A CUP OF WATER

Whoever shall give you a cup of water to drink in my name, because ye belong to Christ, verily I say unto you, he shall not lose his reward.—Mark 9:41.

Ex-Secretary Weeks dies after long illness.

The new civil war pension bill goes in effect August 4th.

Chicago robbers locked a butcher in the ice box. He kept cool.

Anything can happen. In Atlanta, Ga., a water wagon caught fire.

To remove freckles have a date with a man who needs a shave.

Kansas City cats are happy. About 500 dogs were killed in rabies scare.

Chiggers are tiny things, but you can always count them after you scratch.

If you could get a good trained spider, he could put a new paid of stockings on your daughter.

From the latest best seller in fiction—"Pretty Geraldine opened her vanity case, powdered her nose and took a small drink from her two-ounce gold flask she always carries on a motoring trip." This way, Officer!

Now, what next? Speak up!

Twenty-three U. S. senators ask for probe of mergers.

Our commonest faults are the ones we are slowest to forgive.

That Tacna Arica stuff looks like it would be good for chiggers.

No man is quite so good as he thinks his son-in-law should be.

The saxophone was invented in 1840 by Adolphe Sax. He escaped.

H. G. Wells published a novel in three volumes, it not being illegal.

The political bee buzzes loudest when political mtney smells like pie.

Mighty few folks have to be called down for underestimating their ability.

Women can do things man can't. Women can get their pictures in the papers in bathing suits.

Matrimony is a vortex where half the females are trying to get out and half are trying to get in.

The Connecticut woman who found Bankbooks good for $4,000 in the frame an oil painting given to her had no reason to complain of that kind of a "frameup."

A Canton, Ohio man has a gander 22 years old, which probably owes its long life to acting like a goose.

An educated man earns four times as much as an uneducated man, and knows forty times as many ways to spend it.

News from Honolulu—Big drought, grass skirts turning to dust. But it will very likely rain before you can get there.

Briand has politically died nine times, and the fact that he is once more premier seems to prove that he is no political tom-cat.

There is a closed season for quail, fish and most other kinds of game, but none for the editor. Pot shots at him seem to be always lawful.

In a Mexican election nine persons were killed and fourteen injured. In Pennsylvania they cut out the rough stuff and hire the voters.

They had an earthquake in the island of Malta. It doesn't matter much, but we were just wondering if cows there give Malta milk.

Now we can all get down to business with nothing else to worry about. Well, we have had our share of amusements for some time.

According to a Pittsburgh paper the Pennsylvania slush fund has now reached the sum of $1,816,455. Where do they get the 45 cents.

Two Italian editors finished a controversy by fighting it out with swords. In America the editors fight with Remingtons, Royals and Underwoods.

Women are supposed to lend grace to politics, but we notice that the campaign against Ma. Ferguson in Texas has none of the appearance of a petting party.

Talk about mixup politics. Missouri is in worse shape than any state. We say that Harry Hawes ought to be elected senator. The ablest man in the whole outfit.

A prominent New York lawyer dropped dead from excitement while racing his yacht off Long Island the other day. It doesn't take much to excite some people.

A women's society in Vermont organized for the purpose of discouraging marriage among their members has been disbanded on account of members marrying every time they get a chance.

In the United States there are 104 men to every 100 women. In England there are 140 women to every hundred men, and in Germany there are 170 women to every 100 men. Our nation's gain is another one's loss.

The Beregaria reports sighting a school of six whales, one of which turning back after crossing the liner's bow, was struck by the vessel and killed. What puzzles us, though, is why they call the six whales a school. It looks like they would be called a college when they get that big.

A South African chemist claims to have a process which will enable him to take photographs direct on sensitized paper, develop and "set" the paper and produce a lasting picture within two minutes after the exposure. If this is a fact, the cost of photography will be cut down at least fifty per cent.

The American Society of Teachers of Dancing, which is holding a convention in New York, has decided that the Charleston is too acrobatic for parlor or ballroom. But surely they don't mean acrobatic; contortionistic is the right word. It may not be a good word in the eyes of the lexicographers, but it describes the Charleston perfectly.

Don't fail to see the 11-year old wizard coming to the Parmele Wednesday and Thursday nights. This is one of the greatest events that has come to the Parmele in many months. It is seldom that Baby Dodo appears in person in towns of this size, and Messrs. Clويد and Moore deserve great credit for their efforts in securing this wonderful child. Both old and young should see her.

