Much Land Inundated by Water Rising Above Gorges Near Bostwick, Neb.

Bostwick, Neb., Feb. 10.—The ice broke up in the Republican river today in this vicinity and above here and trouble is being experienced today with water backed up by ice gorges. A tremendous pile of huge ice cakes has formed southeast and completely dams up the river, and more broken ice is floating down from the west. The river is rising and now covered the highway at the south approach of the bridge on the main highway into town, to a depth of two and three feet and a width of twenty feet. Farmers cannot get into town from the south and stock shippers this morning had to turn back with cattle they were driving to the local yards. The water is overflowing lowlands, but has not done any material damage yet. It is expected the gorge will break away today if the weather continues warm enough. It covers hundreds of acres down the river and cannot be dynamited or moved in any way. The cakes are of unusual weight, the ice being twelve to fourteen inches thick.

ICE JAMS IN THE REPUBLICAN RIVER

Guide Rock, Feb. 10.—The Republican river at this point is receding today after a rise Sunday caused by ice gorges down stream. There is still some ice going down stream, but mostly open water now prevails and it is felt that ninety per cent of the broken ice has passed down the river. Trouble was experienced Saturday and Sunday morning with ice jams near Nanopon.

Superior, Feb. 10.—In the Republican river at this point has broken up after one of the hardest winter freezes and the thickest ice for many seasons. Sunday a cake of ice weighing many tons struck the cement wall built into the river near here as a race wall to control the flow of water to the water wheel of the electric light and power plant. The impact broke and dislodged a section of the cement and weakened the wall. Today the river is lower than usual, the water said to be held back by an ice gorge between here and Bostwick which completely blocks the channel of the river and covers many acres. The crest of the ice flow has not passed as yet.

LA FOLLETTE REBELS WILL FIGHT OUSTER

North Dakota Representative Says He Will Attend Caucus Until He Is Voted Out.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The question of reading the La Follette Insurgent's report of the caucus of house republicans called for February 27.

This was clearly indicated today when Representative Sinclair of North Dakota, one of the dozen insurgents not invited to the caucus, announced that he proposed to attend the session and remain until "voted out."

This statement gave rise to speculation as to the possibility of a break in the ranks of the house insurgents and was accompanied by rumors that Representative Lampert of Wisconsin and others might follow Mr. Sinclair's example.

Mr. Lampert declined to comment but Mr. Sinclair declared he had been elected as a republican and intended to consider himself a member of that party until otherwise notified.

Republican leaders have indicated if the insurgents desire to get back into the organization's fold, it will be practically necessary for them to renounce the La Follette leadership and agree to bind themselves to the decisions of republican caucuses.

The dozen insurgents were not invited to the caucus on the ground that, although they were elected as republicans, they opposed the republican presidential ticket in the campaign, and also sought election of independent congressional candidates over the republican nominees.

GRAIN MARKETING FIRM PLANS DRIVE

Chicago, Feb. 10.—The Grain Marketing company, the $26,000,000 organization with a co-operative program recently formed by the merger of four old line companies, will start an active membership campaign at once in 12 states, from which they have heretofore been excluded by blue sky laws, Henry S. Ballard counsel for the company, announced today after the stockholders in their first annual meeting had adopted an appraisal showing total assets of $17,382,083.

The adopted appraisal report lists real estate holdings at $1,760,531, leases, etc., at $1,831,180, and elevators and feed mills at $11,810,412. The total is $975,682 more than the price which the various merged companies agreed to accept.

Ballard said an appraisal such as is required by several states would be ready soon and immediately thereafter stock would be offered for sale in those states.

Officers of the company told the stockholders that the appraisal did not include anything for good will or other intangible values, which are worth several million dollars. They stated that earnings of the selling companies had been far in excess of interest charges, not including profits from speculative trades. Gray Silver, president, stated that a body of economists had passed on the engineers' appraisal and a body of experienced farmers had sustained the report.

Three directors for five-year terms were elected: John W. Coverdale, Ames, Ia.; Charles E. Hearst, Cedar Falls, Ia.; and Murray D. Lincoln, Columbus, O. Thomas Campbell, Hardin, Mont., was chosen for a three-term and John Lee Coulter, Fargo, N. D., for a two-year vacancy.

POPE PIUS PLANS A TOUR OF THE WORLD

London, Feb. 16.—It is understood in English Roman Catholic circles that there is considerable likelihood of a concord being reached between the vatican and Premier Mussolini, according to the Morning Post.

It is believed in Catholic circles in London that if peace is established between the vatican and the Italian government Pope Pius may abandon his traditional seclusion in the vatican and make a tour of the world.

J. Swanda and wife were among the visitors in Omaha today for a few hours, looking after some matters of business in that city.

BIBLE SCHOOL LESSON

Sunday, February 15th

By M. S. Briggs

Christ in the Garden Golden Text:—Not what I will, but what Thou wilt.—Mark 14:16.

"In golden youth when seems the earth A summer land of surging mirth. When thoughts are gay and health is bright,

And not a shadow lurks in sight— We do not know it, but there lies Somewhere veiled under evening skies A garden we all must sometimes see, The Garden of Gethsemane."

Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox very aptly tells the story of the Master in the Garden of Gethsemane as well as at the same time portrays the actual experience of human life, for there is none born of woman who can escape some time in their lives the experience when they all alone shall be compelled to force some momentous question; when the trial shall come for them to stand for justice and right or have it proven they have been weighed in the balances and found wanting. That they are dejected when the essentials of manhood which is required to stand alone. The other way may look easier but to measure up to the stature of a true man or woman sometimes requires sacrifices and test us as to the texture of our manhood or womanhood.

