Hearing on Platte Bottom Road Delayed

At Request of Plaintiff K. of T. Bridge Co., Hearing is Set for January 28th.

From Wednesday's Daily— This morning the hearing on the request of the K. of T. Bridge Co., vs. the Plattsmouth Auto & Wagon Bridge Co., for an injunction, was scheduled to come before district court for hearing. Judge Louis Lightner of Columbus, King of Trails company requests a permanent injunction against the defendant company to prevent them from removing the fence. After the fence was taken down by the defendant the plaintiff secured a temporary restraining order which is still in force as the hearing on the case has been postponed.

The plaintiff company has filed an affidavit of E. M. Westerfeld, the land commissioner of the Burlington railroad, to the effect that the land on which the road in question was run, was the property of the Burlington railroad, that the railroad company paid taxes on it and leased the road or the land on which it was located to T. H. Pollock, in the fall of 1925 selling the land on which the road was located to the King of Trails Bridge Co.

It is claimed by the plaintiff that the road is one of private nature while the defendant company contends that the highway is a public one.

Gov. McMullen Speaks at Happy Hundred Supper

State Executive Stresses the Need of Greater Responsibility of Citizens to the Nation.

From Wednesday's Daily— "Governor's night" on the yearly program of the "Happy Hundred" was one of the greatest success and the occasion of the visit here of Hon. Adam McMullen, governor of Nebraska, was one that was enjoyed by the large representative gathering of the men of Plattsmouth and vicinity at the parlors of the First Presbyterian church last evening.

In his address Governor McMullen touched upon a number of the leading problems of the day but the larger portion of his very able address was a plea for the participation of the citizen in the affairs of government and to combat the indifference to the affairs of the nation and state, such was evident at the last presidential election, when less than 50 per cent of the qualified voter of the nation cast their ballot for the naming of the national executive.

Governor McMullen was introduced by Searl S. Davis very briefly and in a well chosen manner, and the state executive at once entered into a brief discussion of one of the big problems of the west, the disposition of the surplus of the western farms, so that the farmer could receive an adequate return on the work of the year and which would insure him a living wage for his labors in providing food for the world. Organization of the farmers and citizens to secure results was urged by the governor, the active thorough organization of the farmers and the people of the west to handle this economical problem would find attention in Washington in securing what might be needed in the way of legislation, if the unity of those interested was made manifest. This spirit of "getting together" was praised by Governor McMullen as a wonderful thing, in a community organization like the Happy Hundred or in the farmers of the west, securing real results.

That it was a world wide movement was shown Governor McMullen declared by the fact that the leaders of the world were adopting this plan to bring international peace to the war torn world and which had already produced treaties that guaranteed the peace of the world or at least the European nations.

Another of the disconcerting trends of the modern day was that of attempting to get away from the fundamentals of the national life, the shaking of the ideals and basic facts on which the republic and all society are founded. It was a part of the trend of the times to shake off the old customs, the old teachings, to attempt to pick faults of flaws in the basic foundation of the nation—some calling it intellectual progress while others gave it the name of retrogression of the people. The maintaining of the home life, the family discipline, the sanctity of the church, protecting the schools were ideals that should be protected and cherished by all of the citizenry.

Observance of the law through the education of the people the awakening spirit of the national conscience should be important facts to be looked after. It was by public support that all measures were put into effect successfully. The governor cited the efforts of General Butler to handle the situation in Philadelphia, the failure being the fact that the public was not in support of the measures or acts, which was the result of the lack of the united effort of the people through an educated national consciousness.

The decay and fall of the Roman republic was through the indifference of the citizens of that nation the governor pointed out and urged that the citizens of the United States look well into the future that they too did not follow the same path.

Wellness was the price of liberty and the preservation of the free government, the citizenship of the nation must meet the obligation of the duty of the nation, the state and of the people was the cause of decay of the popular governments of the world.

Public opinion was at the basis of all laws and phases of government, a well organized and developed public opinion could swing the cause of any party or form of government and it was the duty of the citizens to see that a tolerant public opinion was formed that would make the nation safer and better. If too many changes be made in the constitution of the country it was because of a public opinion and that these changes might not express the sentiment of all of the people, was because of the fact that those who were interested failed to take their place in the first line of citizenship.

In closing the governor stated that the life of the nation depended on the character of the men and women and he urged a higher standard of moral and intelligent citizenship among the men and women of the nation.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church served one of their always enjoyable feasts and which opened the first part of the banquet.

To many of the party was given the first opportunity of hearing the Plattsmouth high school orchestra, under the directorship of Leroy Fager, and the work of the young people was one that received the most marked approval of the audience.

