U. B. Thrifty says:

A Bank Account
—is a Confidence Builder!
A Bank Account inspires confidence on the part of the owner's friends his business associations and his creditors. This in itself is sufficient recommendation.

But, better still, a bank account raises its own in his own estimate so that he is quite likely to do better work and aspire to higher things.

These arguments can not be refuted. If you have no account and will try the experiment, you'll be glad you did.

Death Calls Murray Young Man
Last Sunday was held the last sad rites over the remains of one of the brightest young men in the county, James Walker Gilmore, the son of Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Gilmore, of this city. Walker, as everyone knew him, had died at Omaha after a brief illness and the funeral was held at Murray conducted by the Rev. W. F. Graham, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Murray. The interment was made in the beautiful Oak Hill cemetery at Plattsmouth, at the time the weather being very bad, as rain had set in before the funeral cortege had arrived at the cemetery.

Walker Gilmore had been preparing himself for a physician, which in truth is in a way a missionary, for no physician braved the storms and bad roads and dangers at night merely for the money there is in it. Dr. and Mrs. Gilmore who have been expecting their son would graduate in June, are bearing up under the sad blow and are brave in their accepting the decree of death, but it is a sad one. They have only partially become reconciled to the loss of their daughter and this second loss is a very sad bereavement. There were some forty-four students in the class of 1925, of which Mr. Gilmore was a member and two of the teachers, Dean Cutter and Dr. Patton were down to pay tribute to the memory of this excellent young man. Dr. and Mrs. Gilmore and the other members of the entire community, with the sympathy of the entire community, who with the Journal, join in extending sympathy in this hour when the hand of sadness is heavy upon them.

C. A. Trent Answers Call
Mrs. Charles A. Trent was a visitor in Murray for a short time on last Monday while on her way to her home at Carthage, Mo., when returning from Alexandria, South Dakota, where she has been accompanying the remains of her husband, C. A. Trent, who had died at their home in Carthage, Mo., about a week since. Mr. Trent was taken with the typhoid fever about a month since and it was thought that he had gotten the worst of the malady and was able to sit up in bed, but a change came for the worse and he grew worse and his son, Paul, and brother, Edward, were summoned Alexandria, South Dakota. Early last week Mrs. Trent passed away and with the remains the sorrowing widow and other relatives accompanied the remains to Dakota for interment where he had lived for so long.

Mr. Trent and wife made their home in Murray for some where they gained and have kept many friends who are much pained to know of the death of this man. There was nothing that Mr. Trent could do for the betterment of this city that he did not try to accomplish while here. After leaving here they went south and located at Carthage where they have a grocery store at 845 East Sixth street, and have been doing well, notwithstanding the fact of his illness. Mrs. Trent has the sympathy of her many friends in Murray in this, her hour of sorrow. While here she was the guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell.

OBITUARY

James Walker Gilmore was born at Murray, Nebraska, August 8, 1902. Here he attended the public school until 1917, when he entered the Kemper military school at Booneville, Mo., from which institution he graduated in 1919. He then entered the state university of Nebraska at Lincoln, from which he received the degree of B. S. in 1923. His studies were continued at the University College of Medicine in Omaha, after his academic year at Lincoln, he being transferred there in 1921.

His record as a student was excellent and he had almost completed his fourth year when after a brief, but severe illness, death claimed him on the morning of February 20th, 1925.

The young man had just received an appointment as interne at the Northern Pacific hospital of St. Paul, Minn., and had intended to go to St. Paul the 1st of July.

He was a member of the Kappa Kappa Alpha fraternity, and was a fraternal and friendly man with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Gilmore and with his brother, John, in mourning the loss of this excellent young man. His sister Helen preceded him to the other land five years ago.

Funeral services were conducted at the home in Murray, by Rev. W. F. Graham, pastor of the United Presbyterian church on Sabbath afternoon, February 22nd, at 3:30 o'clock.

Many beautiful floral offerings brightened the room in which friends took their final farewell.

Dean Irving S. Cutter and Dr. Patton of the faculty, together with about forty members of the Senior class of the University of Nebraska

College of Medicine, at Omaha, were present at the funeral.

Interment was in Oak Hill cemetery at Plattsmouth.

PRISON SENTENCE FOR SHEIKS PROVIDED FOR IN BILL

Vamp Also Included in Provisions of Bill That Means Penitentiary For Home Wreckers.

A prison sentence of from one to five years and a fine of from $500 to $2,500 are provided in S. F. 123, advanced to third reading by a vote of 22 to 5 in the senate Tuesday morning, after a vigorous debate. Senator Cooper is the author. He presented several amendments. The bill provides that any person who shall alienate the affections of a spouse shall be deemed guilty of a felony. The word "maliciously" was placed after the word "wilfully," and the words, "entice away," inserted in deference to a supreme court decision making that an essential of the offense.

