Held Annual Meeting

Cass county chapter, American Red Cross, held its annual meeting in the fine grandstand of the Murdock school with A. L. Schaefer, junior director Central division and R. L. Alston, field representative for Nebraska, present.

After listening to music by the High school orchestra and songs by the High school chorus, which added much to the pleasure of the afternoon, Mr. Schaefer was introduced by Chas. Chairman McDonald.

He discussed the four lines of activities now undertaken by the American Red Cross, first and foremost being the care of ex-service men; second the health program; third the disaster relief, and fourth the Junior Red Cross. The government of the audience proved the fine quality of his address.

He appeared on the program of the Murray Community club the same evening.

One item of interest concerning the work of the Red Cross chapter in the Murdock department of today's Journal. Other items will be issued later.

Moderator,
AUGUST RUEGE,
Director.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

You are cordially invited to attend our 2nd annual reduction sale of

Pure Bred Duroc Hogs and Holstein Cattle

Tuesday, Oct. 28th

AT ONE O'CLOCK

We are offering a very practical lot of young cows and heifers; also a pure bred under yearling bull, suitable for improving the quality of dairy cattle on most farms.

The hogs are a useful bunch, consisting of a number of good bears and gilts. Hogs are bringing in the larger portion of cash to the corn belt farmers. Durocs are the popular hog and this bunch is from two of as good building bears as can be found in Cass county.

The hogs are immuned and the cattle tubercular tested.

Respectfully Yours,
ALBERT A. YOUNG,
Murray, Nebraska

month it assisted an average of more than 100,000 disabled veterans and their families. Red Cross chapters in this state did their share of this service. There is not a chapter in the state which is not prepared to give service, relief, information and advice to the ex-service men. During the war when this state had thousands of men in service, these chapters set up a line of communication between the men and their families back home. They saw to it that the families were well taken care of. They assured the men that everything was well at home. Women in this state knitted and sewed for these men and sent many comforts to them.

When the war was over and the men came back disabled the Red Cross chapters in this state were busier than ever. Claims for compensation, hospitalization and vocational training had to be filed. The procedure was difficult and the men naturally turned to the Red Cross for assistance. This work has by no means stopped. Many men in this state who have for some reason failed to file claims for compensation have found it increasingly difficult. Disabilities not apparent immediately following the war have made it necessary for many men to file claims for hospitalization. The government requires proof to show that these men incurred their disabilities in service and it is here that the Red Cross chapter steps in with help. It secures for the men affidavits showing why they believe their disabilities to be of service origin. It follows the claims through the intricate process of the Veterans' Bureau and does not stop until the ex-service man has an answer one way or the other.

Recent generous legislation on the part of Congress makes it possible for all service men with disabilities contracted in or out of service to enter Government hospitals for treatment. Once more the Red Cross chapter is ready with help. This legislation made it possible for many men who have hitherto been barred to secure necessary hospitalization. Red Cross secretaries throughout the state are bringing out cases which they had thought hopeless and are finding that after all something can be done.

Since March, 1923, the number of ex-service men taking vocational training, under the government, has been reduced from 93,000 to 43,000, of which number only about 1,000 are actually out of employment. Of those who have gone thru vocational training, 38,000 are earning more today than they did before they entered service. Red Cross chapters can take a great deal of credit for this remarkable condition. It is the persistence of Red Cross Home Service workers which has made it possible for many of these men to secure training.

DOINGS OF DOC STORK

From Thursday's Daily—

This morning at an early, W. H. Soybert was aroused by the ringing of the telephone and on answering it received the message that had come by wire from Dayton, Ohio, announcing the fact that a fine nine-pound son had arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Marshall, Jr., in that city at 3 o'clock this morning. All concerned are doing very nicely and the little man was greeted on his arrival by his grandmother, Mrs. Soybert, who has been visiting at Dayton for the past few weeks. The many friends here will be delighted to note the pleasant event and to extend to the parents their hearty well wishes for the success and happiness of the young man.

A most complete stock of Hallows'een novelties at the Bates Book and Gift Shop. Prices are right, too.
