BIBLE SCHOOL LESSON

Sunday, October 18th
By M. S. Briggs

Golden Text: "Now abideth faith, hope, love, these three, and the greatest of these is love."—I Cor. 13:13.

The Greatest Thing in the World
As men count, there are many great things in this world, but as Paul says, the greatest of these is love. The golden text of the Bible contains a great truth when it says, "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth on Him might not perish, but have everlasting life." (John 3:16.)

We cannot measure love only approximately. Then we have to range it up along something that we may get a slight conception of its volume. Love and eternal life are of such importance that earthly things cannot be compared with either.

Time and space have some of the attributes of love. When one steps out on a real stary night he gets a slight conception of how small and insignificant he really is himself.

In 1852, three years after the discovery of gold in California, a party of gold seekers started from Salem, Iowa, to the gold fields of California. They had an ox team. They crossed the Missouri river near Missouri Valley and came to the present site of Blair, in the then Nebraska territory, on their way to the land of gold beyond the setting sun. There they camped for the night, and bright and early the following morning, a portion went forward while another portion stayed to make some repairs on their outfit. Throughout the entire day the caravan that went on would in and out, over hill and valley, crossing creeks and rivulets and just as the sun was going down, the white tops of their covered wagons could be seen up the valley of the Platte, near where the town of Valley now stands.

A whole day and not out of sight, though traveling all the time. But that was 73 years ago. Not many years thereafter came the pony express which made over a hundred miles in the time which the prairie schooner had consumed in traveling this short distance.

Then came the railroad which now takes only four days for that distance, a rate which would circle the globe seven times within a second. Now we reverse the view.

It takes a little over eight minutes for light to travel from the sun to the earth. The nearest fixed star is Capello. It is far enough away from us to require light, traveling at the rate of 186,000 miles a second to consume three and a half years in getting here. "Some distance," you say. Now, just hold your breath. Many of the dimmer stars in the "Milky Way" require six million years for the light to come.

This is only one-half the unit of measurement of the heavens and De-De has said in the nineteenth Psalm "The heavens declare the glory of God." Now let us get the significance of this. Take these tangible things we can form no conception of either time or space. We may try to form in our mind the location of the end of space but what is on the other side. We get no adequate conception of the vastness of the universe. Still it is not greater than what John in his 3:16 "God so loved the world that he gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Then could Paul well say as he did, "The greatest of these is love." He said love is better than to speak with tongues, better than to know all mysteries; better than to have faith that will remove mountains. Here comes the kernel in the nut. One may do all the things a Christian does and still not be a Christian for the Christian is made by the purpose for which he does these things. If love be the actuating purpose then the Christian spirit is entertained. That love never faileth, for Paul said, "All other things shall fall even the earth shall be destroyed and the heavens shall roll up like a scroll in that last, but love like everlasting life endureth forever." Love, saith Paul, suffereth loving and is kind, the one loved may not even be appreciative of the love bestowed still the love continues. Who can count the strength of the mother's love, still it remaineth through the years.

The attraction of cohesion and adhesion are strung like iron or steel, still when subjected to intense heat the iron will run like water, all the cohesive forces are gone. The powers are confined between a very limited range of temperature, still the love of God is only purified by the adverse things for it shines brighter when tried by adversity. Love enliveth or vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, does not behave unseemly, is not easily provoked, taketh no account of evil, but rejoiceth in the truth, beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things. Love, which is true never faileth. People shall fall, the speaking with tongues shall cease.

knowledge shall be done away. Now we know but little only in part, but there cometh a day when love shall have her perfect work, we shall know fully as we are known. For now abideth faith, hope and love and the greatest of these is love. Then we shall know the truth and the truth shall make us free.

CAROL LOUISE MURRAY

Carol Louise Murray was born on December 24th, 1918, and passed to the world beyond October 11th, 1925, aged six years, nine months and 17 days. She was called home by a loving Saviour after an illness of but a few days.

To mourn her departure she leaves her grief stricken parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Murray and one sister, Christine Jane, aged 8 years.

Besides the dear ones of her family she leaves her aunts, uncles and cousins and many playmates whose hearts today are benumbed with pain at her going.

One sister, of the deceased preceded her in death April 21, 1918. As the baby of the family she has been the sunshine of the home. Her happy, lovable disposition won the hearts of all who knew her. Sad indeed is the home from which she has gone and their consolation consists in knowing that what is their loss has been Heaven's gain.

Carol Louise Murray was an attendant at the Sunday school at the Murray Christian church and was in her second year at the public school. "In the midst of life we are in death" has again been with force impressed upon us. As a child that was just ready to open its full beauty to the world around it she was stricken. As a lamb astray from the flock she has been sought out by the Saviour and carried home in his bosom. In His presence she has been crowned among those redeemed by the sacrificial blood of the Son of God. For such did Jesus come into the world and offer himself as a ransom for them from the curse of sin. Of such he said "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

For today in the sorrow and darkness of the world, a ray of sunshine filters through and brings to our hearts peace. For we know that "she is not dead but sleepeth." Services over the remains were conducted at Oak Hill cemetery by Rev. Walter R. Robb, pastor of the First Christian church in this city. Services were brief, but consolation was brought to the minds of the bereaved as the officiating minister assured them that it was for such that Jesus came into the world as a ransom for their sins, and faith. He said, "I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."

