GUARD AGAINST FRICTION

Delay and danger

In mid-ocean with a heavy sea running, a burned out bearing means laying to for hours. It sets the stage for trouble. Costly delay is inevitable. Disaster may be close at hand.

Just the same with a motor. When lubrication fails, you are in trouble. A burned out bearing may easily mean a broken rod or shaft, an annoying delay, a big repair bill, even if you escape an accident.

It pays to be particular about the kind of motor oil you buy. Motor oils are not alike in anything except appearance. Some run thin as soon as the motor warms up. Some quickly choke a motor with hard carbon. Polarine resists heat and protects every bearing, rod and moving part against friction and wear with a strong elastic oil cushion. Polarine is the finest motor oil that a generation of experience, experiment and the most modern manufacturing equipment has been able to produce.

Polarine Oils are carefully made to suit the lubricating system, the clearances in bearings and between moving parts—to stand the normal operating heat of the motor without breaking down and running thin—to exactly suit the needs and requirements of the motors for which they are recommended.

Polarine oil engineers and automotive experts tried all kinds of oil in all makes and types of motors before they drew up the Polarine Chart for your guidance. It is built up on knowledge, not on guesswork. Buy the grade of Polarine it specifies for your car. Renew the oil every 500 miles or as frequently as the manufacturer recommends. You'll save yourself a lot of inconvenience and expenses.

Polarine is made in six grades—Polarine Light, Medium, Heavy, Special Heavy, Extra Heavy and Polarine "F" for Fords—a grade for every make, type and age of motor, under all operating conditions. Buy Polarine for protective lubrication where you buy Red Crown the Balanced Gasoline. Look for the Red Crown Pump and the Polarine Sign.

Pope Pius Frowns on Peace Move in Mexican Struggle

New Bid for Truce by Archbishop; Calles Expected to Reject Plan to Suspend Proposal.

Mexico City, Aug. 11.—Another Catholic overture for a truce in the religious conflict has been made. Archbishop Vera Y. Zuria of Puebla has sent a communication to President Calles asking the chief executive to suspend the religious regulations until congress convenes, in the hope that less severe regulations will be enacted and the controversy ended.

President Calles has not made any official reply, but it is stated in reliable quarters that there is no prospect whatever of the president accepting the proposal or ordering a suspension of the regulations.

Rome, Aug. 11.—In behalf of the holy see, the vatican organ, Osservatore Romano, says that so long as the Mexican government's "persecutive religious laws remain in effect, no negotiations are possible between the civil and ecclesiastical authorities."

"From the holy father to the last faithful," he adds, "the entire Catholic church will trust to the invincible arm of prayer as all its force and all its hope."

The vatican newspaper devotes a three-column article in Tuesday evening's edition to analyzing Mexico's religious law and points out to the Mexican foreign minister "the true cause of the present disturbance."

"This cause," it says, "lies entirely in the government's anti-religious action, culminating in the law, which was put into effect on July 31."

After describing the articles of this law, the newspaper continues: "If religious activities are suspended, whose fault is it? The government with a stroke of the pen decreed violent and immediate suppression, as far as possible, of Mexico's ecclesiastical life. If this was President Calles' intention he might have saved himself the trouble of compelling the articles of the law, by limiting himself to repeating the ancient order of the persecutors of the Christians—'It is unlawful for you to exist.' Had he done this he would have been more sincere."

"It was not necessary to formulate the tyrannical impositions of Cicero, who, although a pagan, was a man of good sense, and who said that a law is not a law if it is not just. But President Calles' law is tyrannical and its application has been Neroian."
