Give and Excellent Program. The Christian Bible school on last Saturday evening gave one of the best programs which have been furnished for the entertainment of the good people of Murray and community for some time. There were a large number of people present to enjoy the occasion and all surely appreciated the excellence of the numbers presented.

The orchestra opened the well planned program, which is composed of Martin Sporrer, Chester Sporrer, Miss Rose Reed and the Rev. W. E. Going and furnished many very excellent numbers.

Miss Geneva Urish on the violin and her brother, John Urish on the banjo produced some excellent music as well as John Jacob Jchaeffier, who sang some very fine songs. Miss Kathryn Leyda gave several readings, while Master Lloyd and Idella Leyda furnished a number of musical parts. LeRoy Wilson gave a number of very excellent readings.

Leland Woods Meets Death. Leland Wood was born in Murray October 27th 1903, and who is a great nephew of Uncle B. A. Root, and who has been making his home in Lincoln for a number of years, he being a great musician, met death on last Thursday by falling from a cliff in Colorado, where he and his mother and sister were spending their vacation. They had gone to Estes Park, Colo., and while the sister and mother were getting the supper and arranging the camp he started to climb the mountain side, and dark coming on he must have missed his footing and fell some four hundred feet, to his death. When he did not return to camp the terrified mother and sister sought assistance of the rangers, but was told that it would be useless to try and find him that night, as the mountains were dangerous. The body was not found until the following day. The funeral occurred from the Christian church at Y and 27th street at Lincoln on last Monday and a large number of the people of Murray attended. The young man was born and grew to be somewhat of a lad before leaving Murray.

Those attending from this place to pay their last tribute of honor and respect were: B. A. Root, J. W. Edmunds, Mesdames A. G. Long and Wm. Sporrer, Chester Sporrer, C. D. Spangler and family, Mesdames Roy Howard and J. E. Hatchett, Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Brandel and son, Richard, Mrs. Myra McDonald, Mrs. W. L. Seybold, Mrs. E. W. Milburn. There were there also from York Dr. B. A. Root, George Root of Omaha, Ray Deacon of Colorado, Frank Root and wife of Aurora, Ill., Paul Gauts of North Platte, Mrs. M. Faught of Cozad, and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Deal. The remains were laid to rest in the beautiful Wyuka cemetery.

There were there for the occasion, besides the hostesses and families, Glen Perry and family, being Mrs. Perry and son, Cyril, and daughter, Helene, C. L. Brady and wife and their nephew, Bobbie Roman, Miss Thelma Pitman and Miss Alice Pollock of Plattsmouth.

James Earhart Testifies. James Earhart put in a large patch of tomatoes and they bore splendidly yielding him many fine large tomatoes, and as he had more than he had any use for inserted an advertisement in the Journal and soon the people came from all directions for them and they were soon all gone. He had people from Nehawka and other distant places for the luscious fruit and James says it surely pays to advertise.

They Had Better Be Careful. Some people about Murray had better be a little careful, as they will get their needings. They have been entering people's homes at night, when people are away and also when at home asleep, and also they hijacked some home made wine, and were somewhat hilarious from the result. The people are getting tired of these pranks, and are ready to give them a warm reception.

Thinks Crows Look Fine. Addison F. Boedecker living a few miles southwest of Murray, has been visiting at Craig, which is north of Omaha for some time was the guest of his son, Frank Boedecker, who is the receiver of the Bank of Craig, which he is putting on his feet again. Returning Mr. Boedecker arrived home on last Tuesday and also visited for a short time at the home of his sister in Louisville, Mrs. Phillip Keeler. Mr. Boedecker speaking of the condition of crops where he has been visiting said that the corn was very good and looked like it would make as good a crop as in ordinary years. Mr. Boedecker will expect to depart in the course of a month for Lang, Wyoming, where he will visit with his brother, Henry Boedecker.

United Presbyterian Notes. W. F. Graham, Pastor. Sabbath school at 10:00 a. m. Y. P. C. U. at 7:45.