An interesting dispatch from Washington says a public seminary in side-board brewing will be held for the benefit of backward New Yorkers who haven't been able to obtain success from the prohibition or good liquor from their favorite bootleggers. Representative La-Guardia, who held a course at the capitol recently in side-board brewing, will be the chief chemist at the New York seminary, the dispatch adds, and he will walk up to a soda fountain order a bottle of tonic and near beer and proceed to show the curious just how it is done.

LAME DUCK GOVERNMENT

Of all the asinine things this democratic and supposedly enlightened nation is compelled to witness, the most inexcusable is the spectacle of its laws being enacted and its policies shaped by a congress many of whose members have been repudiated at the polls by their constituents. This spectacle in its most glaring phases will be re-enacted next December when the short session of the present congress convenes—and nothing will be done to prevent it. The republican party has been pretty well split over the World Court, prohibition and farm relief. Four of its outstanding senators have been defeated for re-nomination and party discontent combined with the growing aggressiveness of the democratic party is likely to end in the retirement of many republican representatives at the fall election. Yet the anomaly will be presented of these lame duck senators and lame duck representatives occupying their accustomed seats when congress reconvenes and by their votes and voices perhaps wielding the decisive influence in all the important matters that come up for consideration in that session. Meanwhile the senators-elect and the representatives-elect, who have been called to these seats by the voters, will cool their heels figuratively in the legislative ante-rooms until December, 1927, more than a year following their elections.

This freakish inconsistency in our national government will require a constitutional amendment for its obliteration. Session after session efforts have been made to bring about the submission of such an amendment to the legislatures of the states, and session after session a little coterie of politicians has been able to obtain action during the closing days of this session. Resolutions looking toward the submission of the amendment have been passed by the senate, it is almost certain that if they came to a vote in the house they would be approved by that body, but they are held up by the autocratic committee on rules. It passes understanding why there should be the faintest opposition to this very necessary change except from those narrow-gauged politicians who already have joined the army of lame ducks or see the handwriting on the wall that forewarns them of their membership in that army after the next election. Such opposition is bred in selfishness and cupidity—congress should find a way to ride over it roughshod.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, though a republican, urges the election of William B. Wilson, as the correct nominee for senator in Pennsylvania, as the correct solution of that state's political situation. Such a result, he says, would put a good man in office and would be "the hope that Pennsylvania will not wait for the senate to unseat Mr. Vare, for that would simply mean that Vare's successor would be named by Mr. Mellon, and "the prize would go to the highest bidder."

Harsh comment this, but deserved. But Senator Norris, we fear, has only partially diagnosed the Pennsylvania situation. There is more than a corrupt electorate. Where thousands upon thousands of votes were bought, as in the Pennsylvania primary, the same number of votes were sold.

When that aspect of the situation is considered Pennsylvania's case is deplorable.

Few of us look the way we think we do. In this we are lucky.

FARM BUREAU NOTES

Precaution in Canning
At this time of the year most people prefer fresh fruit and vegetables so it is well to have the family eat an abundance of them while they are in season. It is not good economy to cut down on the amount of fresh food on order to have a supply to can. Canning is a good and economical way to preserve products for future consumption, but one needs to be cautious at each step in the process so there will not be a waste of time of products. Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the selection of products which are in the best of condition for unless tender, carefully selected products go into the can it will be impossible to have the best of canned food to serve the family.

Simple Water Systems
It is surprising how cheaply a simple water system can be installed. The very simplest consists of an ordinary pitcher pump placed at the kitchen sink by which water can be drawn from the cistern and used for household purposes. Such an installation would not cost more than $25 or $30. Later on this simple arrangement can be modified somewhat and by adding a force pump and a range boiler as well as a water back to the stove both hot and cold water can be had at the sink. The cost in this case need not exceed $75.00 or $80.00. Another means of securing water under pressure is the attic tank which can be pumped by a windmill or by hand and allowed to run back by gravity to the kitchen and bath room.

For the owner who can afford to spend more money, there is a great variety of systems from which one can choose, the elevated tank in the yard made of wood or masonry, the underground tank placed on a hill, which is the best of all, and the various manufactured types among which might be mentioned the pneumatic system using an electrically operated pump and the fresh water system wherein the water is brought from the bottom of the well directly to the faucet.

POOR PATRIOTISM

Members of congress who are making an ado about the proposed foreign made markers on the graves of American soldiers and sailors in France seem had pressed for an issue. It is of course part of a false commercial doctrine that everything bought abroad must necessarily represent a loss either to American producers of the same articles, or to workers on the same commodities or materials.

