

MURDOCK DEPARTMENT.

PREPARED EXCLUSIVELY FOR THE JOURNAL.

Mary Katherine McHugh spent the greater part of last week visiting relatives in Omaha.

Henry Heineman completed one day last week some very fine chicken houses at the home of Will Rikil.

Henry Heineman and wife were visiting and looking after some business matters in Lincoln on last Friday.

Mrs. O. E. McDonald was a visitor in Omaha and Council Bluffs for a number of days during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Hill, of Omaha, came in Saturday evening on their way to Lincoln to spend Sunday with friends.

L. G. Hornbeck was a visitor in Lincoln on last Wednesday evening, visiting with friends and looking after some business.

L. Neitzel reports a fine heating stove trade this season, having disposed of nine heaters and several more prospects in view.

Miss Jessie Melvin was kept to her home and bed on account of ill health for a number of days during the past week, but at this time she is reported as being some better.

John Scheel and wife were over to Greenwood on last Sunday and in company with Frank Hart and family were visiting in Omaha as well.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Twiss, of Louisville were visiting in Murdock for the week end and were guests at the home of the parents of Mrs. Twiss, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bower.

W. O. Gillespie was a visitor at Lincoln on last Wednesday, to take Miss Viola Everett, and Odd says, "Believe me, the radio was just about as bad as one could expect."

Frank Hart and family were over from their home at Greenwood on last Thursday (Armistice day) and were guests at the home of John Scheel and wife, parents of Mrs. Hart.

Art Ward says the garage business has been good and it keeps him hustling to keep the work all done, but as he likes work it is good enough for him, and for all when it comes to that.

John Scheel and J. Johanson were over to Omaha with the truck of the latter and some hogs of John's which they marketed on last Wednesday. They found the road quite bad, but got along anyway.

Eddie Craig, who has been working at Johnsons has accepted a position with Emil Kuehn, and is working at the shop. Mr. Craig is a good workman and well known to the people of Murdock.

At the Murdock Mercantile company, Henry has been doing a fine line of business with the poultry, having purchased and handled besides the other work four truck loads of chickens in two days.

The hunters who were over on the Platte river, returned home Sunday and reported that while they had sought every nook and corner for some ducks, they found only one, which all were claiming.

The High school students of a portion of them provided many a good laugh when they put on a minstrel show last Thursday night, and which they repeated again on Saturday evening, to good houses each time.

Miss Helen Bornemeier, who has been ill at the farm home for the past few weeks is reported as being much improved and getting along nicely with the hope that she will be able to return to her work in a short time.

Miss Eleanor Gakemeier, who has been visiting for the past six weeks in St. Paul, returned home on last Wednesday evening and reports the weather as being much colder there than here. However, she enjoyed the visit very much while she was away.

Edward W. Thimman was kept pretty busy during the fore part of last week hauling stock and during one 24-hour period made three trips to Omaha with stock. While he was away, W. O. Gillespie was looking after the spruce and A. J. Bowers was looking after the work with the dray.

Drop in and hear the radio at the drug store. You will be surprised how fine the Magnetic radio works which Harry McDonald has there. Any important event will be received there. Ask Harry how much it will cost to have one installed in your home. It will surprise you how cheap you can own one.

Jess Landholm and wife, who were in the west for a greater portion of last week, where they went to deliver a new car which they had disposed of, returned and were spending the vacation of the schools which was caused by the teachers' convention, in Omaha, they remaining for over the week end, Mrs. Landholm being accompanied by her daughter, Verona.

A letter from Carlton Zink is to the effect that he and wife are enjoying their stay in Jackson, Florida, very much, where he is an instructor in the high school of that place, having the chair of mechanical engineering and teaching as well, especially "Motors." Carlton is well qualified for the position he occupies and will, we are certain, make a success of the work.

The Ladies Aid of the Evangelical church met with Mrs. A. H. Ward on last Thursday afternoon, where they enjoyed a very pleasant time which brought them together, and had a most sociable afternoon. Mrs. Ward entertained the members of the Ladies Society in royal manner and at the end of the pleasant afternoon served delicious refreshments.

John Scheel was a visitor last week in Plattsmouth, where he participated in the county corn picking contest and while he kept pace and had less ribbons and left less in the field, he had less also in his wagon, and he says that there was less corn to pick, as the ears were smaller than others. However, John is a good corn picker, even if he was not able to get as much as the others from the ground.

