Many Entrants in Cass Co. Hog Calling Contest

Half Score Now Registered and Several More Promised—Fred Patzel to be Judge.

A great event is in store at the opening of the Legion's annual indoor Harvest Festival tonight. The champion hog caller of Cass county is to be selected from among a dozen or more contestants, with none other than the redoubtable Fred Patzel, world champion swine caller, acting as official judge and determining the winners of the two cash prizes—$10 and $5 in gold. In addition Patzel will demonstrate his world champion call for the entertainment of the large crowd just before the official contest is held at 10:30. This late hour is necessary on account of the stores being open tonight and many having shopping to do.

Judging will be done 90 per cent on earnestness of appeal and 10 per cent on adaptability, in other words naturalness of contestant in assuming the role of a real hog caller and not simply "singing" his staff.

In this Patzel is a real artist and the contestants can learn much by observing his actions in the demonstration call.

Contestants may make their call as short as they wish, but must not exceed two minutes calling time.

Those who have entered to date are as follows:

George A. Mumm, Plattsmouth
Wiley Sigler, Plattsmouth

Candidates File Expense Accounts for the Campaign

Cost of Local Candidate Limited Practically to Advertising Expenses.

From Saturday's Daily—

The candidates at the election on November 2nd have commenced the most sorrowful of tasks, that of the filing of the expense accounts for the cost of the campaign and the list at the office of County Clerk George R. Sayles is steadily growing.

The republican county central committee reported the sum of $165 as being expended while the democratic committee expended the sum of $390.

In the race for state treasurer Phil L. Hall of Greenwood expended $221.02, this being all in advertising in the Omaha and Lincoln papers.

To secure the election as state senator, W. B. Banning of Union expended the sum of $103.32.

In the race for state representative Troy L. Davis gave up $65.50 while his opponent Earl Towle expended $85.74, this being due largely to the fact that the assessments made on the democratic candidates was much larger than that of the republicans.

In the sheriff race Bert Reed reports the sum of $40.50 and his opponent A. R. Johnson at $78.

The race that involved the most cost to both candidates was that of registrar of deeds where Miss Jessie M. Robertson expended $90 while Miss Minnie Klinger expended $118.

While they had no opponents at the election Mrs. Golda Noble Beal, clerk of the district court expended $25 including the party assessment and County Attorney W. G. Kieck also came through with $20 for the race.

John E. Turner, treasurer-elect reported the sum of $55 as being his campaign cost.

County Clerk George R. Sayles gave up $30 in the race for the office, $15 of this being in assessment to the committee.

County Commissioner Fred H. Gordey expended $5 in the race and County Commissioner C. F. Harris $45.

The candidate that made the cheapest race for office was Miles Allen, county surveyor-elect, who reports nothing as the sum total of the expenses.

FAVOR WHITE RADIO BILL

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 10.—Pioneer radio broadcasting interests of the country will urge congress to pass the White bill for radio control, in the opinion of prominent radio men here.

The White bill would be amended under present plans, to recognize the priority rights of "pioneer" broadcasters and make it possible for competent radio men to serve on the controlling commission.

H. A. Bellows, director of WCCO, the largest twin city broadcasting station, and an authority on radio legislation, returned today from a survey trip to many of the major broadcasting stations, holding this opinion.

The White bill was passed by the last house, but the senate adopted a number of amendments, known as the Dill amendments, which are understood to contain clauses not entirely agreeable to President Coolidge and Secretary Hoover.

The proposed "priority" clause, it is said here, would not profess a "property right" in the air, but would give special licensing authority to give special consideration to pioneer broadcasters if a reallocation of waves is made.

Radio men here expect to see an intensive campaign open within a few days to have the White bill passed at the next session of congress.

Lucky Boot Wins for Peru Prep, 3 to 0

Locals Outplay Visitors in Game But Lose in Third Quarter of Game.

From Saturday's Daily—

A clean and hard driven place kick from the Plattsmouth twenty yard line in the Plattsmouth-Peru Prep game was the means of annexing the victory for the purple shirted warriors from down the river and dashing the hopes of the Plattsmouth football team of the southeastern Nebraska conference championship.