A majority of the parents and relatives of the American dead in France, if they were asked their opinion, would doubtless be willing to see the markers bought abroad. Their interest is in having the American cemeteries in France well kept, and the graves of individual soldiers appropriately marked. Who shall make and get the markers and whether they shall be cut from Indiana limestone or Flanders granite are subjects too trifling for their serious consideration.

Should the policy of having markers made here and shipped abroad be accepted, it would be said, and with a measure of justification, that we were determined to commercialize the war and its consequences even to our dead. Europeans are disposed to criticize us for a peculiar indifference to the fitness of things. The exportation of markers to be used on the graves of our war dead would add new substance to the charge.

HELL GET ALONG

A young man living on the shores of Lake Erie bought himself a sailboat with which to while away some happy summer hours on the water.

Two or three days after he bought it someone stole it. Now that was a sad thing to happen to any young man who has just bought a boat. But being a man of action, the erstwhile yachtman wasted no time in idle reflection and crying over spilt milk, but hid himself to an airplane field where he chartered a plane and flew over the lake in search of his stolen craft.

He found it, beached at a port some miles away. We are willing to wager that this enterprising young man will get on in this old world.

A New York insurance salesman gave up his job and declared to his boss that he was a flat failure and unable to sell anything. "Go to a barber shop and have that little moustache shaved off and make another try," the boss told him. The young man followed this advice, and is now one of the best salesmen on the force. If you can pick out the moral to this paragraph, help yourself.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE
In the District Court of Cass county, Nebraska.

In Re: Application of Frank A. Clويد, Administrator of the estate of Charles H. Sheldon, deceased, for license to sell real estate to pay debts.

INTUITION

Women are inquisitive. They simply will not believe a thing unless it is true. Not unless they want to believe it.

Consider one Chicago girl. A man gave her the ring. The stone was almost large enough to be an imitation. He spent money freely.

She thought she loved him. One night they were at a road house. "Marry me now," said he. "No," said the girl. "Let's wait. If you love me enough to live with me always, you love me enough to wait a few months."

It was her "intuition." Later the police found out that he had three wives.

Bids are now in for the Kansas City Star plant, and a whole raft of publishers are much interested in who gets it. Numerous Eastern publishers want it. We will see who gets it when the bids are opened.

A Florida woman makes her living catching moths and butterflies. Some women make their living being moths and butterflies.

WHY Procrastinate? Don't protect your profits? Feed stock to feed flies?

When White Gold plus ANTI-FLY SALINE means a larger Bank Balance for you.

Professor J. W. McCulloch, Department of Entomology, Kansas State Agricultural College, said:

"Flies are unquestionably an important factor to the live stock industry. Their presence results in worry and irritation to the animal, which is reflected in loss of appetite and the general run-down condition of the animal. Where abundant flies cause a serious loss of blood to animals by their piercing and sucking habits. Dairymen frequently report a loss to the milk supply of from 40 to 60 per cent in years when the flies are especially troublesome. The loss of weight is also an important item to beef cattle and to work animals. In some years, losses of from 10 to 25 per cent in weight have been noted. One other item which might be mentioned is that of the loss of time to the farm operations, since it frequently is impossible to work horses owing to the presence of large numbers of flies in the field."

The stable or stock fly is a farm robber that unless checked, produces great losses to owners of all kinds of stock.

The J. & R. Stock Salt Co., of Omaha, Nebraska, manufacturers of Anti-Fly Saline, the modern fly fighting method, has made it possible for stockmen, dairymen and horsemen to combat the fly pest by supplying your merchant with Anti-Fly Saline which you can purchase in 25, 50 and 100 pound white cotton bags. This product is a pinkish white and is fed in the usual way at your salt licks. It is safe and sure, and costs but very little over other salt prices. Ask your merchant. Once you feed Anti-Fly Saline you realize what a haven has been discovered for your stock. They can feed contentedly during the day. No more loss of milk yield and the vitality of your stock is not impaired by the blood-sucking fly.

Remember Anti-Fly Saline

Stock likes it. Stockmen praise it. The J. & R. Stock Salt Co., of Omaha manufactures it. And your merchant will supply you with Anti-Fly Saline. Start feeding it today and stop feeding stock to feed flies. Your merchant can supply your needs in specially packed 25, 50 or 100 pound bags. Anti-Fly Saline will cost you about 10 to 12 cents per month per head to immune stock. If your local dealer cannot supply you, write—