"And whosoever liveth and believeth thou shalt live." Believeth thou this? The nature of the complaint from which the child passed away, diphtheria, the services were confined to the immediate family.

FAIRBANKS IS HURT DOING A MOVIE STUNT

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 13.—Too much athletic vim was displayed by Douglas Fairbanks when he was helping his leading woman to the roof of a pirate ship's cabin during the filming of an exciting scene and the resultant strain caused one of his ribs to tear loose from his breast bone.

The accident occurred four days ago, it was learned at his studio tonight, but the film star did not realize the extent of his injury until today when his physician examined him and discovered the break. Plenty of plaster and a little caution will give the damaged rib a chance to catch hold again, the doctor said.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES

It is given out by the board of control of state institutions that construction will begin soon after July 1 on a new steam power plant for the state penitentiary, but outside of the walls. The late riot, will hasten the building program, which also includes a home for the warden.

The citizens of Gordon voiced their disapproval at a special election of the plan to sell the municipal lighting plant to an Iowa company on the theory that the price offered was only half enough.

Seattle's municipal street car system is losing patronage and is having a struggle to pay operating costs. The city is trying to purchase the competing privately owned line.

Farmers between Kennard and Herman and west of Blair are contracting for electric service from the company operating the transmission line that serves the two villages.

Electric manufacturers from Switzerland are in the United States to attempt to sell equipment looking toward the electrification of some of the large railroad systems in this country.

Road making cost one Nebraska electric company $9,000 in one month for moving pole lines and for which no damages were sought to be collected.

The Central Power company plans to spend $300,000 in betterments and extensions on its system centering at Grand Island and Kearney.

The Lincoln Electrical league will ask the city commission to pass an ordinance that will provide for the examination and licensing of electricians.

The voltage of the electric line from Gurley to Dalton is being increased from 6,500 to 22,000, which necessitates much rebuilding.

A new sugar beet factory is being planned for the south side of the river in the Scottsbluff valley.

The water system will be installed at Ashton if the citizens approve a contemplated bond issue.

The electric company at Blue Hill is rebuilding its local lines.

ASK WHY HE FIGHTS RAILROADS IN STATE

Insist That Attorney General Has Repeatedly Admitted Low Valuation of Nebraska Farms.

The ruling of the attorney general that he is without power to agree to the proposal of the railroad attorneys that he avoid piling up costs in the tax cases by stipulating that the state board has been valuing farm lands at 75 per cent, sharply criticized by the road's legal representatives.

They say that at least nine times in the federal courts in as many suits with the railroads, the attorney general has admitted in legal answers that ever since the organization of the state property generally has been undervalued for assessment purposes, and that in the 1921 cases 75 per cent was given as the ratio. The critics say that is too high, but that is no higher than they asked the state to stipulate before entering upon the trials started Tuesday.

It is pointed out that the state board and the attorney general both have admitted in these cases that in 1920 property generally was equalled by the board at 65 per cent of the true value, and the supreme court in the Rock Island case found that for 1923 the ratio did not exceed 68 per cent. In the face of these findings of unlawful discrimination against the railroads, they add and notwithstanding that the legislature in passing the intangible tax law recognized that the ratio did not exceed 70 per cent, the attorney general is unconvinced.

The railroad representatives think that the state officials are fearful of what would happen to them politically if they reduced railroad valuations. One of them submitted this comment: "The truth of the matter is that neither the attorney general's office nor the state board have the courage to do right in the matter. They, apparently, believe it is good politics for them to continue to discriminate against the railroads in the matter of taxes. But the people will surely tire of the prodigal expenditure of money by the attorney general's office in this fruitless litigation pretty soon. In all of it the state has not won a single point in any court. They have simply spent the people's money in playing politics on a subject which should be treated as a business proposition."

CAILLAUX EXPLAINS PROPOSAL DEBT PACT

DAVIS TO SUCCEED WEEKS AS SECRETARY OF WAR DEPT.

Latter Has Been Assistant Secretary and is the Youngest Member of the Cabinet.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Dwight F. Davis of Missouri today was appointed secretary of war.

He takes the place of John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, whose retirement because of ill health was formally announced at the White House. The change is effective immediately.

As assistant secretary, Mr. Davis has been actual head of the war department since last spring, when Mr. Weeks was sent to New England by his physicians for an operation and a long vacation.

In his letter of resignation Mr. Weeks said it became apparent that he must greatly prolong this vacation if he is to completely regain his health. President Coolidge replied that he acceded with great regret to the secretary's insistent request.

The new secretary, a lawyer and business man, is in his forty-seventh year and will be the youngest member of the cabinet. He has served in the National Guard and reserve corps, has been an active official of various financial, educational, charitable and recreational organizations, and is the donor of the Davis cup, the most celebrated of tennis trophies.

The change gives the president two cabinet officers of the same name, the secretary of labor being James J. Davis.

The new war secretary had combat experience in the World war. He was a captain in the Fifth Missouri infantry in 1917, and served with the Thirty-fifth division in the Argonne and St. Mihiel offensives as a lieutenant colonel. He was awarded the distinguished service medal and was twice mentioned in orders for gallantry.

He first entered politics in his native city, St. Louis, in 1907, when he was elected to old St. Louis house of delegates. He opposed the late Sheldon P. Spencer for the Missouri senatorship in 1920, but was defeated. President Harding made him a director of the War Finance corporation in 1921.
