a large party of Union people at the depot with horns etc. gave them a send-off.

Eugene Roddy, the carrier of one of the rural routes out of Union, was a visitor with friends in Omaha last Sunday, driving over to the metropolis in his auto.

Paul Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Davis, has been quite sick for the past few days, but at this writing is feeling some better. It is hoped he will soon be well again.

Ellis LaRue and wife were visiting last Sunday at the home of relatives in Omaha, being the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Don Shrader, who are aunt and uncle to Mrs. LaRue.

C. L. Graves and Bert Everett journeyed to Council Bluffs Thursday morning, for a case in which Everett sued for damages to his auto in a collision. Bert got judgment for all he asked. By Gosh!

Ben Albin was looking after some business matters in Nebraska City last Monday morning and was also called to Plattsmouth in the afternoon to look after other business.

A. H. Duxbury of Plattsmouth, who is a candidate for the position of county judge, was looking after his political fences in Union and other portions of the county last Monday.

The Rev. W. A. Taylor was a visitor in Wabash last Sunday where he conducted services at the Baptist church of that place and was well pleased with the large audience present.

Edward Dowler and the family were visiting in Weeping Water last Sunday and while there were guests at the home of the parents of Mr. Dowler, E. L. Dowler and family, who are making their home there.

J. D. Graves of Peru, and Shered Graves of Bellevue, were here Wednesday for a visit with their brother, C. L. Graves. Shered will depart in the near future for the state of Washington with a view of residing there.

Earl Merritt and Ira Clarke were enjoying a hunting on the river east of Union and along the bluffs last Sunday and while they enjoyed the occasion very much they had but little in the way of game to bring home.

Virgel and Wendell Harding, sons of Mr. W. A. Harding the manager of the Farmer's Elevator at Union, drove down from their home at Bethany last Friday and remained, visiting until Sunday evening, when they returned home.

C. E. Noyes and wife and W. A. Cleghorn and wife and Mrs. Estine of Brooklyn, N. Y., who is a sister of Mrs. Cleghorn, and who is visiting at the home of her sister in Union, were visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Todd, last Sunday.

Frank and Anna Bauer were enjoying a visit last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nickles, near Greenwood, and also visited that city, and made the trip in their car. They found the roads very nice and the ride very pleasant.

Chester Prope and wife of Nebraska City, and Louis Mangay and Miss Fannie McCarrill of Union were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Todd, last Sunday, and enjoyed an excellent dinner which was served by Mrs. Todd and daughter, Miss Alice, who was home spending the week end from the state university.

During the vacation of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Franks, who are touring the east for a short time on their wedding trip, the Rev. W. A. Taylor has been looking after the interests of the firm at the lumber yard. Last Monday afternoon, Rev. Taylor was visiting at Nebraska City and Plattsmouth and Rue Franks came in and ran the yard.

Herbert L. Burbee and wife were spending last Sunday in Missouri Valley, Iowa, where they were the guests at the home of Mrs. Burbee's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Hayes, and where they enjoyed the day very pleasantly, and on their return, they were accompanied by Mrs. Alice Robb, who is a sister of Mrs. Burbee, and who will visit here for a short time.

Word was received here a few days ago of the death of H. S. Raymond of Florence, father of Ben Raymond, who formerly lived here and who has gone to Omaha to care for his father who was in poor health. Mr. Raymond was near 73 years of age at his death. Mr. Ben Raymond had been visiting four months in Michigan, and had returned home but a short time before his father's death.

Methodist Church Notes. There will be services the coming Sunday at the Methodist church as follows: Bible school at 10:10 a. m. Epworth League at 6:45 p. m. Evening Services at 7:30 p. m. There will be no services during the morning as the Rev. C. L. Elliott will conduct services at the Wyoming church.

Quite a number of children are taking the Saturday morning Bible study. Still it is not too late to enroll for this course. If you have not enrolled as yet come to the church Saturday morning at nine o'clock the hours being from nine to ten.

