THE GOOD FIGHT

I have fought a good fight, I have finished by course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness.— II Timothy 4:7.

TRAMP! TRAMP! TRAMP!

During a time when many colleges and universities are trying to cast out military training, it is gratifying to know that there are 40,000 young men who are willing to spend half their summer, without pay, in acquiring the rudiments of soldiering.

Neither is that the only gratifying thing about the Citizens' Military Training camps this summer. Another is the degree of physical fitness which youth seems to be maintaining. A very small per cent of all applicants was turned down by the army doctors. Yet this is an age when everyone is supposed to be devoting his time to the ruination of his health.

It seems that the nation still is filled with fit-to-fight manhood and, perhaps better still, with manhood that is willing to fight. These summer camps are proving grounds for testing our military strength, potential and real. With our regular army organization skeletonized, and some existing only on paper, the bulk of power in an emergency would rest with the national guard and the organized reserve.

There were thousands of men who wanted to go to summer camps this year and were cheated by an insufficient appropriation. The nation was cheated, too, for there is no other single influence which so effectively gives an appreciation of the highest obligations of citizenship.

The modern young fellow doesn't care about leaving footprints on the sands of time. He wants to leave auto tracks.

A famous British surgeon says women become overeducated. The doctor's right. Not one woman in a thousand now believes a man ever has a sick friend who needs sitting up with, or that anybody ever eats cloves because he likes 'em.

It is here the Democrats have their opportunity. If they will resolve to vote every senator they have against Vare and Smith, they can at once save the voting primary and drive money out of the political field. Sixteen Republicans who voted to seat Newberry have subsequently been defeated at the polls. No other group of marked men appears in our history. There can be no doubt about the temper of the people. They want the ballott kept pure, and they will stand by the party that helps them to keep it pure.

Forty years ago it was a great pleasure to the writer to attend a democratic state convention down in Missouri, where we always met Senators Vest and Cockrell, David R. Francis, Governor Dockery, Senator Stone, Jim Reed, Harry Hawes, Congressman Bill Hatch and many other such notables. Senators Vest, Cockrell and Stone, Champ Clark and Bill Hatch are dead. Dockery is 82 years old and has lost his fortune, and Jim Reed is engaged in fighting the rascals in the Republican party. Ah! Those were happy days in the Old "Show Me" state, never to be forgotten.

We figure this hardboiled egg, Mussolini, finally would go too far. Now he is attempting to dictate women's fashions. Veni, vidi, vale!

Peculiar, but true, that the more a man pays for a seat in the senate, the cheaper the bought seat becomes in the eyes of our dear people.

A DEMOCRATIC OPPORTUNITY

It is frequently said that what has been found out about the Republican primaries in Pennsylvania and Illinois offers the people of those states an opportunity to repudiate such debarment of the ballot by voting for Democrats, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

That is true, but it offers Democrats everywhere a much greater opportunity to stand for the purity of the ballot. There is a growing impression in the country that the voting primary is a failure, and this impression can be allayed only by one of the great parties taking the position that no nomination can be bought.

We have a precedent for this position in the Newberry case. Newberry bought his seat in the senate, and was driven from it by public opinion. It is freely predicted that the same thing will happen when Vare of Pennsylvania and Smith of Illinois attempt to take their seats. It will happen if the Democrats will make the purity of the ballot one of their major objectives. It is a field abandoned to them by the Republicans. The Republican party is bound up with predatory wealth. The primaries in which millions are spent and in which the machinery of popular government is brought to naught are Republican primaries. There will be more of them, because money is the single weapon with which the Republicans can make war. Their national campaigns are similar. They are all orgies of money spending in which one Croesus belabors another and the people are no more than terrified onlookers.

In the six years since the Woodpecker and the Lowden people whaled one another over the head with bags of gold the Republicans have not deviated from their belief a hair's breadth. They still believe that money alone is necessary to control the government, and if they have not increasingly and continually proved that in their great national campaign funds they have certainly proved it within the last few weeks in Pennsylvania and Illinois.

You and each of you are hereby notified that on the 4th day of August, 1926, plaintiff filed a petition and commenced an action in the District Court of Cass County, Nebraska. The object, purpose and prayer of which is to obtain a decree of Court quieting plaintiff's title to the foregoing described premises and to enjoin each and all of you from having or claiming to have any right, title, estate, lien or interest, either legal or equitable in or to said real estate or any part thereof and to enjoin you and each of you from in any manner interfering with plaintiff's possession or enjoyment of said premises, and for equitable relief.

This notice is given in pursuance of an Order of Court. You and each of you are further notified that you are required to answer said petition on or before Monday, the 4th day of October, 1926, or the allegations contained in said petition will be taken as true and a decree rendered granting the prayer of plaintiff herein.

Will the Democrats do it?

THE JOY OF JOGGING

Thirty-six million Americans, according to the National Touring Board, are taking vacations this year by automobile. It is pleasant to think of so many people, most of whom have well earned their play, motoring along picturesque roads, gathering ruddy health, drinking in the beauties of nature and lingering by historic shrines. But is this altogether a true picture of their course? Do they travel to see, to enjoy and to bring home memories that will flash, years later, upon "that inward eye which is the bliss of solitude?" Or do they go merely to cover the most possible ground in the least possible time? To those who may not have learned the joys of leisurely jogging we commend this bit of counsel from a seasoned traveler of the west:

"There are two ways of touring by motor. One is to do your two hundred and fifty miles a day and see what you can see at twenty-five miles an hour. You make camp toward evening and you depart the next morning as early as you can. The other and better way is to go somewhere in your automobile and stay long enough to get acquainted. That is what the gypsies do. They camp in the same spot for weeks at a time. One canyon looks pretty much like another as you whiz through it and neither is worth much as a vacation until you have stopped long enough to find the fishing holes and tried them in various weathers. Towns have their individuality if you take time to discover it. Battlefields have to be walked over and so do most other places of historical interest. So-called scenic roads are thrilling enough as you rush down them, but the pictures come too fast. Few can remain in memory."

For them not to remain in the memory means that the hurried ones have missed the better part of the tour. They have lost sadly in experience as well as in recollection, for they have glimpsed scarcely a tithe of what the observants see and have sacrificed the finer savors to senseless gulping. Falstaff's "I were better eaten to death with rust than scoured to nothing with perpetual motion" could be pondered to advantage by every scurry vacationist. If you would know the right spirit of the road, turn to Stevenson's "Travels With a Donkey" and learn how the charm of landscape, the glory of sun and the poetry of stars enter into the soul of those who wander with watchful hearts.