On account of the Tarkio Missionary conference Aug. 14-22, the pastor expects to be absent from his pulpit for two Sabbaths.

"Be a square shooter." "Remember the Sabbath and keep it holy." We are not giving the Lord a square deal when we steal his time for secular affairs whether we spend that time in selling and buying goods, or joy riding, or attending ball games, golf games, raccos, or in engaging in other sports. Shall we make America a pagan nation? "Six days shalt thou labor, but the seventh is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God." Why encourage business and pleasure to compete with the church on the Lord's day. Why encourage people to patronize secular institutions and boycott the Church of Jesus Christ?

Obituary of Leland Wood. George Leland Wood was born at Murray, Nebraska, on October 27, 1903 and died August 5, 1926, aged 22 years, 9 months, and 8 days.

Leland received his education in the schools of Lincoln starting in the school at Whittier. He attended the grade school, high school, and university. He became a member of the East Lincoln Christian church about the year 1913, being baptized by Rev. J. W. Hilton.

Mr. Wood was an unusual student and musician. He began his musical career at the age of 7, studying with Edna Wright Carey in the Fine Arts department of Cotner College. He was an accomplished violinist and pianist. He received the Pi Kappa Lambda honors from the University School of Music, where he graduated in 1925, and the Pi Beta Kappa honors from the State University the same year.

Leland first studied violin at the age of 10 years with Mrs. Emily afterwards studying with Prof. Carl Frederic Steckleberg. His teacher, Prof. Steckleberg, described Mr. Wood as "a young man with a brilliant record and a promising future."

Leland was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Wood. The father died before Leland's birth and although the son never got to associate with his father in this life, he displayed to the world the same sterling traits of character and points of musical ability possessed by the father. It was the father's request that his children should receive both a general college and a musical education. It has been the mother's task and privilege in life to carry out this request of her husband and the high character of these two young people speak of the mother's great success in life.

Mr. Leland Wood belonged to the local chapter of the Sinfonia Musical Society, serving as its treasurer this year. Recently Mr. Wood went to Chicago where he met Prof. Auer, the world famous violinist, and heard him in his last public concert. Mr. Auer declared he showed great ability and advised further study. After teaching this term in the School of Music, Mr. Wood planned to take a course under Prof. Auer.

Mr. Wood leaves his mother, Mrs. Minnie Wood of 2910 Vine St., and one sister, Harriet Velma Wood, to mourn his loss.

Funeral services were held in his honor at the East Lincoln Christian church Monday afternoon, August 9, at 4 o'clock. His former pastor, Rev. Hilton, read the obituary and made some touching remarks. Rev. Johnson read the scripture and offered prayer, and Rev. Leonard gave the funeral address. Intimate friends furnished lovely music and acted as pall bearers. The choir of the church attended the service in a body. Mr. Wood was laid to rest by the side of his grandparents in Wyuka Cemetery.

BIBLE SCHOOL LESSON

Sunday, August 15th
By M. S. Briggs

Golden Text: "To each one his work."—Mark 13:34.

The Overburdened Judge

Living for forty years without the haunts of man, Moses obtained a different perspective, that was workable with a large number of people. It was God's plan that the people should assist, and in fact do the things which was to do things to promote their temporary and eternal welfare.

When God said, "Let us make man after our own image," and when he did create man in his own image, it was possible for man to reflect the will of the Father, God made man but a little lower than the angels, and endowed him with judgment and a sense of justice and right. Moses being clothed with God, and knowing that he had been called to be an exponent of God's will, and to make of the two and a half millions of slaves a new nation, realized that he had a tremendous amount of work on his hands. He saw in this the administration of justice between the very remotest tribe, and in embodying all with a knowledge of God's word. It had not occurred to him that some one could assist in the work and thus forward the work which he had to do. Moses was not afraid of work, but he was even willing to sacrifice his welfare for the people as all his history proved.