Enjoyed the Day Greatly. Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Taylor entertained last Monday evening in honor of friends visiting here from Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. James Delman, who have been the guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lynn and John Lidgett and wife, and there were also present on the occasion, Charles Hobaek and wife, and family, Stephen and Alda Taylor. A most pleasant time was had and all counted the evening one well spent, and were much pleased that they were fortunate enough to be present. During the afternoon the crowd went to Nebraska City and viewed the town and on their return followed the river, where they viewed the river and the beautiful scenery, and after arriving at the county seat, visited the Masonic home before returning to their home in Union.

Funeral at Otterbein. The Rev. W. A. Taylor was at Weeping Water last Friday where he went to officiate at the funeral of Mr. Edgar Marks, who was found dead in his bed on last Thursday, and whose burial was made at the Methodist church at Otterbein.

Election Day Dinner. The Methodist Aid society of Union will serve dinner and supper, and also have a bazaar at the M. W. A. hall on election day.

Anyone wishing to help either with the bazaar or dinner and supper may leave articles with any of the ladies on or before that day. All help will be greatly appreciated.

STILL IN BUSINESS. Andrew Stohman, the well known nursery man of Louisville, was here today for a few hours and while in conversation with the Journal reporter stated that he and his family would leave Louisville probably in the spring for Lincoln, but would make their home at Louisville for the present at least and that he would continue in the nursery business and look after the needs of his patrons over this section of the country.

M'KELVIE MIGHT SUCCEED Wallace. Political gossip is beginning to be heard naming S. R. McKelvie of Lincoln, former governor of Nebraska, as the possible choice of President Coolidge for secretary of agriculture in place of Henry C. Wallace, deceased. Mr. McKelvie was mentioned for that post several years ago before the late President Harding made up his cabinet. He is now making speeches for the republican national ticket in several of the far western states.

The appointment would only run to next March if President Coolidge should fall of re-election, but otherwise whoever is named now as secretary of agriculture would no doubt continue in the same capacity thereafter.

HARMON, KILLED BY CAR WORKED IN MINNESOTA

Trace was found yesterday of William Harmon, aged man who was knocked down by a car on the Union road a few days ago, sustaining injuries from which he died a few hours later.

Harmon worked about five years ago for Earl Cook, a farmer of Morris, Minnesota, a letter to Oliver Stevenson county clerk declares.

Two or three weeks ago Harmon appeared at the Cook home again, the letter continues, obtained food and lodging and remained over Sunday. He told the Cooks he had been living at a home in Missouri. The name of this institution he had written on an old envelope and he asked Mr. Cook to re-write it on another paper.

This paper, containing the printed name of Mrs. James Cook, mother of the writer of the letter, was due to trace the man's relatives or friends and led to their writing to Morris.

Mr. Harmon was very deaf, Earl Cook says in his letter. His deafness, which was not known here for the reason that he never regained consciousness after his accident, may have confused him on the road north of town. He also had a scar on his face, Cook continues. The man killed also bore such a scar.

The letter asks for additional information as to the manner of death. This will be given to Earl Cook by the county clerk's office. The Minnesota man said no provision could be made, so far as he knows, for the removal of the body from Wyuka cemetery where it has been buried.—Nebraska City Press.

Judge Letton is an industrious member of the Supreme Court who believes in prompt court action. Vote to keep him there.

R. M. Chriswisher and R. W. Porter were in Omaha today for a few hours looking after some matters of business and visiting with friends for the day.

W. R. Holmes, W. F. Evers, Henry Nolting, O. C. Hudson, L. L. Wiles and F. A. Clodt were in Omaha last evening, where they attended special services there held by the Masonic lodge of that city.

Reward industry, fidelity to duty and proved ability by voting for Judge Chas. B. Letton for Supreme Judge.