Mr. Witte secured an amendment that removed an ambiguity, a phrase that indicated the possibility of the act not applying to a married man. Mr. Chambers secured an amendment that it should not apply to relatives and parents who advise and counsel their children who are parties to the marriage. Mr. Laughlin had one tacked on that would allow the husband or wife whose affections were charged to have been alienated to testify for the defendant. The present law would have allowed the plaintiff to testify against the defendant, but would have sealed the other spouse's lips as a witness.

Mr. Jewry moved to indefinitely postpone. He said the idea was good but that this would enable lawyers in Lincoln, Omaha and elsewhere to make a good living by utilizing the wide possibilities of blackmail contained in the right to file such a criminal charge. He thought that the law should not attempt to do a method of avenging all civil wrongs by this method. The guilty party is now liable to civil damages and may also be prosecuted for adultery or similar crimes.

Mr. Robertson objected to so much time being taken up by bills that he should not attempt to do so. He moved that these and some salary bills be made a special order for Saturday afternoon. Mr. Cooper retorted that any senator who did not wish to hear or take part in debates would find another room handy. He said that if he was ever sincere that he would do it.

Mr. Robertson interrupted to inquire why not have an open season on these fellows, but Mr. Cooper replied that that may suit the member with Holt, but he wanted a closed season on them. He deplored the fact that there were senators present who had not had a new thought in forty years. He said that civil liability was not a remedy where a man or woman who did the damage was not responsible. He wanted to stop the butterfly, gathering money here and virtue there.

Mr. Cooper read a number of letters from persons whose homes had been broken up. Mr. Reed told of one letter he received from a woman who had lost her husband and their little fortune of $100,000 thru the machinations of a vamp who seized upon the husband.

When the roll call was taken only Jewry, Dysart, Griswold, Hoyer and Banning voted to kill the bill, which was then advanced to third reading.

HOPE IS HELD FOR THE POSTAL BILL
Senate Conferees Agree to Substance of House Measure—Coolidge Sees a Possible Flaw.

Washington, Feb. 24.—A postal pay and rate increase bill in substantial form, as that passed by the house, was agreed to today by conferees on the senate and house measure. The only important modification in the house measure was made in second class rates, the conferees accepting some of the lower rates in this class carried in the senate bill.

In the form agreed to by the conferees, the bill would increase postal salaries as of January 1, this year, and the rate increases would become effective next April 1.

Representative Kelly, republican, Pennsylvania, said the bill as agreed to would raise $60,000,000 or $2,000,000 less than the original bill. He plans to call it up tomorrow in the house.

The second class rates which have formed the center of controversy on the measure as now provided would be 2 cents for the first and second zones; 3 cents a pound for the third zone; 6 cents a pound for the fourth, fifth and sixth zones, and 9 cents a pound for the seventh and eighth zones.

President Coolidge today asked Postmaster General New to furnish him an analysis of the house bill. He is giving particular attention to the provisions making the pay increase retroactive to January 1, and the rate increase effective April 1. These provisions, Mr. Coolidge believes, would involve a direct tax on the treasury of $22,000,000 and such an outlay is giving him some concern.

BIBLE SCHOOL LESSON

Sunday, March 1st

By M. S. Briggs

Christ Before Pilate

Central Thought: "Can mortals make trial of the Son of God?"

The lesson of two weeks ago, for February 15th, ended with the scene in the Garden of Gethsemane, when the Master was led away to the hall of the high priest, where a mock trial was held. He with the disciples had been in the garden during the past few hours and it was now approaching midnight and Peter and others of the disciples had followed. They were assembled in the court of the high priest's house. This court was an open place with the buildings surrounding and on the pavement a fire was burning for it was cold in the night air. As the crowd gathered about the fire to get warm, they talked and some said unto Peter, "You are one who was with this man." Peter denied he was, even to a second and third time, the last with an oath. It is said the police were at that time taking the Master past where they were standing and He overheard Peter, turning and looking reproachfully at him, after which Peter went out and wept bitterly.

Pilate had thought he was strong enough to not have denied the Master, but at that moment discovered that he was a weakling. At this time the Sanhedrian, the Jewish church board had met illegally as it could not meet at night and this was near midnight. Judas Iscariot was present and saw the Christ beaten, spat upon and otherwise abused and it came to him that he had betrayed the Master into the hands of a pack of human hyenas who were seeking his very life's blood. The enormity of his crime came to him and going to the Sanhedrian he offered the money back, but the priests refused to accept it and he threw it down on the pavement and went from the building into the night, a creature without hope, ending his life by hanging himself. The money he had so eagerly accepted for betraying the Master, only to cast it away in scorn when he saw the error of what he had done, was used to buy a burial place for strangers, known as "the Potter's field" and which has come down to our present day as the final resting place of delinquents in the world, men of lost hope.