The Platters battled desperately in the first minutes of the game and their victory was withering grasp by two yards but like the struggle at Verdun the Peruvians held and the locals were forced to surrender the ball on downs after they had dashed their strength against the stonewall line of the visitors.

The Plattsmouth aerial attack that had won them great gains in the first of the last quarter failed to work in the last and several attempted passes fell short of completion.

In the opening Peru was held for three downs and on the fourth attempt of the visitors to advance Gordor recovered the ball on the fumble of Peru and then Fitch started his line smashing that won the first downs for his team and was followed by Wescott who made first downs for his team. Plattsmouth tried for a field goal but which was wide and failed to register.

The game was largely fought in the Peru territory and the larger size of the visitors in the pinches enabled them to smother the local offensive on the final downs. Both teams used the boot a great deal in repeated punts and in these the work of "Jumbo" Smith showed much better than his opponent and he advanced the blue and white on this part of the game.

A good pass, Wescott to Smith, netted fifteen yards for the local team in the second quarter and brought in the ball back into the Peru territory but the attempts to gain were futile and Smith kicked, the ball resting on the Peru three yard line. Peru attempted to punt and the ball never returned to the visitors thirty yard line by Smith, this gain was checked in the failure to smash through the line and the visitors regained the ball. Peru punted fifty yards and over the Plattsmouth goal line, the ball being put in play on the local twenty yard line and after several attempts at gains the blue and white warriors punted to the visitors forty yard line where the ball rested at the half.

On the kickoff Plattsmouth received and the ball was put in play on their two yard line and from where they punted to the thirty yard line where Auburn was held. Xdam, on regaining the ball for Plattsmouth gained three yards but on the succeeding play the locals were thrown for a loss that however brought with it a penalty on Peru of fifteen yards. The locals were held again and then Peru opened the offensive that was to win the game. Adams for Peru skirted the Plattsmouth end for fifteen yards and the work of Buttery in stopping the runner checked a touchdown. From the Plattsmouth fifteen yard line the visitors booted over the field goal that chalked them up three points.

On resumption of the play in the third quarter the Plattsmouth team opened their aerial attack and Buttery also featured the game with a twenty yard dash that brought the ball back into the Peru territory on their thirty-five yard line and Bob Fitch reduced the margin by a ten yard smash.

In the last quarter the battle of Plattsmouth was intense, as the ball was recovered on a bad punt by Peru and a pass, Wescott to Hatt advanced the ball twenty yards and was followed by another successful pass, Wescott to Perry that placed the ball on the visitors ten yard line and the first downs. Fitch drove through to the three yard line of the visitors and here the locals were held on repeated attempts at line smashes.

Peru punted out to their thirty yard line and the game closed with the ball in possession of Plattsmouth on the Peru twenty yard line.

TO DISMISS PROCEEDINGS

Washington, Nov. 10.—Discontinuance of the impeachment proceedings against George E. English as federal judge of the eastern Illinois district was forecast today as his resignation was officially presented to the senate sitting as a court of impeachment.

Representative Michener, republican, Michigan, chairman of the house impeachment prosecutors, announced that this course would be recommended in the house, and at his request the senate adjourned until December 15. By that time the house is expected to have acted upon the prosecutor's proposal.

Proceedings in the senate today were exceedingly brief. Mr. Michener presenting certified copies of the resignation and its acceptance by president Coolidge, announced that the house would be asked to continue the case.

Ohio bankers say they have found a statute which provides a jail term and a $500 fine for issuance of a check for less than $1. Thus our gas company finds itself morally obliged to hike its "service charge" to $1 to keep some of its customers out of jail.

City Where You Live is the Most Important

Support of the Home City is Vital to the Welfare of the Citizens.

Writers on economics claim the so-called "bargain" advertising put out, has been worked to death. Especially is this true of circular advertising by outside companies, operating at a distance, with their alluring descriptions and seemingly wonderful prices. However, as a rule when you go, you are ever like the child seeking the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow!

Tolstoy, the great Tolstoy—and great he is in mind—a thinker of extraordinary ability states: "The man with whom you are is most important." The joy we get out of human contact is often lost in not getting what we are out of the man with whom we are talking. Absorb his ideas, study his personality, make mental comparisons, and when he leaves you have absorbed some experiences to enrich your own life.