At this time Moses was 81 years of age, and had spent each half of his life in and under vastly different circumstances. The first half being in the courts of the Kings of Egypt, where he was impressed with the sovereignty of the Kings, and gaining the idea that the ruler was the rightful and only person who could assist in the ruling of the people.

The other half was spent as a herder in the very lands which he was now endeavoring to make from a horde of slaves a nation.

Here he, by becoming a recluse, was shut away from mankind, and while the conditions in Egypt were ripening for the final throwing off of the slavery which was holding his countrymen, he was digesting the commands of Jehovah, and also the experiences brought this great man to the place which he occupied with slightly different ideas than were required to properly instruct the people in self government. An eminent teacher of the Bible of the day, asked me a few days since, "If we thought that the children would have been prepared to form a nation had the spies reported, their ability to have coped with those then occupying the land and had sufficient confidence in them, would you think that the children would be capable of governing themselves. It was God's plan to have Moses educate the children for the forty years, under Divine guidance, that they should be able to assume the responsibilities of citizenship in the nation which was to be the Saviour of which was to bring the Saviour of the world. Moses was a man chosen by God and was well fitted for the position for which he had been selected, but was burdened to some extent by his own ideas. For exercising one of his own ideas, not in compliance with the direct commands of the Jehovah, whom he sought to serve, he was forbidden to enter the land of promise here on and having completed the work which he was destined to perform, he meekly died in sight of that inheritance which though denied to him became the possession and was enjoyed by his ungrateful brethren.

But few of us will take the interference of the father-in-law or the mother-in-law, with any degree of equanimity. Well do we remember when in school, someone wrote on the flyleaf of one of our text books, "He that cheerfully takes advice may be greater than he who gives it." We took umbrage, and to the truth which was embodied in it. Years of experience in the affairs of the world have convinced us that the declaration was indeed true in every respect. When Jethro came to this land of promise, he was indeed a grand old man for he, who received the good advice of his father-in-law with good grace and adapted it to his situation with the best results.

As Moses was occupied from morning to evening with the small affairs of the people to the more important ones, the fact was noticed by Jethro who thought, and then went to his son-in-law, Moses with a solution for the problem which was confronting not alone him but the welfare of the whole people. In the common language of the day, we would hear Jethro saying, "Moses you are wasting your time which is so valuable and badly needed, with the trifling things which others can do. You are trying, I know, to instruct the people in the law of Jehovah, but you are giving them alone just instructions and not allowing them to practice what you are teaching them.

Smart New Rumble Seat For Sport Roadster

Rumble seats are justly popular. They add a smart, rakish touch to roadster lines, and increase the carrying capacity by two passengers.

That Dodge Brothers Sport Roadster now provides this convenience, will be welcome news to thousands.

Like the main seat, it is deeply upholstered in gray Spanish genuine leather, and the seat back is high and well pitched, providing unusual comfort.

When closed, the rear compartment is absolutely waterproof, even in rainiest weather.

Ample space is provided behind the main seat for golf clubs, suit cases, tennis rackets and similar luggage.

Brilliant peashoot green lacquer body and hood, strikingly in contrast with the tan top, black leathers and full special equipment, complete a general color scheme of exceptional dash and charm.

FRANK E. VALLERY
South 5th St. - Phone 23
Plattsmouth, Nebr.

Put into actual practice the things which you are teaching. When you are gone this people must govern themselves and unless they are taught to do so, by the very act of doing, and learn to depend on themselves, they will be in no better condition to take up the work after you are gone than they are now. Moses saw the truth of the matter and as for the sagacious advice of Jethro the priest of Midian appointed rulers over hundreds and thousands of people who could assist in their own government.

We now have Justice courts, then county and circuit courts, with district courts, and then supreme courts in the states, as also original jurisdiction, and other with both original and appellate jurisdiction, while still higher courts have only appellate jurisdiction.

The whole system of jurisprudence has come to use from the experiences of those who have lived and grappled with the problems and finally perfected a system which is not cumbersome in some respects, while in others seemingly in need of some wise Jethro and Moses to wipe away some of the lagarithms, and masses, which cumber the administration of rendering equal and exact justice.