Miss Elsa Bornemeier, the very efficient and capable operator at the telephone exchange in Murdock, who has not been enjoying the best of health, was taken to the hospital one day last week, where she underwent an operation for some liver trouble and which after the operation it is reported she is getting along nicely. She will not be able to return for some time, but is hoping that she will be in perfect health afterwards. During the time she is kept away from the exchange, Mrs. Harry Gillespie is assisting at the exchange.

Thursday being the anniversary of the signing of the Armistice of the World war, it was celebrated by the banks of Murdock by their being closed for the day and enjoying themselves in a most enjoyable manner. E. Hendricks and wife were down to Crab Orchard, where Mr. Hendricks has a farm and which he was looking after. He expects to hold a sale some time during the winter and will not be interested in farming other than as a renter. Cashier Edmunds of the Farmers bank and his wife were visiting in Hickman for Armistice day.

G. Bauer and L. Neitzel took their regular Sunday excursion and landed in Milford in time for Sunday school at the Evangelical church and enjoyed the session of the Sunday school very much. They stayed for the regular preaching service, after which they inspected the fine church and Sunday school room, and then had dinner with John Wohlgenuth. After this they called on John Becker and then turned their faces homeward, arriving here at 5 p. m. This was the last charge Mr. Neitzel served before locating at Murdock. It was a very pleasant visit with the old parishioners, of which a great number have passed to their reward. Many changes have taken place in these 35 years.

Will Have New Barber Shop John Amgwert has leased the west room of the Max Dusterhoff building, now the A. H. Ward property, and will in the course of a few weeks open up a barber shop therein. John has as yet some work to complete in the painting line and will then install a new shop in the building mentioned. John is well known and needs no introduction to the people of Murdock and vicinity.

Eight Years Ago

Speaking of the celebration of Armistice day, Charles Schaefer, who was in the navy service during the World war, said that eight years ago Thursday he was at Edinburgh, Scotland, and it was but a short time after that he was present with a portion of the American navy, which was taking a part in closing up the great war by receiving the German fleet which was delivered to the Allies. While the years of peace have run along smoothly, Charley says it does not seem to him that eight of them have fled into eternity.

Celebrated Birthday Wedding

John Campbell and wife celebrated on last Sunday their golden wedding anniversary at their home at South Bend, where they have resided for all the time. The day was quietly passed at the home where they have enjoyed the half century of happy years living a quiet life filled with good and with the many friends they have made and kept during the eventful period. They were joined by the children for an evening dinner, Charles Schaefer and family were there celebrating the happy event and congratulating the parents as well as extending the wish for many more years of happy service to their fellow man.

Celebrated Birthday Sunday

On November 12th, 1854, L. Neitzel was born in Labes, Germany, where he lived until he was just eighteen years old, when he left the old country, coming to America. He lived for a short time in New Jersey, then in New York state, later going to Pennsylvania, where he resided for two years. After this he went to South Bend, Indiana, where he worked for the Studebaker Wagon company for five years and then took to the ministry, his first charge being at Ithaca, then at Omaha, Milford and Madison, the period of his activities in this line covering some five years time. Thirty-five years ago he came to Murdock and engaged in the mercantile business, remaining here since that time.

The celebration at Omaha at the home of his daughter on last Sunday, was attended by all the family, who were very glad to be able to celebrate with him the passing of his 72nd birthday anniversary and extended to him their best wishes for many years of happiness and service to his fellow man.

"Four Square" Club Activities

The Nebraska Extension Service club, which was organized in Murdock some weeks ago by Mr. Snipes, the county agent, will have their November meeting at the home of Mrs. J. E. McHugh, Friday, November 19, at 1 o'clock p. m. Visitors are always welcome.

The club has some seventeen members and has chosen the name of "Four Square" to designate the club in this part of the county. Members were requested by the leaders, Mesdames H. A. Tool and Ed Brunkow to bring their favorite vase, also the diagram of the living room worked out as specified in the project sheet No. 1161.

Murdock Our Town

Sure Murdock is our town and why not make it the very best town on the map. God has blessed us with a soil which cannot be beaten anywhere in the great central west—the garden of America, and with many other natural advantages. We have come to this place to make our home and we came because we thought it an excellent place to live. It is, and one of the best, so why not all join hands and make it absolutely the best? One man cannot make a good town, but every man can lend his influence in making the town the very best. The way to make a good town, and also to make a good town better is for all to get together and hustle at every opportunity. A Community club with the object in view of making it the very best for all concerned. It does not matter whether we get a nickle each time for anything we do for the community, but keep hustling and what is our share in the general prosperity of the community will eventually come to us. Let us hustle all together and we will make the world sit up and take notice that we are a unit for making this the best town. Do not say anything bad of your neighbor competitor, but something to his benefit.

