Florida is the chin whiskers of the United States: It is six hundred miles long, two hundred wide, and three feet high. It is bounded on the north by the eighteenth amendment and on the other three sides by the three mile limit.

Florida is inhabited by Indians, Americans, white men, and feed-bag tourists. The reds live on the Everglades, the blacks live on the whites, and the whites live on the tourists, and the tin-canners on the municipal camping grounds.

Florida's principal resources of income are hotels, fruits, allegator shins, tourists, and the vest pocket press agents of Califernia. But the big outstanding feature of Florida is its fruit: orange raising coming fist. Raising oranges is a cinch; all that is required is enough money to live on while raising them.

The next Florida fruit is the grape fruit. A grape fruit is a cross between a lemon, a dose of quinine and a pumpkin. It has the color and disposition of a blonde ticket seller at a moviepicture show. It is usually eaten at breakfast thus combining the advantages of a meal and a morning shower-bath at the same

The tangerine is a distant cousin of the orange.