Mr. Fager also gave a short talk on the music in the schools and urged the formation of a band as well as orchestra in the school.

As guests of the evening, W. E. Towle, state representative who was in attendance at the meeting and was greeted with a song as was also E. H. Douglas, the new resident highway engineer of the state department of public works, the song birds joining in the singing of the welcome to the guests.

Rev. Harmon of Mynard, Mr. Lary, the telephone manager, George L. Farley were also given recognition by the toastmaster as was Carl Day of Weeping Water.

The special features of the evening were in the charge of Bruce Rosnerans and he presented Paul Vandervoort and Glen Jones, band leaders, who played in several numbers of the late popular selections and which furnished a very pleasant prelude to the interesting address of the governor.

A big K. of C. dance will be given at their hall on Wednesday, Jan. 13th.

NEW ELECTRICIAN ARRIVES
From Wednesday's Daily— The electrical department at the local Burlington shops which has been growing in importance in the last few years, has a new addition to the force of workmen engaged there. E. S. Carpenter of Chicago, an expert in the handling of electrical work such as is found in the railroad shop lines has arrived here and is now looking after the work for the railroad company at the shops here. Mr. Carpenter is a very genial and clever gentleman personally and while he has been here only a very few days he has made many friends with whom he has come in contact. Mr. Carpenter is a member of the Carpenter family that has so long been identified with the Carpenter Paper Co. of Omaha, the founders of which came from Illinois where there are still a large number of the family still residing.

The new head of the railroad electrical department here will find a hearty welcome from the Plattsmouth people and will find this a very pleasant place to reside when he has become thoroughly settled in the new home.

J. R. Noyes, Clyde Knutson, George Brenner, William Worth and C. G. Mayfield, accompanied J. W. Taylor, district deputy grand master of the I. O. O. F. lodge here to look after the installation of the officers of the Platte lodge, returned home this morning.

"ONE PRICE AND NO MONKEY BUSINESS!"

Forty-seven years ago this Spring, Mr. C. E. Wescott, the founder of this store, arrived in Plattsmouth and started to sell clothing to the people of this community. He adopted the above motto as his selling policy and we are glad to say it has been consistently adhered to ever since. It is time-tried and tested and we believe in it more today than ever before.

We believe you, the public, would rather trade at a store where the prices are marked in plain figures and where "juggling" and "Jewling" is unknown. If a suit of clothes is marked $35 you know it is worth $35 and you pay the same price for it as your neighbor.

We are confirmed in this "One Price and No Monkey Business" way of doing business, because frankly, we can give you better values day in and day out at $25, $30 and $35 than we could possibly give by a so-called cut price sale policy. Let us prove this to you.

Exciting Time Staged by Joe Mouch at Jail

Breaks Windows and Shatters Two Doors as Well as Attempting Suicide at the Jail.

From Wednesday's Daily— Yesterday afternoon the search for Joe Mouch, Nehawka man who was mentally deranged early yesterday morning, came to an end when the man was located in a field three miles northwest of Union and where after some diplomatic work on the part of Sheriff Stewart and Officer Libershal, the man was induced to part with his gun and to accompany the officers to Plattsmouth where he was placed in the county jail for safe keeping.

The unfortunate man last evening about 9:30 started a disturbance that continued for practically the entire night and not only kept the jail in a turmoil but his screams and cries aroused all of that part of the city and made sleep in the immediate vicinity of the jail a matter of impossibility.

The man had rested easy after reaching the jail and while the sheriff was conversing with him became calm and apparently docile but later in the evening he was taken suddenly violent and started a near riot. The first intimation of the outbreak was when Sheriff Stewart, who was in the dining quarters of the jail heard the crash of glass as the infuriated patient broke out two of the windows in the hospital room of the jail. Mouch then tore off the mattress from his bed and using the steel cot as a battering ram broke down the door sufficiently to allow him to open the bolts and get into the hallway. In the meantime Sheriff Stewart called Officers Libershal and Jackson to come to the jail and assist in subduing the man, who by this time had broken down the second door of the insane ward and was in the main portion of the jail. It required a great deal of effort to overpower the unfortunate man who was taken back to his room and this time was confined in a strait jacket, from which he later extricated himself and about midnight made an attempt to kill himself, reaching the window that he had broken and securing a piece of broken glass attempting to slash his throat and succeeded in inflicting a gash that made necessary the services of a surgeon to close.

Other prisoners in the jail were used as watchmen for the man for the remainder of the night as his struggles and cries continued unabated for several hours and required the use of narcotics to quiet him and give him any peace.
