THE PROFESSOR'S EGGS
A professor in an American college has discovered how to produce the white of an egg without calling on the chicken.
However, the advantage still rests with the hen, as the professor is still at a loss what to do for the yolk and the shell.
The professor has not yet learned to cackle and we are willing to bet him three trillion dollars—just as soon as we earn it—that he can't put his white into a real egg and make it hatch.
Nevertheless, he has started the scientific world and fairly dazed the patrons of quick lunch rooms.
The day may be near at hand when we will be getting fresh country eggs from college professors instead of from chickens, and throwing cracked corn into university class rooms instead of hen houses.
The only question is whether professors will lay 'em any cheaper than 60 cents a dozen.
Poultrymen are very much alarmed. They have put in millions of young chicks in anticipation of next year's business but not one faculty member.
The professor who has produced half an egg is being given great encouragement. The dean has provided him with a splendid home of six rooms and four nests, and guaranteed him all the gravel he can scratch.
The professor has been besieged with handsome offers to be exhibited at poultry shows and has been guaranteed an extra fine roost if he will attend.
A wealthy alumnus of the college involved has already made a gift of $250,000 to equip the university with marble hen houses and chicken runs for professors who are good layers.
The dean is understood to be a little dissatisfied with this particular professor's work. He says no professor should start anything he can't finish. His idea is that he should produce a whole egg or none.
Meanwhile the public is waiting for further news. What it wants to know is whether it will have to go to college to get its eggs.
And, if so, will it need a diploma to buy bacon.

FOR YOUNG AND OLD

Senator Henry V. Bergenger, the new French ambassador to the United States, did not have a great deal to say when he arrived in New York. A rather taciturn man, this Bergenger, as a diplomat ought to be. Some one asked him why he did not keep up his writing, for the ambassador has written good things. The reply was contentious.
"Writing," said the ambassador, "is for the young and the old. I am no longer young and I am not yet old. Therefore I do not write."
Of course most of the great men of letters have written through all their years. The men who are not great in literature but who have written a few things of merit are likely to be young or old. The twenties and the seventies are productive decades. Bergenger wrote good books thirty years ago. Twenty years hence he may write books again.

RUDY'S DIVORCE

Rudolph Valentino's divorce case, now before the tribunal of the Seine, in Paris, discloses some facts that are not generally known to the public.
Mrs. Valentino, it seems, was Winifred Shaughnessy, but was adopted by a family named De Wolfe. Later her adopted mother married Richard Hudnut of New York, the wealthy perfumer. On the stage, as most everyone who followed Rudy's affairs knows, she was known as Natacha Rambova.
She contends she has a right under the French law to a divorce according to the statutes of Indiana, where they were married. Desertion and refusal to return to the home they established, are her grounds.
She said nothing about desertion when she first made known her marital difficulties in this country. Then it was merely an agreement to go different ways. But she very probably would have gotten the divorce in either Paris or this country. Nobody yet seems to have devised a way to keep the movie stars from getting out of any marriage they get into.
As time goes on and all other methods fail, those efficient and ardent law enforcers, arterio-sclerosis and high blood pressure will come to the rescue of the prohibition law.

SAVING AND SPENDING

Times are flush. Everybody is making money. You pay $1 for a simple meal in a restaurant and think nothing of it. Ten-years ago you could have had a better meal for 50 cents with a glass of wine thrown in.
Tempora mutantur at nos mutamur in illos. An old Latin proverb which means, "The times change and we change with them." Some philosophers maintain that we are being "short-changed."
But while the money is coming in it is a good idea to save some of it for a rainy day. It rains a lot in this country.
How much shall we save? What proportion of our income shall we "blow in" for a merry life—and what proportion shall we put into the sock in expectation of the deluge?
Says the Old Testament—"He heapeth up riches and knoweth not who shall gather them."
Says the New Testament—"And Jesus looked round about, and saith unto his disciples, 'How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God.'"
Of course you can interpret both these statements in your own way. Most people do, depending largely upon how much they've got.
If we all were to "cut out" every luxury, buy only that which we absolutely need and save every cent that we could for the rainy day, our bank accounts would surely grow. But the widespread traffic among human beings which we call business would be hurt, damaged possibly destroyed.
Then, to our horror, we would find our income affected. We would not only have nothing to save but we would find that we are not making enough to pay for a comfortable living. We would be compelled to dive into the "rainy day" fund. And, when that was empty—the bread line.
Therefore, in order to have the opportunity to save we must spend. And that brings us back to the starting point.
How much shall we save? How much shall we spend?
The real estate salesman urges you to buy a good piece of property and save all the rest of your money to pay for it. Unfortunately, he does not guarantee you that the property you buy will turn out to be good.
The automobile salesman will advise you to buy a car and enjoy your life and build up your health. But it takes real money to keep up a car after you get one.
John D. Rockefeller always advised people to save their money. Gus Hill, the well-known theatrical producer, says, "There are no pockets in the shroud."
We all are in a ticklish position. We must not save too much. It would upset the equilibrium of business. We mustn't spend everything. It would leave us in the lurch in our old age.
Won't somebody, who knows, kindly tell us just how much to spend and how much to save?

ORDER OF HEARING AND NOTICE OF PROBATE OF WILL

In the County Court of Cass county, Nebraska.
State of Nebraska, County of Cass, ss.
To all persons interested in the estate of Alice H. Davis, deceased:
On reading the petition of Mabel Cook praying that the instrument filed in this court on the 6th day of January, 1926, and purporting to be the last will and testament of the said deceased, may be proved and allowed, and recorded as the last will and testament of said instrument be admitted to probate, and the administration of said estate be granted to Mabel Cook as Administratrix:
It is hereby ordered that you, and all persons interested in said matter, may, and do, appear at the County Court to be held in and for said county, on the 1st day of February, A. D. 1926, at ten o'clock a. m. to show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted, and that notice of the pendency thereof be given to all persons interested in said matter by publishing a copy of this Order in the Plattsmouth Journal, a semi-weekly newspaper printed in said county, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing.
Witness my hand, and seal of said court, this 6th day of January, A. D. 1926.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE

In the District Court of Cass county, Nebraska.
In the Matter of the Application of A. O. Ault, Administrator of the Estate of Edward P. McBride, deceased, for License to Sell Real Estate to Pay Debts.
Now on this 21st day of December, A. D. 1925, comes A. O. Ault, Administrator of the estate of Edward P. McBride, deceased, and presents his petition for license to sell real estate of the deceased to pay debts outstanding against said estate; and it appearing from said petition that there is insufficient personal property in the hands of said administrator to pay the claims presented and allowed by the County Court and the expenses of said administration and that it is necessary to sell the whole of said real estate of said deceased for the payment of claims and costs of administration:
It is therefore Ordered and Adjudged that all persons interested in the estate of Edward P. McBride, deceased, appear before me, James T. Begley, Judge of the District Court, in the office of the Clerk of the District Court in the court house, in the City of Plattsmouth, in Cass county, Nebraska, on the 21st day of February, 1926, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any there be, why license should not be granted to A. O. Ault, Administrator of said estate, to sell all of the real estate of said deceased so as to pay claims presented and allowed with costs of administration.
It is further Ordered that notice be given to all persons interested by publication of this Order to Show Cause for four (4) successive weeks in the Plattsmouth Journal, a legal newspaper published and of general circulation in said County of Cass, Nebraska.
By the Court.
JAMES T. BEGLEY, District Judge. 14-4w