Following the last supper, when the Master had said, "This do in remembrance of me," meaning the bread and wine, He washed the disciples' feet to teach true humility and then as the disciples were discouraged he spoke words of comfort to them and following last Sunday's lesson, the intercessionary prayer in which He prayed for an united Christendom and a real live working church with all his followers, going their full share. He with the eleven disciples, for Judas Iscariot had gone to the High Priests to sell information of the Master's whereabouts, went to the Garden of Gethsemane, where they had often met.

The story goes that the place belonged to Mary, the mother of the author of the gospel of Mark. Should his be so, it explains the reason for her having it for a meeting place. The entire atmosphere surrounding the group of devoted men, was one of sadness. They come to the entrance of the Garden and the Master has left but three to remain there to watch and pray. This to all, while he also went a stone's throw and you may know how far that is by an energetic trial. Then he takes Peter, James and John and after going a distance he also left them charging to watch with him and pray least he should fall into temptation. Then he Christ goes on a few paces and throwing himself to earth prays the Father, saying if there be any other way, let this cup pass away from me, but not as I will, but as thou wilt. The Savior had come to this hour fully realizing that it was his destiny to give his life for the sins of the world and in so doing, he realized that even his little band of followers were not appreciating the importance of his sacrifice. The Master alone felt the enormity of the task of redeeming the sins of the human race and in his wrestling with the question he suffered so that he sweat as it were great drops of blood, they falling on the ground. After a session of prayer and wrestling with the question of the salvation of the world, he without a response from the father and feeling that he was entirely alone, returned to where he had left Peter, James and John, his most trusted disciples. He found them asleep for it was getting along well into the night.

"Can you just get into the situation Christ found himself when he had left praying to the Father with no response to his prayer, and finds his three disciples asleep, all of whom had but shortly said "You can count on us; we surely will do our part," and within an hour they had all dropped asleep. He said to them and especially to Peter: "Peter, can you not watch with me one hour, when you know this shall be my last hour on earth?" The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak. Peter had but a short time before said "Though all the world forsake thee, yet will I not forsake," and so said they all. Peter had thought that he, a hardy fisherman used to the hard life braving the tempest and the sea and not afraid of man or devil, would be equal to the occasion, but did not realize that the testing time was soon to come when he would not be able to break the balance in favor of right and be loyal to his Master.

"Again he admonished them to watch and pray lest they be tempted. He went forth and prayed again as vehemently as before; then returned and found them sleeping again. After telling them that there was danger in their going to sleep at the critical time the Master returns and again prays and this time Angels came and ministered unto him. He comes again unto the three disciples, "Come, let us go now. They are here and I am betrayed into the hands of sinners."

"Then cometh Judas Iscariot and walking up to the Master, said, "All hail!" and kissed him, as it was the fashion of men then to greet each other with a kiss. The Christ, the son of God says unto him, "Judas betrayest the Son of God with a kiss?"

"Then they, when the Master asked them what do you want, said, "We are looking for Jesus of Nazareth." Then in that majesty, the son of the most high God said, "I am he." They then in the presence of him who had been with the father before the world was made, fell to the ground in the presence of the ruler of heaven and earth co-ordinate with the Father, for the Father had conferred this power on the son.

He said again, "I am he," but allow them to go their way. Then Peter thinking he was strong enough to fight the Lord's battles, whipped his sword from its scabbard and dashed at the foe. The first to meet was a servant of Malchias and one of the ears went to the ground with the flood following the stroke and with the fighting blood of the sturdy Peter he was gathering for another stroke which probably would have severed one's head or thrust some one thru the mid but commanding tone of the Master said, "It is enough. Put your sword into its sheath. He that taketh the sword shall die by the sword." With this Peter put up his weapon, disappointed because he had, while he had said before unto the Master, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of God!" felt somehow there should be a night of more testing, and he was willing to fight for it. Christ touched the ear and it was made perfectly whole.

Then the soldiers led the Master away to the city and the disciples were scattered.

Then came a Gethsemane for all that was a night of more testing, and a test for all. They did not know, but they must pass into the Garden for a trial lasting more than the few hours. Their experiences took them "Down shadowed lanes across strange streams, Bedged over by their broken dreams, Behind the misty caps of years Beyond the great salt found to tears. The Garden lies. Strive as we may We cannot miss it all the way. For all paths that have been or may be, Lead somewhere through Gethsemane."

"All those who journey soon or late Must pass within the garden gate; Must kneel alone in darkness there, And grapple with some fierce despair. God pity those who cannot say, 'Not Mine, but Thine!' Who only pray.

"Let this cup pass! Who do not See his suffering in Gethsemane."

That hour must come to us all, alone, or with the help of the Master, for he has said, "I go to the Father, and ask what you will in my name and I will grant it unto you."

Let us be the stronger when we shall have had our testing in Gethsemane.

which the senate passed at the last session.

Senator Smith described the 50 per cent surcharge as "unusual and, in my opinion, unlawful," and asserted that yesterday's report of the interstate commerce commission upholding the rate was "unfair and unjust to the laymen."

"The report tried to make out," he continued, "that the handling of Pullman cars was more expensive to the railroad than ordinary cars. As a matter of fact, railroads are relieved of the expense of upkeep of Pullman cars by the Pullman company."

"This tax is unfair, uncalled for and unnecessary. Pullman cars are necessities and should be made available for every one."

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, joined in denunciation of the report and insisted if the bill passed at the last session by the senate could be gotten to a vote in the house, it would pass "overwhelmingly."
