Crime, instead of abating, is on the increase.

Good, reliable farm hands can always find work.

Farmers are hustling around getting ready for spring work.

Did you go to church Sunday? Do you feel better? Certainly you do.

Old nature put us here and gave us all we've got, and some day will take it all back.

When a man loses his temper there is always someone around who will help him to find it.

Tomorrow is bargain day. Rare bargain in almost anything you want, or really need.

The man who can eat chili has no business whatever asking the bootlegger a lot of questions.

We have had our sufficiency of winter weather and more, in fact, than the groundhog predicted.

The usual number of accidents occurred Sunday. There are some auto drivers that do not seem to learn anything from experience.

We gather from a fashion writer that women are wearing darned hats. Husbands who have to foot the bill are only wearing knitted brows.

The last member of the A. E. F. is back home. If he doesn't know what became of the sweaters and socks the girl knitted no one does.

Pride always did go before a fall—at least that's the current report—and the Tower of Pisa has been leaning very proudly for a long time.

Allice Lake and husband have split for the third time. That ought to be the charm. She is going back to the movies where she expects to remain.

Seeing that former Governor Jim Ferguson of Texas already has helped himself to political amnesty, it was rather nice of the legislature to grant it to him.

Personally, we cannot see why we are deceiving children any more by telling them that the cow jumped over the moon than by making them think that virtue is always its own reward.

When a man makes a success in life, his friends say he has "taken a place in the spotlight." Some of them take a place in the hospital when they face a spotlight in a speeding automobile.

Kansas has raised the price of marriage licenses from $3 to $3.50. But in the eternal search for more revenue why stop at $3.50. Persons who will pay $3.50—especially those paying it for the first time—will pay more if more is asked.

An American Legion man furnishes this figure of speech: Waiting for March to haul off and kick you in the slats is just about as pleasant as it used to be sitting all night in the trenches waiting to go over the top at the zero hour of 4 bells.

The government's Teapot Dome case came on at an unfavorable time in one respect, coinciding with the vacations of a number of prominent oil men who might have been witnesses if they hadn't gone to France, South America and other places of recreation and rest from dull care.

A press dispatch says the crossword puzzle is now being used at asylums for the amusement of the inmates. We have not spent more than ten minutes on one of the things since the craze started, but have no doubt that a week of such mental gymnastics would add a new face to the asylum bunch.

The democratic party, although considerably shot up because of the irreconcilable differences between the Al Smith and the McAdoo crowds, still remains a great political party. The task for the party now is to get itself thoroughly purged of these personalities. Both of these men must forego their aspiration to be president of the United States. Because neither of them can ever be.

A free-for-all is sometimes very expensive.

Dancers exercise just about everything except discretion.

It is almost warm enough to practice classic dancing now.

Every man should have a hobby. And every woman a hubby.

Eating more lemons in spring keep you from feeling like one.

Be careful in packing away your winter clothes. Moths make the fur fly.

Now is the time for all good weather to come to the aid of the farmers.

A girl should never marry a man who throws her money away as fast as she can make it.

Ants have started reading the papers already to see where the spring picnics will be held.

Bad Indiana news. Her accidents are increasing. These are real accidents, not new poems.

When an auto kicks back and breaks a man's arm it is merely trying to replace the horse.

Spring is the time for lambs to gambol. But a lamb who gambled in Wall street lost a fortune.

The reformers have started worrying over what the bathing girls won't wear this summer.

A married man who knows, said to us, "An eagle on the hat is worth about ten on the dollar."

Spring floods are coming. Caused perhaps by the wild waters rushing to see the new bathing suits.

Ball players at the training camps are suffering from sunburn. That is the skin you hate to touch.

When a rum ship caught fire near the coast of Florida, not one of the boys stood on the burning deck.

In Central Africa fatness is considered beauty. This is where the cannibals love their fellow men.

In Oklahoma a plumber was sent to prison. There for five years, too. So maybe they have a leaky pipe.

Look where you are going. The Chinese have watched their noses a long time without getting anywhere.

The news tells of a strong man who can raise a motor car without a jack, but even he can't run one without it.

More than likely half of these people that are criticizing congressmen wouldn't do much better if they were there.

The Swiss have two women judges. That's a news item. We have millions who think they are judges of women. That's a fact.

A New Jersey man claims to drink twelve cups of coffee a day. That marks him as an ideal citizen, according to the new standard. He has no time or stomach space for other drinking.