When the Master was taken to the hall, he was conducted before Caiaphas, the high priest, who asked him if he was the Christ, but Jesus answered him naught. Then Caiaphas said, "I adjure thee by the living God that thou tell us whether thou art Christ, the son of God." The Master answered, "Thou hast said," meaning "I am." The high priest rent his clothes and called the answer blasphemy and he threw a purple robe on him to death. The officers who had charge, being a rough crowd, blindfolded the Master and striking him in the face with their fists and with sticks, saying "Prophecy who has struck you." They also spat on him and platted a crown of thorns which they crowded down on his head and putting a purple robe on him, he mocked and scoffed, calling him the King of the Jews.

When the morning was now come, the Sanhedrian came together again and decided that Jesus should be crucified. The Sanhedrian had the power to pass sentence of death on him and he threw the robe on him, to have their decree confirmed.

They told Pilate of their findings and charged the Master with claiming to be a king and with blasphemy as well. Pilate was not to be fooled by the crafty Jews, and he gave the Master a trial himself.

When the Master stood before the governor, Pilate asked him, "Art thou king of the Jews?" Jesus answered him saying, thou sayest, but added, king of spiritual Israel. Then the chief priest and elders came in and accused him of many things, and Christ answered them nothing. Pilate said, "Do you not hear what they testify against you and do you not answer. Do you not know that I have power to turn you free or to condemn you?" Still the Master answered him naught.

This was a feast day, and it was the custom to release a prisoner, so Pilate asked the Jews, "Whom shall I release unto you, Barabbas, (who was a hardened criminal) or Jesus, who is called the Christ?" Jesus he knew that for envy they had brought the Master to him. They cried with one accord, by instruction from the chief priests, "Release Barabbas." Then Pilate said, "What shall I do with the King of the Jews?" They cry, "Let him be crucified."

Now as Pilate was sitting on the judgment seat, a messenger comes rushing in and delivers a message from his wife, in which she said, "Have nothing to do with this man; I have suffered many things this day in a dream because of him." Then again Pilate asked of the people, which of the two he should release unto them, and then answered him saying "Barabbas, and crucify Jesus." Pilate said, "What evil has he done? I find no fault in him." But they only howled like the frenzied men they were, and perceiving that he was getting powerless with them, Pilate had a banner of water brought and washing his hands before them said, "I am innocent of the blood of this innocent man; see you to it." Then the crowd said, "Let his blood be on us and on our children." and Pilate released unto them Barabbas and delivered Jesus to be crucified.

Pilate presents a peculiar situation. He was shrewd enough not to be fooled by their wild clamor, and he placing Jesus before them said, "Behold this man." Jesus came forth with a meek kingly robe which the officers had placed on him, and Pilate hoping they would see in the Master his innocence and acknowledge him as being just and without sin. But the populace who less than a week before had cried, "Hosannah, Hosannah! Blessed is the king who cometh in the name of the Lord. Peace in heaven and glory in the highest," now were in a wild frenzy, and crying "Away with him; such a one is not fit to live. Crucify him!"

Pilate expected to save Jesus, but as the Jews showed an inclination to carry the matter to Rome in the light that Jesus was trying to pass as a king, Pilate had the alternative of facing the emperor at Rome on the charge of protecting an impostor or allowing the Jews to crucify him.

The scourging, the buffeting, the rough usage which Jesus was receiving at the hands of the infuriated mob had about worn out his physical strength. He was bruised, wounded, had been spat upon and battered in the face. He had just passed thru the experience of a wild frenzy, now he had been buffeted and roughly handled for many more hours, and they had in derision placed a crown of thorns on his head, the sharp points inside and as this had been crowded down on his head, the blood from the cruel wounds trickled down his face. During all this a purple robe was handling the Master never said a word or offered a protest for he had come from high heaven as a babe, grew to manhood, suffered many things and was now to give his life that the world might be redeemed from the bondage of sin.

And now it is for us to accept his sacrifice and do his commandments. Truly as the Centurian said, this is indeed the son of God.

TARIFF ON HIDES IS UNLIKELY
Washington, Feb. 24.—Congressman Simmons, Sixth Nebraska district, has been bombarding the house ways and means committee members urging them to rush through a special tariff schedule on hides. Congressman Green, Iowa, chairman of the committee, said: "Congressman Simmons has repeatedly urged the committee to take immediate action for a per cent duty on hides for the relief of the western cattle producers. Of course, this committee might report out such a measure if it so chose, but it is my judgment that a tariff on hides would not be of much use without a tariff on leather. If you can enact a special tariff on hides and leather, then shoe manufacturers will combine with other interests and block your special schedule."
