W. C. T. U. Has Pleasant Social Time Monday

Splendid Program Is Given at the Home of Mrs. C. C. Wescott by Teachers of the City.

From Tuesday's Daily—
Yesterday afternoon the ladies of the W. C. T. U. held a most enjoyable meeting at the home of Mrs. C. C. Wescott and which was very largely attended by the members and their friends that filled the hospitable Wescott home.

The program that had been arranged for the occasion was one of a number of well selected readings by Mesdames Glen Valley, John M. Leyda and Frank Emory Pfoutz. In addition to the readings there were several musical numbers given by the new members of the city teaching force that added much to the enjoyment and interest of the occasion. Miss Lucy Goll was heard in two very artistic piano selections, "Ronsnee," by Schumann, and "Old Refrain" by Kreisler, both of which were very much enjoyed by the members of the party.

Miss Frahm was heard in two very beautiful vocal selections, "O Dry Thy Tears" and "The Rosary," which gave a splendid opportunity for the voice of the talented lady. Miss Goll played the accompaniment very charmingly.

Miss Dolores Bosse, another of the teachers of the city schools, gave a very charming dramatic darning, "Sealing Wax," that proved one of the most pleasant features of the program.

Realizing on the Benefits of T B Eradication

Representative of State Bureau Here to Explain Advantages of the Tests in Raising Values

From Wednesday's Daily—
At the session of the board of county commissioners yesterday at the court house, the members of the board had explained to them the advantages that will come to the hog raisers of Cass county through the eradication of the T B in the herds of the county, by giving the hogs and cattle from this county a greater value on the stock market, which will bring to the farmers of the county an increase of from $8,000 to $10,000 in premiums secured on the sale of the tested stocks and hogs free from T B.

The matter was presented to the county board by Dr. Spenser, well known representative of the state bureau, who gave the board a very close outline of the proceedings that would be necessary in order to get the greatest benefits to the hog and cattle owners. He explained that in some of the western Iowa counties that were cleared of T B there had been an increase in the value of the hogs marketed that amounted to $8,000 in the premiums received. Polk and Butler counties in the three months that they have been in the T B free class have secured premiums of $7,000 on their hogs marketed at the Omaha packing centers.

The owner of hogs will have his certificates signed and accompany the hogs on the journey to market and when the hogs have been sold the certificate will be presented to the commission house which in turn presents them to the packing houses that has purchased the hogs, and the owner is allowed the premium that is paid for hogs from T B free farms and from counties that are certified as free from this malady. There will be no premium paid by order buyers as the Farm Bureau has arrangements with only the packing houses.

The certificates must show by the statement of the owner that the hogs were bred and fed on the farms in the counties that are rates as free of T B. Hogs from farms and herds that have had T B found on them are entitled to the certificate.

The state asks that the board of county commissioners through their chairman govern the issuance of the certificates, although they can actually delegate the duty to the county agent or the county clerk, and in this county the work will probably be in the hands of County Agent Leroy Snipes, who has been very instrumental in securing this T B test in the county that will bring real returns to the farmers. Bankers at shipping points may also have the right to issue the certificates to the shippers.

Happy Hundred Hits Off on All Its Cylinders

Community Supper of the Men of City Draws Record Breaking Crowd Last Evening.

From Wednesday's Daily—
Whether the Happy Hundred suppers that have been held here for the past two years have been popular or not was very successfully answered last evening at the parlors of the First Presbyterian church when the largest crowd that has ever attended these events was present despite the rain and bad weather to enjoy the evening of fun and pleasure as well as a few dashes of earnest thought that was afforded ample time for the speaker, Harry A. Foster, of the University of Nebraska college of law as well as a spicy and clever prelude to the address afforded by local talent and made an evening that everyone felt had certainly paid them for their attendance at the supper.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church, who had the preparation of the menu and the serving in charge were up to their always high standard and had an array of good things prepared that certainly put everyone in the most pleasant of moods for the remainder of the program.

The tables for the supper were arranged with touches of autumnal decorations, autumn leaves and the bittersweet forming the base, with the red candles glowing in their cut glass candlesticks and adding a touch of color to the scene, surrounded by the smiling faces of the men of the community as they gathered for the feast, which made a real picture of a "Happy Hundred" and a few over.

Searl S. Davis, who by his aptness has won the permanent place of presiding officer at these suppers, was in his always pleasing vein and made a resume of the work of improvement in the city during the past year that gave the members of the supper party something in which to feel a glow of pride as the accomplishments were reviewed one by one. In closing, Mr. Davis touched upon a subject that is now being strongly urged—that of the graveling of the road from this city west to Louisville and Cedar Creek and which is sure to be one of the big issues of the coming season.