MORE LAMBS ON FEED

Washington, Nov. 10.—The number of sheep and lambs fed for market this winter will be greater than last year and as large as during any winter since 1921, the agriculture department announced today. An increase of 40,000 was shown in the corn belt states, the largest since 1920. Due to a decrease of 700,000 in Colorado, feeding in the west was less than heretofore.

Passing of Uncle Joe Cannon at Age of Ninety

Set a Record for Continued Service in Lower House—Picturesque and Popular as a Public Man.

Danville, Ill., Nov. 12.—The fiery spirit of Joseph G. Cannon, dimmed to an ember by the weight of ninety years, was quenched today by death. In the home from which he went to congress fifty-three years ago and amid walls laden with the trophies of his public life, the patriarch died at high noon, in the midst of a deep sleep.

Weakening of the heart muscles caused his death, but the general deprivations of old age had warned his family several months ago that the end was near. He told comrades in the national house when he quit his halls in 1922 that he was going home to die, home to the rambling brown brick mansion which he built sixty-five years ago for the bride who preceded him to the grave.

After his retirement from congress he continued his daily walks downtown beneath the eaves of Vermillion street and the most cartooned face in America was daily visible behind the brown curtains of the Second National bank, which he helped found. But several months ago he was forced to forego his walks and he turned to a daily motor outing, which he continued until a few weeks ago.

His mind faded with his body and he could recall but dimly, after his ninetieth birthday last May, scenes with which his long congressional service was vivid. No waning memory however, could keep him inactive and his last public act four months ago, was to turn the soil for a new church for the St. James Methodist Episcopal congregation. Born a Quaker, he joined the Methodist church after leaving congress and each Sunday until recent weeks found him in the pew his wife had occupied thruout her lifetime in Danville.

A funeral air and one of reverence settled over the city as news of his death spread. Danville had known for months that its foremost citizen had not long to live and it had filled with honor his declining days. His ninetieth birthday was made a civic holiday and he was a guest of the Kiwanis club, to which he belonged at a birthday party. He did not try to speak for he was already bowed by age, but stood behind the mammoth birthday cake titled his picturesque has at the accustomed angle and smiled genially above his chin whiskers while photographers made a record of the occasion.

He even inserted a cigar between his teeth to make complete the resemblance to the Cannon of old, altho he had largely abandoned smoking in his later years and had substituted mild cigars for the pungent stogies which were recognized thruout the land as a part of the Cannon picture.

Plans for the funeral were incomplete tonight, pending the arrival from San Francisco and Washington of two granddaughters, Mrs. William Houghteling and Mrs. Dorsey Richardson. Cannon's two daughters, Mrs. Mabel Lesuer and Miss Helen Cannon, were with their father when he died. They both have lived at the Cannon home since the death several years ago of Mr. Lesuer. Funeral services will be held here and interment will be made in the Danville cemetery. It is believed that Tuesday may be selected for the last rites.

American knew Cannon as "Uncle Joe," the stalwart czar of the lower house, the fire-eating debater, the genial, whiskered politician, clenching a cigar in his teeth under a broad brimmed hat.

Danville knew him, too, as "Uncle Joe," and as the most famous townsman, but it knew him also as a man who came to great wealth during a lifetime here. He was accounted many times a millionaire and at his death he owned a substantial share of the national bank which he and his late brother, William, founded. Much of his wealth, it was said, was acquired thru fortunate investments of his money by his brother.

Record Term in Congress His death marked the passing of a congressman whose time of service in national halls never has been equalled. He went to congress from the Danville district, after a term as county attorney and served from 1873 to 1891. He was defeated then, but came back two years later to serve from 1893 to 1913. Then he was carried to defeat with the republican loss of 1912, but once more he returned, in 1915, to hold his seat until he retired at the end of the sixty-first congress. His last six years of service began to see the dimming of his powers and he was no longer known for his skyrocket style of debate, his active gesturing on the floor of the house and his furious assault of foes.

Once Danville thought to see him preside and in 1908 when he was at his crest as an iron-handed ruler of the house, he got fifty-eight votes for the republican nomination. But the next year he was shorn of the power which the speaker held in congress, thru a coalition of democrats and independents from that time he became a picturesque rather than formidable figure in American politics.

With characteristic fire he declined the vice presidency after he had failed of the presidential nomination in 1908 and on many occasions, his friends said, he refused compromise in politics which might have tempered his infrequent reverses.