A Baltimore man committed suicide rather than appear in the traffic court for a fourth time on the charge of reckless driving. Why can't we have some traffic courts that scare 'em that badly?

If the increase of automobiles continues on the street during the summer months, which they are very liable to do, there will be a necessity of a cop at each crossing to save the pedestrians' lives.

The association of tailors declares that to be well dressed a man must invest a minimum of $2,000 in clothes. It is expected that many a careless fellow will read this and rush out and buy himself a new necktie.

When a family is in an ill temper, it will fight anything, no matter how silly. Take the Romanoffs, for instance—they are having a squabble about which one of them shall ascend the Russian throne when there isn't any throne for either of them to ascend.

FACTS EASY AND CHEAP

"I cry for facts," said Owen Young speaking at John Hopkins on the proposed Walter Hines Page foundation for a school of international relations.

Facts! They are easy, if we will pay the very little they cost. Research experts are cheap—much cheaper than advocates or propagandists. Practically for the board, if they will endow foundations to pay that, they will dig out the facts.

The harder thing is the mind to head these facts. Fact-mindedness is our scarcest quality.

Scientists may have it, but they are not our leaders. The clergy exhort, lawyers argue, politicians orate or intrigue, business men "sell" ideas or "talking points," and journalists "play up" a "story"—what have these pseudo-mental processes to do with facts?

By these we have been trained, and are led and ruled. Fact-mindedness is the last achievement of human enlightenment. There is no such incorrigible theorist as your self-styled practical man.

Mr. Young and his associates can get us the facts far faster than we can develop the mind to utilize them.

Another educational foundation which is not seeking funds, but announces that it has them, is the Guggenheim endowment scholarships.

This, too, marks the new emphasis on facts. The Rhodes scholarships are primarily for the culture of men. They seek out young men of promising personality and gather them into England, from all over the world, to profit by its best cultural advantages and return to their own countries equipped as leaders of men.

The Guggenheim scholarships will search out tried specialists, competent to delve for truth, and send them out of America into all the world, to discover and bring back new knowledge.

Personality dominates in the one case; results in the other. The world will profit by both.

CLEAN MOTION PICTURES

In a recent speech made in Hollywood to a group of motion picture directors, Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., put the matter before his audience with a clarity that must have come startlingly to many ears. He told these leaders of film destiny that he understood and sympathized with the many intricate problems that lay before them, and he assured them that he had no intention of laying down formulas for what they should do. "I simply lay before you one formula," he said, "and that of what you must not do. You must not offend common decency. That's all."

There can be no doubt that Mr. Hays struck the vital spot of the 1925 situation when he summed up the whole question of censorship and film policy in this one forceful dictum. At a time when books and plays are becoming more and more emboldened in the presentation of salacious subject matter, it is an amazing thing to consider that the "movies" are almost automatically and voluntarily straightening up. Such a pronouncement as Mr. Hays' argues a state of affairs that is practically without precedent.

This cause of clean pictures is not being figured on from a purely moral basis either. The picture world is recognizing that it is as much a matter of business as sound morals to have a clean screen spread before the public. As if in answer to the general thought summed up in Mr. Hays' pronouncement comes the credo from one company to the effect that this concern is out to make only clean pictures. He realizes the value of such a policy from a sound business standpoint, and is pushing his slogan of "Studios where clean pictures are being made."

It may seem to be the "straight and narrow path" for this company, when on the neighboring lots the pursuit of the easy box-office dollar through sensational films is going on apace. Yet the cry of clean pictures is in the air and the support of the public is assured.

The only explanation of the curious protection that has guarded the moral tone of the screen almost from the beginning lies in the fact that it is the first art to have ever been dependent on the voice of the majority for its existence. There can be no pandering to the tastes of the few in this picture game, because the production and distribution aspects are so closely interdependent. It is also the first art form that must be strictly businesslike to succeed. If there is more business than art involved in the motion picture today, it is no harm to art in the long run. Perhaps the older arts have something to learn, after all, from this upstart of the present century, which is able at twenty to conduct its affairs with a decorum more or less forgotten by its elders. There need be no fear that in observing the requirements of common decency all originality and appeal will be driven from the screen. Rather will abstention from the objectionable lead screen talent into lines of greater beauty and invention. Mr. Hays is deserving of universal support in his campaign for clean pictures and sensible censorship.—Christian Science Monitor.