The First District Congressman

(Lincoln Star)

Notwithstanding that Nebraska is intensely interested in the national campaign because of the election of a president, and notwithstanding that Nebraska is also greatly interested as to whether Senator Norris or Judge Thomas shall be the next United States senator, or as to whether Adam McMullen or John N. Norton shall be elected governor, no contest in the state will be watched more closely than the one which will determine the next congressman from the First district.

Ex-Governor John H. Morehead, serving his first term at Washington, is a candidate for re-election. Opposed to him is R. H. Thorpe who served for three months to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of C. F. Reavis. The candidates thus presented are both tried campaigners; both have an extensive acquaintance with the people who comprise the intelligent citizenship of the district—Congressman Morehead, because he has been a bona fide resident of the district for forty years, and Thorpe, because he had canvassed the district as a stock salesman and also as a candidate for congress.

John H. Morehead as a young man came to Nemaha county in 1883. He worked as a farm hand in the summer and taught school in the winter time. Successively he became a country merchant, farmer, stockman and country banker. During this time he served as township treasurer, county treasurer of Richardson county, state senator and governor for two terms. In 1918 he was an unsuccessful candidate for the United States senate. In 1920 he was again a candidate for governor, and in the unprecedented Harding landslide ran almost one hundred thousand votes ahead of his party candidate for president. In 1922 he was elected to congress by 20,000 majority. The outstanding feature of this last contest was that the people of his home county gave him a majority of 1,600 votes and Nemaha county, which first received him as a Nebraska citizen, gave him a 600-vote majority over the able and well-known opposing candidate. Surely his record of citizenship and the public service which he has rendered to the people of his county, district and state will appeal to them in the contest at hand.

During all these years John H. Morehead has been intimately associated with the people of this district and especially with its principal industry—agriculture. Consequently no man in the state is better qualified to represent an agricultural district in the national congress. His opponent on the other hand has had only a brief residence in the district, beginning a short time before he was a candidate for the short term two years ago. His only connection with agriculture apparently has been to “farm” the farmers. Morehead, while thoroughly progressive, is regarded by all as a careful, thoughtful and conscientious man, who has made a success of his own business, and such a record for sound, sensible and economical administration of the state's business while governor that he was re-elected by an overwhelming majority. As governor he also had the rare faculty of selecting strong men for appointive positions as evidenced by the character and ability of the men he placed at the head of our state institutions. A large majority of his appointees have been retained by succeeding governors, regardless of political affiliations, and his administration as chief executive has been universally commended by the citizens of the state.

Without any intention to be unfair or odious in comparison, the opposing candidate, Thorpe, is of the combustible, hot-house type of politician, whose only claim to fame as stated publicly by himself two years ago is that he had been a tramp political orator.

The First congressional district of Nebraska is an important political subdivision. It has important interests at Washington to be served and protected, chief among which is its agricultural wealth and prosperity.

The contest in the First district is therefore of more than passing interest and importance. Surely the thinking electors of this agricultural district in view of the facts of the case, cannot afford to retire Congressman Morehead who has been a true and tested public servant and whose citizenship and direct interest in the district and its welfare is attested by a record which is an open book. This district, since the state was admitted, has been almost without exception represented in congress by men of recognized ability and fitness, and who were by long residence and business commitments intimately associated with the growth and progress of the state. Such were Thomas J. Majors, A. J. Weaver, John A. McShane and W. J. Bryan when Omaha was a part of the First district, and later J. B. Strode, E. J. Burkett, afterwards United States senator, E. M. Pollard, John A. McGuire and C. F. Reavis.

Congressman Morehead is no exception in character, ability and citizenship to his distinguished predecessors. He has brought to his great office the ripe experience of the successful farmer, stockman, country merchant and country banker, as well as the distinction and valuable experience of the governorship of a great state. The electors of the First district will honor themselves and serve their best interests by returning ex-Governor John H. Morehead to congress.
