying in one order. This enormous amount of explosives will be used for highway construction, agricultural purposes, etc. It starts you thinking, how much could have been accomplished in the way of progress if the explosives and human energy wasted in the war has been turned to construction.

DAUGHERTY'S DESPERATION

In a final effort to cast doubt and confusion upon the revelations of the Brookhart-Wheeler committee regarding his personal and official character and associations, Harry M. Daugherty may have involved himself more deeply in the mire of disrepute than he was before. The first expression of Gaston B. Means since the publication of his alleged repudiation of his testimony on the witness stand before the senate committee is that he still adheres to his sworn testimony and that his "repudiation," inclosed in a letter from Daugherty to John W. Davis, the signed, was not given under oath.

Means admits significantly that the statement was signed "under certain circumstances," which he would not explain, but left to "the full story yet to come." The fact that he "sticks to" his sworn testimony, of course, amounts to a full repudiation of his repudiation. The nature of the "certain circumstances" is not hard to surmise, since he is under prison sentence. If it shall be shown that coercive or fraudulent methods were used in obtaining his signature the accusations against Daugherty will be confirmed rather than weakened.

It is as Mr. Daugherty states to Mr. Davis: No court has passed on the validity of the evidence given before the Wheeler committee, and court rules were not observed in admitting testimony. But even if all testimony were expunged from the record, why did not Mr. Daugherty testify before the committee when given an opportunity? On this point he assumes an attitude of superior righteousness and gives "self respect" as the reason for not speaking for himself before "a committee that had covered itself with such infamy."

If all the testimony were incompetent why is M. S. Daugherty, his brother, appealing from a lower court to the United States supreme court to prevent the senate committee from examining records in the Daugherty bank to verify testimony unfavorable to the ex-attorney general?

Mr. Coolidge speaks of the opposition to himself as if it were entirely made up by people proposing to rob property owners, yet the administration of which he is the head has made something of a business of robbing us all of property worth untold millions.

MAKERS OF CASS COUNTY

Ph Meisinger

Ph Meisinger, whose real name is George Phillip Meisinger, was born near the city of Pekin, Illinois, on a farm where he grew to manhood and where he gained his education. He died at the age of 22, three days before Christmas in the year 1854. There he went to school and obtained the rudiments of an education in the district school, and the remainder by the study and observation of a busy life. The brothers and father, Mr. George Meisinger having come to Nebraska before this young man, had secured lands, but when Ph Meisinger came when twenty-one years of age, he had the land broken out but with no buildings thereon in 1875. He then, at the age of 22, worked hard and was enabled to build a house and otherwise improve the farm until it is one of the best of farms in the rich county of Cass. He was united in marriage to Miss Elizabeth Lutz on the second day of February, 1874. Their marriage was blessed with four children, they being Mrs. Edward Tritsch, living a few miles west of Plattsmouth where they have a fine farm; Mrs. William Tritsch, who with her husband are making their home near the farm on which she was born; Mrs. Carl Meisinger, who is farming the home place, and has been with the father making the farm pay during the recent years.

Ph Meisinger has worked long and hard to make the farm pay a dividend during the great years, as well as the fat ones, and has done so, he having arrived at a period of life when he considers he has done his share of hard work and will in a short time move to Plattsmouth to make his home, and the son, Carl, will continue to farm the place.

At Chattam Hill Virginia, on the seventh day of August 1848, Robert A. Young first saw the light of day. He lived with his parents in that old historic state until he was about nineteen years of age, when the family, leaving their great wealth in Nebraska, the land of promise, concluded to leave the old home and its associations in the east and try the advice of Horace Greeley and come west to make their home and fortune. They traveled to Cincinnati, where they with others took an old style river steamer, the Ohio, which was bound for the Mississippi, then up that river past St. Louis, and then up the Missouri river past Kansas City to Plattsmouth. The trip consumed twenty-three days, they arriving in Plattsmouth on the fifth day of April 1867, and they were then in the west, with all of its possibilities. They did not expect to jick up gold, but were willing to work. Mr. Young first accepted a job with Levi Goodsell Todd, where he worked for three years. Mr. Todd was a cattle raiser and dairyman, and it was while on the job that Mr. Young worked the most of the time. He then rented a farm of W. W. Wiley, which he farmed and in 1873 purchased the farm which he now has and began farming for himself.

