JOHN MARTI DIES IN THE WEST

From Wednesday's Daily—
John Marti, a brother-in-law of Charles H. Warner, who some thirty years ago left Nebraska and for the past fifteen years has been making his home in California, passed away at his home at Long Beach on Sunday evening at 10 o'clock. Mr. Marti who married a sister of Mr. Warner, formerly lived at Rising City where he was engaged in business and with failing health concluded he would be benefited by going to a warmer climate and moved to Beaumont, Texas, where he lived for some fifteen years and later removed to California where they have made their home since. When residing at Rising City, Mr. and Mrs. Marti visited here a number of times and are well known by many people here.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

From Wednesday's Daily—
T. H. Pollock, president of the Farmers State bank, has fully realized the value of advertising his wants in the want ad department of the Journal as he placed a want ad in the Evening Journal for a man to work on the farm east of Murray and on the morning following the issuing of the paper he had six applicants for the position and readily found a man for the job without the trouble of going out and hustling around. He merely placed a small two-line ad in the paper which brought the real results.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Farmers' Mutual Tornado, Fire and Live Stock Insurance Company of Cass county Nebraska, will be held at the Taylor school house in District No. 37 on Saturday, January 3rd, at 1:30 p. m., for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year and transacting such other business as may come before the meeting.

SEARCH FOR CLUES IN THE MYSTERIOUS DEATH OF ALBRIGHT

Relatives of Young Man Found Here
Week Ago Burned to Death
Cling to Murder Theory.

From Wednesday's Daily—
Despite the fact that the authorities here are of the opinion that the death of Carl Albright, Nebraska City young man who was found burned to death on the highway two miles north of this city, was accidental, the relatives of the young man are firmly convinced that he was the victim of foul play and the search for possible clues that might reveal the murdered are being followed by the family and the officers as well.

The general view held by the authorities here is that the young man was attempting to adjust the carburetor of his car or pouring gas into the tank of the car, when the gas in some manner caught fire and the blaze spread to the garments of the boy and, frantic with pain and fright, he had dashed across the road to where the body was found the next morning by a resident of that locality and the office of the county attorney at Plattsmouth notified.

The mystery is a perplexing one and has many angles on which a possible murder theory could rest if the motive for the crime could be clearly established. A number of those intimate with the young man believe that perhaps the motive for the murder if there was one was laid back in Missouri where Albright had worked with the construction company and that in revenge for some disagreement in the work there someone had followed him and strangled him and later burned the body while he was still breathing.

One of the mysterious phases of the case is why he made the long stay in Plattsmouth, where, as far as the relatives know, he was unacquainted, and where he had no reason to stop over this long period. From the time that he left his car in the garage about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, until he called for it at a few minutes before 8 o'clock, there is no trace of the man in this city, the only clue being the possible identification of the man as having eaten supper in the Royal Cafe about 6 o'clock in company with other parties, all strangers to the people at the cafe and who were not seen afterwards.

The case is so complex that it will require a long and careful search to unravel and the services of someone who could trace the young man from his work in Missouri down to the time that he reached this city on his fatal journey.

The relatives point out that the roads were very bad, the weather growing more severe and common sense would indicate that he kept on his journey to Omaha instead of stopping here for four or five hours, unless there was some important reason that caused him to make this stop that has not yet been revealed.

The New Year Pudding (A Recipe)

Take some human nature—as you find it. The commonest variety will do—Put a little graciousness behind it, And a lump of charity—or two. Squeeze in just a drop of moderation; Half as much frugility—or less, Add as much very fine consideration, Strain some milk of human kindness in it, Put in all the happiness you can. Stir it up with laughter every minute, Season with good will toward every man.

Set it on the fire of heart's affection, Leave it till the jolly bubbles rise. Sprinkle it with kisses—for confection, Sweeten with a look from loving eyes—Flavor it with children's merry chatter, Frost it with the snow of wintry dells; Place it on a garnished platter, And serve it with the song of New Year's bells.