As has been the custom at these suppers there were greetings extended to the newcomers here who have come into the community to be identified with the business in some manner and in this list DeWitt Smith of the Nebraska Gas & Electric Co., John McLean, shoe dealer, K. J. Carterson of the Plattsmouth State Bank, Harry Parker of the H. M. Soennichsen Co. and Harvey Johnson, draftsman at the Burlington shops, were introduced and greeted by a song by the guests and the new members of the teaching force, J. W. Poynter, W. D. McMahon, B. G. Woodward and L. S. Fager. R. B. Felton, another member of the faculty, was unable to be in attendance at this meeting.

Toastmaster Davis called upon Mr. Fager for solo and was given his own expression, the victim of a "backfire" as the solo was one that gave the toastmaster a gentle roast. One of the clever stunts of the evening was the sketch given by Bruce Rosencrans which served to give everyone several moments of the greatest delight as he explained his various inventions that ranged from the non-skid bean holder for the table knife, with the added mouth guard to fit any mouth, the noiseless soup spoon and the sure-fire roasting ear holder down to the patent sidewalk that could be brought in each evening and which was recommended to Mr. Davis for use in the winter season when the snow gathers on the sidewalks. The sketch of "Ros N. Crane" was closed with the presentation of the model for the greatest ambition of the Happy Hundred—a new draw and auto bridge over the Missouri river.

The speaker of the evening, Prof. Foster, of the state university, was introduced by Mr. Davis in his usual pleasing manner and Mr. Foster at once started his address by a series of very clever stories that were well given and which were followed by his more serious discussion of the evening.

The subject selected by Mr. Foster was that of "The People, the Courts and the Criminal." This talk was on one of the greatest menaces of the modern day United States, the rising tide of lawlessness and the apparent helplessness of the people to combat the increase of crime and especially the capital crimes of murder and robbery as well as all manner of property crimes that are today greater in this nation than any nation of the world. In his opening remarks, Mr. Foster gave some very impressive figures as to the criminal record of the nation, showing that in the year 1924 there had been 10,000 murders committed in the United States, that there walked over the length and breadth of the land 135,000 unpunished killers, which was greater than all of the clergymen of all denominations in the country, 500 more than the all of the police force members in the nation. In comparison, Mr. Foster gave the record of murders in England and Wales that showed 100 murders in the year.

The loss to property from robberies, thefts and frauds in this country in the year was $5,000,000,000, a sum greatly in excess of the total cost of operating the government of this country for the same length of time.

In touching on local conditions Mr. Foster pointed out that in Nebraska in the last ten years there had been 429 murders and of these four had paid the penalty for their crime with their lives. In the years from 1900 to 1924, the population of the state has increased 20 per cent, while the population in the prisons and reformatories has leaped 100 per cent. In the juvenile cases, there has been an increase in the number of boys amounting to 400 per cent, while the increase in delinquent girls has amounted to fully 600 per cent. Mr. Foster stated that he did not believe there was any more of a moral weakness in the young men and women with whom he has come in contact in his school work, than in those of the past, and that he thought them as good or better than the youths of a decade ago, but that while this class of people had been able to resist the tendency of the times toward jazz and immorality in dress, there has been a wonderful drop in the morale of a submerged tenth of the people, where the girls have been carried away by the jazz spirit and the boys evolved into criminals, unable to withstand by force of character the tendencies of modern times, and have gone on down until they reached the prison or reformatory.

The glowing admiration of the lawless leader, the making of the criminal a hero was depreciated by the speaker as one of the evils of the day as was the gross sentimentality shown toward convicted criminals by large numbers and bodies of people and which weakened the spirit of the law.

The gravest crimes had shown the greatest gains of all and were the most serious danger of the American life today and should have the greatest effort to suppress and eliminate. The nation had to get the criminal or the criminal would get civilization, the speaker declared.

The tendency of the day to pass the buck was commented on by the speaker and who pointed out that lawyers would pass the buck to the legislature, the legislature to the people and the people to the churches and the schools, but still the criminal grew and flourished.

It was necessary, Mr. Foster stated, to have changes in the procedure in the trial of criminal cases to secure a just and fearless enforcement and carry out justice and to which the American Law Institute committee were now working on a three year plan for re-coding the criminal law so that punishment for the criminal would be more certain and that the two legal gods of the criminal—Delay and Technicality—would be wiped out.

The speaker stated one very impressive truth in his closing remarks in that morality could not be supplied by a legislative act or law and that instead of the great accumulation of laws that were ground out each year by the legislature of the state there should be less laws tending to try and regulate the persons habits of people and greater effort to stop the capital crimes that were fast destroying the spirit of the law. The enforcement of the prohibition law should be carried out, but also that the graver crimes should be rigidly prosecuted and the criminal made to fulfil the demands of the law to punishment. Life and property should be made safe if the government was to continue to function properly and this would require a united effort on the people to make criminal procedure better and modernized as he believed the law associations would recommend.