Emerson, says: "What you are, shouts loudly at men, I can't hear what are you saying." In other words all the pretense of a man's words are betrayed by what he is. Civic pride lipped and shouted, is as sounding brass, if not demonstrated in actual deeds. It requires courage of a deep sort for a man to stand before belching guns in defense of his "ain country"; it requires pride and love of country to meet its scorn when you are right, but refuse to sacrifice principles to politics. It requires unselfishness, and loyalty to one's city to turn his back on the alluring advertisements of other places, and say: "My own city first, last and always." Everything worth while requires sacrifices of some sort.

Yet with Tolstoy, you might say this way: "The city where you live is the most important." Your children attend their schools; they play with the children of your merchant friends and neighbors; these friends come to your aid in sickness and trouble; we all attend this city's churches; it is home; it is to you and your children "most important."

So when the mails are deluged with enticing advertisements of bargains elsewhere, one is inclined to ponder, Is it worth while? What do we get out of it? What does it do to our city? How are our schools affected? Can we afford for a dollar or two to send our money where nothing comes back to us, our city, our friends, our homes?

As a man in the courage of his convictions will be shot down by the enemy's guns, so a man in his conviction will hesitate before he sacrifices his own home to the enrichment of others, who contribute nothing to its support, morally, politically or financially.

Men and women sacrifice their sons; their money; their time; their homes; and their ambitions to defend country from attack without this is called patriotism. Patriotism does not stop with your country. It takes in your city, and ultimately your home—and when it reaches your home and city we term it "civic loyalty."

Yet this attack on the merchants and fabric of your city in outside competition, is just as destructive to your city, and your homes, as a cannon of an enemy. Love of country, revolves back ultimately to the love of your own intimate home circle; your friends; your churches; and your schools; so it is patriotism in the deepest sense of the word. So a man and woman may ponder "Is it worth while?" Is it fair to rob my city, my neighbors, and my friends, and my children by crippling the place that to us all is "home?"

The surest way to eliminate this is when such circulars reach you, indignantly undermining your home, to cry in no uncertain terms: "Get these behind me Satan," and destroy it without compunction or thought.

Frank O. Lowden Talks to Bankers at State Meeting

Former Illinois Governor Suggests a Board Similar to Federal Reserve as Farm Ills Cure.

Lincoln, Nov. 12.—Declaring that American genius is capable of rising to save American agriculture and the American nation from decadence, former Governor Frank O. Lowden, stirred the Nebraska bankers who crowded the student activities building at the State College of Agriculture Thursday evening with his plea for the farm population of America. Governor Lowden said many men take the gloomy view that agriculture will continue to decay, and that in the end the fate of America will be the fate that befell Rome and other nations of old that neglected the farm to flock to the cities. He declared his belief that the genius of American statesmanship and American science will save the country from that catastrophe.

Mr. Lowden said agriculture is now in that state where a farmer does not know whether to be thankful or miserable for a rainfall that will help produce a surplus crop and at the same time beat down the price of that surplus production.

Mr. Lowden said he would suggest a federal farm board organized along the lines of the Federal Reserve bank. Such a board should be vested with the power of inquiring into necessary facts.

Miss Anna C. Kramph, assistant cashier of the First National bank of North Platte, aroused the bankers with her witty and forceful discussion of the question of service charges which she defended as necessary and right.

Dr. J. E. Kirschman, professor of finance in the University of Nebraska, in an address on "bond prices," discussed movements in commodity prices and the forces aside from these that influence the financial markets and the operations of banking institutions.

John McHugh, president of the Chase National bank of New York was among the prominent bankers who conferred Thursday morning from Sioux City, Iowa, his former home.

The various groups of the association selected the following members of committees:

Nominating—Phil L. Hall, Jr., of Greenwood; B. C. Delatour, Lewelling; Arthur Jensen, Minden; William McDonald, North Platte; W. H. Kirschman, Wahoo; J. E. Gibson, Norfolk; J. M. Flannigan, Stuart.

Resolutions—J. E. Conklin, Blue Hill; A. I. Jorgensen, Sidney; C. F. Gund, Blue Hill; J. Folda, Schuyler; C. G. Bias, Elmwood; H. A. Cheney, Creighton; W. P. Rooney, Chadron.