On March 4th 1879, at Three Groves, which is between Murray and Union and long before either town was thought of, but near the farm of L. G. Todd, Mr. Young was united in marriage to Miss Ida M. Shryder. Four children blessed this union, they being Ernest Young now a thriving business man of Weeping Water, where he is engaged in the hardware and furnishing business; Madea, who died at the age of 14 years; Harry Young, who was accidentally shot by himself while hunting some 23 years ago, at the age of 14 years; Mrs. Janet Neal Munkers, who makes her home at Casper Wyo. Mr. Young has lived here for the past 57 years, and he has seen the rough as well as the other side of pioneer life, has experienced one of the worst of hail storms, in 1883, when he was caught out in it and save for what little his wagon afforded, no protection. He has worked hard both summer and winter, and has seen the seasons pass, and does more work than many younger men and with a good spirit, and ever willing to meet any one half way in any proposition which will benefit man.

FARM BUREAU NOTES

Fourth Annual Fair.—The Cass County Fair was a decided success in every way. On Wednesday 78 babies were judged and the following were champions: Maryln Loretta Wilcox, Plattsmouth, and David Justin Ward, Jiroca. Mrs. J. W. Carter had charge of this department and she deserves the credit for the success of the baby show.

Mrs. Emily Olive, superintendent of the Fancy Work, had 225 entries judged. Mrs. L. R. Snipes also reported 25 entries in the Domestic Science Dept. in the Girls Clothing Club Dept., the superintendent, Miss Jessie Baldwin, reported 85 entries. Rev. Evans had 164 entries in the Fine Arts Dept., and Supt. Schagool reported 25 school districts entered exhibits, mounted on cards with a total of 87 entries. There were also 7 school floats in the parade. The following won: First, Fairview School; Second, Second Laurel Hill; Third, Grand Parle.

There were 132 plates of fruit exhibited under the care of L. N. Hunter. Mr. Troy Davis reported 162 entries in Farm Crops, of which 19 were yellow corn. The Supe. of the Hogs had 188 hogs on exhibition. Mr. E. E. Day said there were 11 mules, 11 horses and 6 sheep in his pen. Mr. Bert Jameson reported 27 head of cattle on exhibition. Mr. Will Coatman, of the poultry dept. reports as follows: 245 chickens, 10 geese, 10 ducks, and 7 puppies on show. The Pig clubs of the county exhibited only 10 pigs due to many reasons.

On Friday the judging teams of the pig clubs staged a contest. The Alvo team under the leadership of Mr. W. G. Hoffman won first place. Weeping Water second, Cedar Creek third and Eagle fourth. High man was Geo. Kitzel, Alvo, second Elmer Hoffman Alvo and third Mynard Tritsch, Cedar Creek.

Two of the Girls Clothing clubs put on demonstrations during the fair. The K. K. A. Clothing Club of Weeping Water won first and the Eldeden Clothing club of Louisville, second.

The booths on Health & Hygiene and Food & Nutrition were in charge of the different clubs in the county, who have been taking the work the past year. This is something new and these ladies are to be complimented on the way they conducted the booths and the different phases of the work which were brought out by the posters and exhibits. A demonstration on bandages was put on by the Home Health ladies. Three different clubs were represented in this demonstration.

LOUISVILLE WINS GAME

From Monday's Daily.—Despite the fact that the weather conditions were more favorable for football than for the great national pastime of baseball, the Louisville team yesterday afternoon staged one of the last games of the season on their diamond and had as their opponents a team representing Murdock but which was in reality a group of players from all sections of the country and which gave the Louisville lads a merry chase for the honors of the day. The score of the game was 6 to 3.

The Louisville team were not playing their usual fielding game and several bobbles on the part of the infield caused the visitors to profit therefrom in checking up runs, but they were not alone as the Murdock team caused victory to slip through their hands in the costly errors made on the infield. Hoffman, of Ashland, was the hurler for Murdock and after the first inning was effective and made a good showing, but lacked support. Rudolph Meisinger, well known amateur player of Cedar Creek, was on the hill for Louisville and Ike Jones did the receiving and both played a very strong game.

Koop of Louisville and Klauschie of Plattsmouth did the umpiring and both escaped from the game with their lives and the good will of the players which is a real record for an umpire.

It is said unless a woman has bobbed hair it takes a pile driver to fit her with one of the new hats.
