While the gentlemen were in the metropolis Mrs. W. O. Troop was visiting at the home of Robert Troop and family of the county seat.

Married in Sidney, Iowa. We are a little late but we must chronicle the wedding of our friend James McVey, who was, on October 26th, united in marriage with the accomplished young lady, Miss Freda Nounster, of near Avoca. The young folks were not looking for publicity and slipped away to Sidney, Iowa, where they were united in marriage to return and surprise their folks. The newly married couple are for the present time making their home at that of the groom's parents, L. M. McVey and wife, east of Nehawka, where they will assist with the work. Mr. James McVey will pick corn for the remainder of the fall and will farm for himself the coming summer but has not decided just where, as he has two farms under consideration.

The Journal, with the many friends of the young folks, are extending congratulations and well wishes for the happiness and success of the young people.

Not the Dog Now, Certain.

There has been much speculation about the disappearance of the bottles of milk, which are left by the milk man. It was at first thought that it was a dog, and called black, but later developments are to the effect that the milk is taken by persons and while they have not as yet gotten the nippers in the act, it is definitely known who they are and they will be taken in the act soon and exposed to the benefit of those who have been losing their milk. However the whole thing will be made known if it occurs again.

Catches the Chicken Thief. Bowser, the houn dog of C. D. St. John, believes in looking after the welfare of the home and the flock of fowls which make their home at that of his master. A raccoon has been making depredations in the farm yard and taking some of the choicest of the fowls and to compensate for his keep Bowser laid for the 'coon, and the other night captured him, notwithstanding he fought hard. This evidently was not the first escapade the 'coon had had for two of the claws on one of his feet were gone having been in a brush with a steel trap.

Complete Their Work. The grading crew which has been doing the work on the "O" street road from Union to the Stewart Rough place where Dan Anderson lives has completed the work and moved the camp last Saturday. The barricades have been removed and the road is ready for the use of the public. Now with the coming year it is the hope of the citizens wherever they may be that the road be gravelled to Lincoln thus providing a good road to the state capitol. This would provide a good road across the county in both directions.

FUNERAL OF MRS. HORSACK

From Wednesday's Daily—
Yesterday afternoon at the late home in the west part of the city was held the funeral services of Mrs. Louis Horsack whose death on Friday brought to the community such a deep regret and sorrow and has to the family laid a heavy burden on their former happy home. The floral tributes at the home were very beautiful and silently attested the feeling of sorrow that her death had brought.

Rev. H. G. McClusky, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, gave words of comfort and cheer to the bereaved family and held to the members of the family the blessed promise of the reunited lives beyond the veil of time.

The male quartet composed of Frank A. Cloidt, R. C. Cook, R. W. Knorr and H. G. McClusky gave two numbers during the service.

At the close of the services the body was borne to Oak Hill cemetery where it was laid to the last long rest.

A very large number of the friends and neighbors were present at the services.