Successes come from the proper organization of the body, which is to accomplish the object of their endeavor. Drones in a bee hive have a purpose, but when that purpose has been subserved they are removed from the hive by the sensible workers, and put to death, notwithstanding that it always meant that the worker who stung the drone must also pay the price of riding the live or swarm, which is indeed a well working colony of units, of giving his life, for when the sting is applied, the stinger dies.

The way to learn to farm is to go out on the farm and under a competent instructor do the actual work, also in regard to the various trades and occupations. The matter of teaching the butcher trade by mail cannot be a success. We are reminded of a story which is told of a man who was seized with the idea, that his son was smarter than other boys and could do better than anyone else. (Just now let us say that we like this and as a demonstration in the faith of one's own son, it can be forgotten even to his becoming an egotist.) The boy wanted to become a blacksmith, so the father arranged to have the "Village Blacksmith" give the lad some lessons, for which the father was to and did pay the sum of fifteen dollars.

A seat was fixed upon the forge, so the lad could see just what was being done and the blacksmith explained his every move, for three weeks.

At the end of that time, the father and the lad as well thought he had become a blacksmith. A shop was builded, and all preparations made for a successful career. Then the father said, "Now John, let us see what you can do. The lad with the tools, which he was not used to using heated his iron, it being a broad piece of metal, and announced that he would make a shovel, he pounded the iron until it had gotten cold and began to show signs of cracking. "Observe that he had let the iron get cold, he heated it exceptionally hot so that it was fairly scintillated, and remembering how the blacksmith slammed the iron down on his anvil, to knock off the sparks, did the same and the highly heated metal bend over and in a way resembled a hoe, so the lad changed his mind and told the father he would make a hoe, heating the mass for the third time, he observed the cracks coming from pounding the iron when it was cold announced that he would make a rake, to which the father agreed. "Then heating it very hot again, he slammed it down on the suvil again and this time crushing the mass which he could do nothing with. The father spoke up then and said, "John you had better go back and sit on the forge another three weeks." Nad the lad been instructed and learned to become acquainted with the hammer and tongs he might have fared better.

To learn to do anything we must learn to do it.

So God wants doers in the world, not sophists, but the man who really does things. Theories are well in their place but the foundation for success must be laid upon something more solid than sand.

Stock Market Breaks After a 3 Months' Rally

General Motors Hardest Hit; Drops 15 1/2 Points; Stiffening of Call Money Rates Blamed

New York, Aug. 11.—Bear traders "pulled the plug" from under Tuesday's stock market and prices of high priced industrial issues crashed from 4 to 16 points.

Wall Street, which is never without a "reason" to explain market movements, blamed the reaction on the stiffening of call money rates following the heavy calling of loans by out of town banks, the sharp increase in brokers' loans and speculative disappointment over the increase of only 123,889 tons in the unfilled orders of the U. S. Steel corporation last month.

It was the first severe setback since the present "bull movement" started nearly three months ago. In view of the unusually low advance in many high priced stocks recently, and the wild public speculation of the last few days, the decline was not entirely unexpected, and was widely regarded as a natural correction of a weakened speculative position.

G. M. Hardest Hit. General Motors, which has advanced more than 110 points since the first of April, was the hardest hit. "The first sale was a block of 15,000 shares at the "agreed" price of 219 to 217 1/2, as against the record high of 225 1/2 established yesterday.

The next few sales carried it up to around 214, but it sold down to 209 before the end of the first hour. By early afternoon, it had rallied to around 218, only to break to 206 in another tremendous wave of selling in the last hour, closing at 206 1/2 for a net loss of 15 1/2 points on the day.

Dupont also broke 15 1/2 points to 295. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and Case Threshing Machine fell back about 9 points each, and more than a score of others. Allied Chemical, Air Reduction, American Express, foundation company and Texas Gulf sulphur closed 3 to 5 points lower.

Total stock sales were 2,151,700 shares.
